On Sick Leave

Leone Thinking Of Stepping Down As Athletics Coordinator

By TOM SULLIVAN

Carl Leone, Quincy's coordinator of athletics for the past 15 years, is currently on sick leave and is contemplating retiring after his leave is up.

Leone, who coached North Quincy's football teams for eight years and had a 4-4 record against Quincy, succeeded the late Munroe McLean as coordinator of athletics in 1969, the year after resigning as Raider coach. He had been a North assistant coach for six years.

During his 15 years as coordinator of athletics, the Quincy varsity sports programs were expanded, especially, those for girls, whose varsity programs began when he took over.

The highlight of his coaching career came in 1966 when he led North Quincy to an undefeated Greater Boston League championship.

Leone was an outstanding quarterback at Quincy High and Brown University, leading the Presidents to a 31-6 win over North Quincy in 1946. At Brown he was a teammate of Quincy High principal Lloyd Hill.

Last year he was named the Div. I South Athletics Director of the Year by his fellow athletic directors.

Carmen Mariano, director of personnel, is handling most of Leone's chores during his sick leave.

Pee Wee B's Off To Flying Start

Quincy's Pee Wee B team, defending state champion, is off to a flying start in defense of its Greater Boston Youth Hockey League title.

Bobby Scott, Kielly Morris and Jimmy McCarthy are the only players returning from last year's state champions. The balance of the team is made up of six second year Pee Wees and eight first year Pee Wees.

The team, sponsored by A&T Movers, opened defense of its league crown by blowing out South Boston, 12-0. Greg Hohman scored four goals and scored the first goal, the only one the team needed. Mark Kelleher and Billy Lydon scored two goals each and Jeff Freeman, Sal Manganaro, Morris, David Mellyn and Danny Savage had the other goals. Matt Swierk, Jeremy Burn and Richie Brooks had three assists each. Kelleher, Hohman, Freeman and McCarthy two apiece and John Witham, Scott, Morris, Lydon and Mellyn one each.

The team then rolled over Dedham, 8-0, with Hohman again scoring what proved the game winner. Kelleher had a hat trick. Savage had two goals and Manganaro and Lydon one each. Burn and Hohman had three assists each. Morris and Freeman two each and Scott, Lydon, Witham and Kelleher one apiece. In this game, as in the opener, neither Pat O'Donoghue nor John Bertrand were severely tested in goal.

Quincy then defeated Wellesley, 5-1, with the first of Lydon's two goals proving to be the game winner. Burn, Morris and Kelleher had the other goals. Freeman and Manganaro had two assists each and Hohman, Kelleher, Savage, Witham and Swierk one apiece. Wellesley scored at 7:38 of the second period, ending Quincy's seven-period scoreless streak. O'Dona-ghue played a strong game in the nets.

Quincy won one and tied one in non-league games. It wallowed Randolph, 10-2, with Morris scoring the eventual game-winner midway in the second period. He also closed out the scoring with his second goal with less than a minute left in the game. Manganaro had a hat trick. Freeman scored twice and Witham, Freeman and Kelleher once each. Freeman had three assists, Hohman and Kelleher two each and McCarthy, Brooks, Morris, Lydon, Manganaro and Savage one apiece.

Against Plymouth Quincy showed real character as it came from behind late in the game to pull out a 2-2 tie. Down, 2-0, with less than eight minutes to play, Morris scored an unassisted goal and Lydon tied the game with Manganaro and Freeman having assists. Duane Kegan played strong defense and O'Donoghue and Bertrand were outstanding in goal.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Quincy Girls Win State Title

This was to have been a rebuilding year for the Quincy girls' volleyball team.

Coach Ray Whitehouse must have done quite a rebuilding job because last Saturday the First Ladies won their second state championship in three years at Worcester Tech.

The Quincy girls, with several underclassmen, won the title by sweeping Stoneham, 15-6, 15-6, in the finals. The team gained sweet revenge in this match as Stoneham had defeated Quincy in the state semifinals a year ago. Quincy lost only one match this year to Brockton.

Earlier Saturday the First Ladies had defeated Milford, 15-7, 15-2, to gain the final.

Quincy's defense, which was outstanding all season, sparked the team to the state title.

"We spiked the ball as well as Quincy, we set the ball as well and we serve as well as they do, but their defense is the difference. They play superior, smart defense and they definitely deserve to be the state champs," said Stoneham coach Richard Barton.

Milford Coach Linda Zucchini also stressed that Quincy's defense was the difference.

"I thought we had by far the best offensive team in the four teams here today," she said. "But Quincy never let us get started. They play in an extremely tough league and they are ready for tournament play in a hurry after playing such tough league games." Milford has been to the finals six times in the last seven years.

Tri-Captains Karen Marnell, Colleen Dunn and Beth Veneto turned in fine all-around performances in the title win.

In the victory over Milford, Kathy McGregor, Quincy's tallest player, was outstanding at the net and Mario LeVangie made some outstanding defensive plays and passes in the back court. Marnell, a smooth setter, may have been the best player on the floor all day.

"I thought our first match against Milford was very tough," said Whitehouse, who was named the Coach of the Year following Quincy's South Sectional victory. "It was 7-5 in the first game for a long time, but then they had a letdown and we took advantage and closed the game out quickly."

Quincy earlier in the week had won the E. Mass South title with a 15-7, 15-13 decision over Brockton.

Following the match Brockton coach Tim Delancy said, "Quincy is a sound, mean machine and should go all the way."

The First Ladies had gained the South finals with a 15-9, 16-18, 15-5 victory over a much taller Brookline team.

After losing three starters by graduation, Whitehouse felt this would be a rebuilding year.

Whitehouse had a fine group of sophomores to go along with the seniors, Marnell, Dunn, Veneto, Terry McLoughlin and McGregor. The talented sophomores were twins Ginny and Terry Duggan, Pam Austin, Lauren Standing and Susan Parry. Other underclassmen were Leanna Dondero, LeVangie and Stacie Nigro.

With so many fine underclassmen coming back, it appears Whitehouse and his assistant, Tom Henderson, will have the First Ladies up among the leaders for some time to come.

Meet The Youth Soccer Champs

The Quincy Youth Soccer League's fall season came to an end last Sunday with the league championship games.

In all but two games, all the boys championship games were decided by one goal.

Quincy Cablesystems captured the Boys Under 8 tournament, beating The Quirk Works, 3-0. Red Donahue, Stephen Rose and Brendan O'Brien scored for Quincy Cable, with assists to Brendan Welch, Jeff Hill and Mark Welch. Playing well for Quirk Works were Peter Johnson, Matt Miller and Josh Wingate.

American Legion Post 95 grabbed the Boys Under 10 tournament championship, downing Reggie's Oil, 2-1. Andrew Vermette and Keith Triandofilos scored for American Legion with an assist going to Roberto Bagu.

American Legion gained the final by beating Keohane's on Saturday, 2-1. It was Keohane's first loss in three years. Scoring for American Legion in that game was Roberto Bagu and Keith Triandofilos. Joe Foley and Roberto Bagu assisted. Richie Gorman scored for Keohanes, with Mike Foley assisting.

In the Boys Under 12 tournament championship, Presidents Pharmacy shut-out Sen. Paul Harold Club, 1-0. Chris Brophy scored the game's lone goal unassisted. The whole President's Pharmacy team played well, as did the Harold Club, particularly Michael Flaherty, David Cedrone, Chris Hill, Paul Keane and Bernie Sharpe. Presidents Pharmacy had to win a semifinal game Saturday to reach the finals and they beat Balducci's, 2-0. Chris Brophy and Jake Costa scored the goals in that game for Presidents. The entire Balducci's team played well in the semifinal game.

In the afternoon's most exciting game, W. T. Hight eeked out a win over Italian International, 3-2, in a shootout, to capture the Boys Under 14 tournament championship.

Chris Abate and Chris Zilla scored for W. T. Hight and Bobby Austin and Jimmy Gemmell scored the Italian International goals. Jim Fennessy assisted on one goal. The shootout went through all five shooters on both teams before a winner was determined.

In the Boys Under 16 division Moors & Cabot beat O'Connell Gardens, 3-0. Kevin Duffy scored two goals and Ed Walty one for Moors & Cabot. Playing well for O'Connell Gardens were Terry McKinnon, Scott Raptelis, Mike Perkins and Jim Bille in goal.

That's Italian captured the Girls Under 14 tournament championship, beating North Quincy Cab, 1-0. Christine Gorman scored the game's sole goal, assisted by Nicole Cibbotti and Kristin McLeod. Lisa Marani was excellent in goal, as did the entire That's Italian team. North Quincy Cab also played well in defeat.

Adams Cleaners captured the Girls Under 12 crown, topping Roy Nelson Cleaners 3-0. Scoring for Adams Cleaners were Christine Kelly, Maureen Fewer and Karen Beguerie, with assists from Kim Hearn and Maureen Fewer. Christen Ellington, Kim Hearn and Kara Sullivan played well for Adams. The whole Roy Nelson team excelled.

The Villa Rosa topped Marina Bay, 3-0, to win the Girls Under 10 title with Angela Marinilli scoring two goals and Jennifer Nutley one. Jennifer O'Hare assisted on two goals. The whole Villa Rosa team played well. Wendy Lovendale, Jennifer Walker and Suzanne Nelson played well in the Marina Bay loss.

The Sub Corral topped Goodman Professionals, 1-0, to take the Girls Under 8 tournament championship. Rachael Lovendale scored the game's sole goal, assisted by Katie Landi. Kerry Foster played well in the field and Patricia Bertucci excelled in goal. Marshal Maloney, Lisa Renzi and Heather Wakelin played well for Goodman.

College Roundup: Dallas Eyes Leone Dudek Rolls On

North Quincy's Joe Dudek completed another outstanding season last Saturday with his 55th and 56th touchdowns of his career and his 22nd and 23rd of the season, but his Plymouth State College team lost to Union, 26-14, in the first round of the NCAA Div. 3 playoffs.

Dudek put the Panthers ahead with a one-yard plunge and later caught a TD pass from Larry Cummings. He wound up the year by rushing nearly 1400 yards.

The former North Quincy star is just 10 touchdowns away from tying the great Walter Payton for the all-time NCAA all-division record of 66 and if he comes back for his senior year he is expected to break that mark as well as the NCAA rushing record. He holds all the school and Div. 3 records for rushing and scoring.

Dudek has several pro scouts looking at him and they have been impressed with what they have seen.

Another North Quincy player with a number of pro scouts after him, Carl Leone, finished an outstanding college career at the U. of Maine last week when his Black Bears lost to Holy Cross, 24-7, in their final game.

Leone, who kicked a New England schoolboy record 51-yard field goal while at North Quincy, led the Bears in scoring this season with 44 points on 10 field goals and 14 extra points. He holds all the Maine kicking records.

With so many NFL kickers having rough seasons, it appears Leone, who is being pursued by the Dallas Cowboys among other teams, has an excellent chance of making it to the pros, which is his No. 1 goal.

Apaches Win Youth Football Title

The North Quincy Apaches won the Quincy Youth Football League championship and completed an undefeated season

Sunday when they defeated the defending champion Quincy Post Panthers, 20-0, at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Panthers, who have won 19 league titles, lost all three games to the Apaches this fall. The Apaches finished with a 9-0 record, while the Panthers finished at 6-3.

Koch Club Basketball Program Cancelled Thursday

The Koch Club has cancelled its weekly basketball program for Thanksgiving Day, at the Atlantic Middle School gymnasium in conjunction with the school custodian holiday schedule.

The program will resume Nov. 29. Children seven to 12 years are welcome to participate.

Deadline for registration of new members is Dec. 6 when teams will be formulated for the 1984-85 playing season.

In its 36th year, the league meets Thursday night through March when an awards program completes the season.

Simone Koch is director of the recreation program, assisted by Robert Woods, Edward Leary, George Woodman, Bob Austin, Joe Nelson, Tim Healy, Tom Bowes and Mike Bowes.

Bantam B's Top Belmont

Quincy's Bantam B team defeated Belmont, 4-1, with Rich Golden scoring two goals and Mike Toland and Wayne Chambers one each.

Toland and Brian Kelly had two assists apiece and Rich Golden and Chuck Quigley one each. Mark Rudnisky and Ralph Richardson played strong defense.

Runge In Key Role At Bridgewater

The Bridgewater State College women's basketball team is rated the third best Div. 3 team in New England in a pre-season coaches' poll.

Based on the fact that the team has gone to the NCAA tournament the last two seasons and has four of its five starters backs, seems to make this a logical choice.

And one of the major reasons for the Lady Bears' high rating is sophomore Joanne Runge of Quincy, last year's ECAC Rookie of the Year. The 5-6 guard, who runs the offense, led the team in assists with 95 and steals with 72 last season.

The Bridgewater women have their toughest schedule with the addition of Worcester Tech and Kean College of New Jersey.

The Eyes have it.

PREVENT DEADLIEST CHILD KILLER

More children die from accidents than from the next three causes of child deaths put together (cancer, congenital malformations, and pneumonia). Accidents just don't happen. They are caused - and nine out of ten are preventable.

Obviously, I can't go into the multitude of prevention methods in this space, but I think it would be helpful to know when they are most apt to take place.

ACCIDENTS HAPPEN MOST OFTEN...when a child is tired, or hungry.... when any hazard - a sharp knife, a busy street, a bottle of aspirin - is too accessible...when parents judge a child to be hyperactive...when the mother is ill...when a child is in the care of a person unfamiliar with his routine....when there is no safe place to play...when the relationship between parents is continually tense...when surroundings change, often at moving or vacation time...when other members of the family are ill or the center of a mother's attention.

The long-stalemate negotiations between the School Committee and the Quincy Education Association moved off center last week but QEA President Mary Curtin warned there are big hurdles still ahead.

She characterized as "exceedingly small" the School Committee's offer of a 3 per cent teachers pay hike this year and 3 per cent next year under a two-year contract.

The best previous offer was reported to have been zero per cent the first year and 5 per cent in each of the next two years under a three-year contract.

"The offer is very small," said Curtin, "but it is not a zero offer and it is not subject to funding. That leaves talking space. I hope it is not a final offer. I hope we can edge it up."

Another negotiating session has been scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 27, at 6:30 p.m.

Curtin said she expects that the School Committee will place on the table the language it would like to see in the contract covering the 64 union employees at Quincy Junior College.

"The junior college has been ruled illegal last week by the State Supreme Court but Curtin said the ruling does not apply to those selective work to rule actions that have been taken in Quincy."

"Work to rule remains a viable alternative," she said.

serious financial problems," she said. "The committee will want major changes in the contract language on wages, hours and working conditions. It is our guess they will propose a cut in pay."

She indicated that that would meet resistance from the QEA.

"The junior college will be a big hurdle," said Curtin, "but I'm optimistic."

The teachers' contract expired last Aug. 31 and, as negotiations dragged on, the QEA spoke of certain job actions that might be taken to move them along. They are forbidden by law to strike.

In past negotiations, members of the QEA have used the "work to rule" strategy of performing only those tasks specified in the contract and refusing tasks out of hours.

Some job actions were ruled illegal last week by the State Supreme Court but Curtin said the ruling does not apply to those selective work to rule actions that have been taken in Quincy.

"Work to rule remains a viable alternative," she said.

West Quincy Man Charged In Knife Point Robbery Try

A 28-year-old West Quincy man was arrested after police said he held a knife in the mouth of a 12-year-old boy during a robbery attempt at the 7-Eleven store on Franklin St., South Quincy.

Police said the man entered the store about 1:30 a.m., put the knife in the boy's mouth and said, "If you don't give me what I want the kid is dead."

A passerby saw what was happening and called police. When they arrived, the man ducked behind the counter where police found him. They said they recovered a butter knife.

Asks $25,000 For Architect

Mayor To Seek Police Station Modernization

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Francis X. McCauley is finally moving to do something about the city's antiquated police station at the corner of Sea St. and Southern Artery.

McCauley said Tuesday he plans to submit an appropriation order at Monday's City Council meeting for $25,000 to pay an architect for a proposal to renovate or enlarge the more than 50-year-old building.

He said an estimated cost of the work would be part of the architect's plan.

More than two years ago, an angry Police Chief Francis X. Finn stood up at a City Council meeting and said that the deteriorating conditions of the station was such that he was considering resigning.

"We can't go on much longer with a police station that sinks," he said. "It is putrid. The smell is beyond belief and it's not the fault of the custodians. The cell block goes back to the turn of the century. The boilers have not worked in some time."

"How much more are we going to take?"

Not much, said McCauley.

"There will be a substantial renovation of the station," said the mayor. "There is even talk of enlarging the building. The architect will make a recommendation and come up with a cost figure."

McCauley said the city's Designer Selection Committee met in October and selected the firm of Di-Nisco, Kretsch and Associates to do the job.

The $25,000 to pay them, said the mayor, will come from the money received for the sale of excess school buildings.

"We want to get the architects going as quickly as we can," he said.

Two years ago, Finn proposed that the abandoned Pollard School on Southern Artery be remodelled to become a new police station but local residents raised such a storm of protest that the plan was abandoned.

Job Action Still Possible In School Contract Talks

Contract negotiations between the School Committee and the Quincy Education Association made progress last week but QEA President Mary Curtin said some sort of job action by teachers is still a possibility.

The negotiating teams were scheduled to meet Tuesday night and a general membership meeting of the QEA was set for yesterday (Wednesday) at 6:45 a.m. at the Bryan VFW Post.

"We will update the members on negotiations and outline our course of action and see what the members want to do," said Curtin. "A job action is still possible."

Meanwhile, the leaders of all unions of city employees met Monday in the office of John Keefe, head of the Hospital, Library and Public Employees Union.

"We wanted to find out where we all are at the bargaining table so that we can pull together," said Curtin.

Another such meeting of union leaders is planned for Monday, Dec. 10.

School Committee and QEA negotiators met for three hours Wednesday, Nov. 14, and Curtin said they "made a lot of movement within the package. I'm hopeful."

But, she added, "work to rule remains a viable alternative."

Work to rule means that, instead of striking illegally, teachers would do only those tasks prescribed in the contract.

At Veterans Park Dedication Kelly Proposes Memorial To Houghs Neck Seniors

Former City Councillor Leo J. Kelly has suggested that a memorial honoring the senior citizens of Houghs Neck be added to the growing number of plaques raised on the site of the old Great Hill School.

Kelly, who resigned from the Council to take a post with the Quincy Housing Authority last January, spoke at the dedication of the Houghs Neck Veterans Memorial Park on the site.

He recalled that the last dedication in the area was the renaming of Gregory McKinnon Playground and John Brill Field in memory of two Houghs Neck youngsters who died in accidents.

"I would like to suggest," he said, "that more memorials be erected in this area to honor other groups of people from Houghs Neck—perhaps the senior citizen who has done so much for all of us."

McKinnon Playground and Brill Field, he said "honored all the young boys and girls from Houghs Neck, past, present and future. Today we pay tribute to yet another group of dedicated people, the veterans."

"Who is to say that a young man farming this very land did not go off to fight in the Revolutionary War or that later on people from here served in the Civil War.

"Today we honor those unknown men in those long ago conflicts as well as the Spanish American War, the First World War, the Second World War, the Korean War, the Vietnam War and all conflicts in between.

"We honor all the men and women from Houghs Neck who served their country in its time of need."

Knife Bandit Robs Station

A knife-wielding robber held up Scavo's gas station, 552 Willard St., West Quincy, Sunday, and escaped with some $50 in receipts.

The station attendant, Bob Dinsdale, told police the man entered the station about 3:30 a.m., flashed a pen knife and said, "Give me the money or I'll slice you."

Dinsdale gave him the $50 and the man fled south on Willard St.

He was described as white, about 25, 5-foot-5, 130 pounds with black hair and wearing blue jeans and a blue jacket.

Christy's Market Request Continued One Week

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue for one week a request for a common victualer license for Christy's Market, Inc., Hancock and Moscow Sts., North Quincy.

The matter was continued so that applicant

Christy's Market of Scituate could more fully complete the application.

Health Commr. Dr. M. Grace Hussey also requested a list of what was to be sold.

Hours for the store would be 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. according to a representative of Christy's, who also said the C.V. license was for take-out items such as coffee.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald reminded the representative that landscaping must be maintained at the Wollaston store.

Safety Study Sought After Rash Of Fatafs

The City Council has suggested that a study be made of safety in Quincy's streets in the wake of a rash of fatal accidents in recent weeks.

"The city may be growing faster than our ability to control the traffic situation," said Council President James A. Sheets.

Sheets introduced a resolution asking Mass

Electric to conduct a streetlight survey in the area of Willard and Hayden Sts., West Quincy, where Daniel Shea, a prominent Democratic politician, was fatally injured.

Councillor Joanne Condon wanted the survey expanded to include studies of traffic patterns and enforcement on streets where there have been a lot of accidents.

"The MDC has totally eliminated fatalities on Quincy Shore Drive with enforcement and new rules," she said. "The city should do something to make the streets safer."

WQ Residents To Meet To Discuss Goldie's

Residents of the St. Moritz section of West Quincy will meet Monday, Dec. 3, at 7 p.m. to discuss strategy for a Zoning Board of Appeals hearing on a proposed office building on Goldie's junk yard.

The residents' meeting will be held at the National Fire Protection Association building on Batterymarch Park.

The Board of Appeals meets Wednesday, Dec. 5 to give Adams Realty Trust a second chance to explain its plan to construct a $20 million complex, including two five-story office buildings, on the site.

"The residents want to discuss the new submission and determine their position at the Board of Appeals hearing," said City Councillor James A. Sheets.

On Sept. 11, the Board of Appeals denied Adams Realty Trust a variance to build in the residential area. The junk yard's variance was voided by the sale of the land.

Since Sept. 11, however, there have been a series of meetings between residents and the realty trust and the Planning Board gave its permission for the trust to resubmit the variance to the Board of Appeals.

Michael Saint, spokesman for Adams Realty Trust, said no one appeared at the Planning Board meeting to speak against the resubmission and the Planning Board vote was unanimous.

La Paloma Withdraws Beer, Wine Request

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The owners of La Paloma Mexican Restaurant in Wollaston withdrew their request for a beer and wine license Tuesday after it became evident the License Board was not ready to approve the action.

Barbara R. Mallernee, an owner and manager of the restaurant at 183 Newport Ave., was allowed to withdraw without prejudice the request for a common victualer-wine and malt beverage license when board members said they would like input from Ward

Councillor John Lydon.

Miss Mallernee said she had briefly spoken to Lydon before he left town.

Board members also explained that they had earlier denied a similar request from a nearby pizza shop because of problems with youths and alcohol.

"We have to be consistent," said Police Chief Francis Finn. "We can't treat people like fish and fowl."

"I'd like to hear from the councillor. If the neighbors have changed their mind about a wine license in the area, I'd like to know."

Miss Mallernee said she would like the license to accommodate customers who include members of the Mexican Consulate.

"We don't have kids in the restaurant," said Miss Mallernee, "and we're not about to turn it into a bar."

No opposition was registered at the meeting. The board could not continue the request because the 30-day time limit for acting on such requests has almost expired.

The owners can reapply at any time.

Tax Collections Reach $1.4 Million

The first five working days of tax collections has netted the city $1,411,000.

"It's a little less than we expected," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley, "but the bills went out at an odd time just before the Thanksgiving Day holiday."

The tax bills, 23,000 of them, went into the mail Friday, Nov. 16, about a month and a half late due to delays in updating 100 per cent valuations.

They must be paid by 4:30 p.m., Monday, Dec. 17, or the delinquent faces a 14 per cent annual interest charge retroactive to

Nov. 17.

McCauley urged those who have not yet paid their taxes to do so as soon as possible.

Memorial To Honor Late Charles Hedges

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has formed a committee to establish a Memorial to the late Charles W. Hedges, who served Quincy as a city councillor, state representative, state senator and Norfolk County sheriff.

Members of the committee are James Eddy, a close friend of Hedges; City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath; Peter Kenney, the mayor's executive secretary; Joyce Baker, Republican activist; and Recreation Director Barry J. Welch, who will serve as chairman.

"Mr. Hedges provided residents of Quincy with many years of public service as a soldier and an elected official," said McCauley. "This memorial in his honor is most appropriate and would provide overdue recognition for his dedication to our community."

The mayor said the memorial will be dedicated in the Wollaston area in the spring of 1985 and he urged those who wish to help in any way to contact a committee member or the mayor's office.

Handicapped Group To Honor McCauley

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has been selected to receive an appreciation award from the New England Association of Handicapped Contractors.

The award will be presented in ceremonies tomorrow (Friday) from 7 p.m. to 12 midnight in the facility club at U Mass-Boston in Dorchester.

"Your courtesies, kindness and concern to insure equity and fairness to all regardless of any handicap is well recognized and sincerely appreciated," wrote Association Chairman David F. Tilly Jr. "Concerned and compassionate individuals such as yourself have enabled us to convince the skeptics that 'Hire the Handicapped' is not a mere slogan but sound business practice."

McCauley was instrumental in establishing a Commission on Handicapped Affairs in Quincy.

Liquid Gas Controls

The City Council has passed an ordinance that will enable the city to control the transportation of liquid chlorine to the MDC sewage treatment facility at Nut Island.

Hereafter, the truck delivering the dangerous gas will have to be escorted since the route goes through several school zones. The MDC had no objection to the new ordinance.

"The MDC thinks this is not a bad idea," said Councillor Michael Cheney, who introduced the ordinance. "As a matter of fact, several other communities are adopting it."

City Charter All Over The Place

The City Charter Study Committee will get back to work as soon as a complete copy of the charter has been dug up to study.

When the committee, headed by Ron Iacobucci first met a few weeks ago, members discovered there is no such thing as a copy of the city's Plan A charter, on a bookshelf that could be picked up and referred to.

"The city's charter," says Iacobucci, "is a collection of laws passed by the legislature and accepted by the city." But, there is no book or booklet entitled "Quincy City Charter."

The model for the charter was approved in 1955 after Quincy voted to divorce the Plan E form of government after a stormy marriage and return to Plan A.

"The charter really hasn't been examined in almost 30 years," says Iacobucci. "It's obsolete in some respects."

He notes, for example, that the 1955 version of the charter calls for nine councillors elected at-large as they were during Plan E's city manager form of government. It's now three at-large and six ward councillors.

Under the 1955 version, a vacancy in the City Council would be filled by a vote of the remaining eight councillors.

KELLY

But when Ward I Councillor Leo Kelly resigned early this year the remaining councillors didn't want to pick his successor and thought the people of Ward I should make that selection in a special election. So, a special act to amend the charter was passed to allow it.

Asst. City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie, a member of the committee, is now in the process of putting together the various loose laws on which Quincy's charter is based, make copies of them and staple them together for the committee so it can get back to work.

Iacobucci hopes that will be in the next couple of weeks.

"I don't think anyone on the committee is opposed to the Plan A form of government," says Iacobucci. "But we feel it should be updated and placed intact into a book for easy reference. Right now the charter is scattered all over the place."

Iacobucci says he doubts that the committee will come in with any strong recommendations such as making the mayor's term four years instead of two.

The committee, he says, could make a recommendation for a referendum asking voters: Should the charter be reformed?

That would be done in time, he says to get the question on the 1985 city election ballot.

A "yes" vote would create a Charter Commission. On the same ballot would be candidates for the Mass. Planners To Tour Quincy

The Massachusetts Section of the American Planning Association will hold its monthly luncheon meeting Tuesday, Dec. 4, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Gazelle Restaurant in North Quincy.

The meeting will include a tour of downtown Quincy development sites and the planned Crown Colony office park complex in West Quincy from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. Quincy planning Director James Lydon will speak on "Planning and Development in Quincy," during a discussion period from 11 a.m. to 12 noon prior to lunch at the Gazelle.

"This is a good chance for Quincy to talk about what we have done and how the city has changed to a group of other professionals," said Susan Spelios of the Planning Department.

"It recognizes the things that have gone on here and it is a good sign that others are interested in what we have done."

Morrissey Office Hours Friday

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey will hold office hours for those who are interested in filing new legislation Friday, Nov. 30, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. in the conference room at City Hall.

Morrissey said he will be available to discuss procedures for filing and any other problems his constituents may be experiencing with state agencies.

Charter Commission. Anyone could run with the top nine vote-getting elected. The commission would then study possible reforms.

If that were the case, next year's ballot could be one of the longest in the city's history.

The Charter Commission, on the other hand, might just decide to bring proposed minor changes before the City Council for consideration.

The committee in addition to Iacobucci and MacRitchie includes:

Rep. Robert Cerasoli, City Councillor Michael Cheney, School Committee member Nicholas Verenis, Arthur Foley, administrative aide to Francis McCauley, City Clerk John Gillis, former Mayor Thomas Burgin, former Councillor Leo Kelly, Rona Goodman of the Quincy League of Women Voters, Ethel McClelland of the City Wide Parents and Arthur Chandler, Quincy Citizens Association.

Oh, by the way: the committee has also found that the city ordinances have not been revised and bound since 1974 and plan to tackle them next.

SPEAKING OF IACOBUCCI, he was probably the envy of every politician in the city during Sunday's Christmas Festival Parade.

ORR

Iacobucci, is a close friend of Bobby Orr who was grand marshal for the parade. And Iacobucci served as aide to the grand marshal and got to ride in an open car with No. 4 along the jammed two and a half-mile parade route.

That's what is known as good political exposure. Iacobucci, who is expected to run again for City Councillor at-large says Orr will return to Quincy in January to "attend an event for me."

Now, what could that be?

MAYOR Francis McCauley is hosting a Holiday Gala fund-raiser tonight (Thursday) from 5:30 to 8 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. Tickets are $25 per person.

No official announcement like "I'm a candidate for re-election" is planned. McCauley will say only that he's "preparing for 1985."

McCauley is inviting as guests Sen. Paul Harold, Reps. Thomas Brownell, Michael Morrissey and Robert Cerasoli and City Councillors.

That includes, Councillor Joanne Condon, who is expected to run against His Honor next year.

A PRE-HOLIDAY dance fund-raiser for Senator Paul Harold will be held Friday night, 8 to midnight, at the Viking Club, Quincy Ave., Braintree. Tickets are $10 each and will be available at the door. Co-chairmen are Michael Linnane and Paul Hogan.

Reduction Sought In Fire Inspection Fees

The City Council last week heard a suggestion that the fee for a Fire Department inspection of gasoline stations be reduced from $100 to $50.

"The $100 fee is unreasonable for a small station owner," said Councillor Michael Cheney. But Councillor Stephen J. McGrath said he thought $50 was still too much and informed the Council that he would amend the ordinance to read $25 when the Ordinance Committee meets on it.

"I question if the value of the inspection is worth even $50," he said.

Councillor Theodore P. DeCristofaro said he favors leaving the fee where it is.

"Are we going to start something we will not be able to stop?" he asked. "Where do we stop? Will we go on to reduce all the fees for licenses and permits?"

Parking Rate Increase Proposed In Vane St. Lot

The City Council last week heard a suggestion that parking meter fees be raised from five cents to 10 cents an hour in the Vane St. parking area and the rest of the North Quincy business district.

"This is being done at the request of the business people of North Quincy," said Councillor Joanne Condon.

The Council also sent to its Ordinance Committee a proposal that there be a two hour limit to parking in the Vane St. lot.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Manager

THE OPEN LISTING

QUESTION: I understand that with an "open" listing, you can list property with many Realtors and pay only the one who sells it. Why don't more sellers use it?

ANSWER: As the name implies, the "open" listing is open to everyone. You agree to pay a Realtor's commission if, and only if, he sells the property. But you reserve the right to hire other Realtors or to sell the home yourself.

It sounds good on paper, but, frankly, it's the most ineffective arrangement to make if you REALLY want to sell your home in a reasonable time and except the Realtor's full expenditure of time and advertising money. At any juncture, he can lose the sale to another Realtor or to the owner himself!

AN OPEN LISTING SOUNDS GOOD on paper but can be ineffective if you want to sell in the most advantageous way.

City Council Approves Plan E Ordinance

The City Council, sitting as the Ordinance Committee, approved most of the Plan E reorganization ordinance with little opposition, even from Councillors David J. Crowley and Frank N. Oreutt, two of the most vocal critics of the Plan E form of government.

Crowley did vote against the creation of a Department of Finance and Oreutt opposed the consolidation of the Treasurer's and Tax Collector's Offices but they generally voted with their colleagues on other organizational matters.

City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. reiterated his intention to appoint Mildred I. Tyler, the present treasurer-collector, and Frederick W. Small, the present tax collector, as deputy collector and director of the budget.

Deegan said he also would name Auditor Alexander Smith as director of the Department of Finance in addition to his duties as auditor.

RAISE SOUGHT

The Quincy City Employees Association asked for a flat cost of living pay increase of between 7 and 8 percent and City Manager Deegan estimated it would add about $386,000 to the 1951 budget and boost the tax rate by some $2.70 per thousand.

"The request is one of the most reasonable requests I have ever received from an employee group," said Deegan. "They are simply asking for a flat cost of living increase based on the commodity price index. I was pleasantly surprised that they did not pick a figure out of thin air."

DRAFT BOARDS SWITCHED

Col. Chester I. Furbish of Wollaston, state selective service director, announced a new plan for decentralization of draft boards which returned Quincy to the three board system that prevailed during the war. All three draft boards were to be located in the Adams Academy building.

Mary Sullivan Installed Toastmistress President

Mary Sullivan of Quincy was recently installed as president of the Quincy Toastmistress Club during ceremonies held at the Atlantic Neighborhood House.

Members from the Winchester, Needham and Bay State clubs helped Quincy celebrate the occasion.

Irene Stark of the Needham Club was the installing officer. As she installed each officer, she charged them to fulfill the duties of their office to be the best of their ability.

Also installed were: Virginia Perry of Norwell, vice-president; Florence Veronneau of North Quincy, secretary; Arloa Webber of North Quincy, treasurer; and Mary Meany of Hingham, club representative.

Miss Sullivan, in her acceptance speech, stated the theme for the year, "Reaching Beyond Your Grasp". In part, the president said, "We are a club made up of women with different skills and abilities, but we have one thing in common—we underestimate ourselves and frequently turn a blind eye to the unique talents we possess."

"So tonight I am issuing a challenge to each of us as individuals to take the NEXT STEP."

In closing, the president said "as we move through this coming year and accomplish each goal, the confidence we develop will be a result of a single-minded determination to never give up—that is, to always reach beyond our grasp."

A silver service tea rounded out the evening's program.

Anyone interested in more information about Toastmistress and what it can do for you may call 328-0214.

Stay Alive!

By John Valante

DANGER IN THE FIREPLACE

Normally, the safest place for a fire in the home is in the fireplace. But, unfortunately, it doesn't always stay inside like it should.

A few years back, a Massachusetts family of six perished in a twenty-one room mansion when a smoldering piece of wood was blown from a fireplace onto a rug during the night. Ironically, screens had been ordered for all fireplaces in the house, but had not arrived. Never - but never - operate a fireplace without a screen, regardless of how romantic it may be. It's your best protection from blowing sparks or coals.

Do you need a chimney sweep? Soot burns heartily, and if not removed annually, you're likely to have a chimney fire that can creep through cracks in the chimney wall or send a shower of sparks onto the roof. If the roof is of combustible wood shingles, for example, or if the chimney is unlined, the danger increases.

Advent Communion Services At Bethany Church

To mark the beginning of Advent there will be two worship services Sunday, Dec. 2, at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Centre.

Holy Communion will be celebrated at 9 a.m. in the chapel, and at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon at both services, entitled "A Cup of Cold Water", based on scriptural texts in II Samuel 23:13-17 and in Matthew 10:40-42.

The lay scripture readers will be Marion Lockwood in the chapel and Olive Hodgkins in the sanctuary. The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will serve as liturgist at both hours.

The Chancel Choir, under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will sing as the offertory anthem an old English carol, "People Look East".

A large Advent wreath and candles, created by Eleanor Shattuck and Jean Smart, will be in the chancel of the sanctuary. A set of brass cups for the Advent candles will be dedicated in loving memory of John Anderson, Ida Louise Anderson, John Matthew Mattson and Elin Pauline Mattson, presented by their granddaughter, Pauline Anderson.

Following the dedication, Miss Anderson will conduct the brief Advent ceremony and light the first candle.

Exeter Sanger will be a special guest at Bethany and will speak at both services on the ministry of the Quincy Crisis Center. A special offering will be received and pledge cards made available, toward the purchase of a new mobile unit for the OCC.

Miss Sanger will also speak more informally and answer questions at an Open Forum Sunday, 11:30 to 12:15 in the Bethany Chapel.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through eighth grade. The senior high class, 9th through 12th grades, will meet at 9 a.m. with Robert R. Peoples, Jr., teacher.

Nursery care will be provided for babies and toddlers at the 10 a.m. hour.

At 11 a.m., there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor. Families and individuals from the community are welcome to share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

The service will also be broadcast over South Shore radio station WJDA, 1300 kc., at 11 a.m. by delayed tape.

For information about Bethany Church and its ministry and programs, contact Pastor Arnold or the church office at 479-7300.

Rededication Rite Sunday At Wollaston Lutheran

Wollaston Lutheran Church will hold a special rite of rededication Sunday, Dec. 2, at the 10 a.m. service to make the completion of a number of improvements and repairs to their church building.

Over the past year, a new roof has been installed over the classroom wing, a new boiler installed, and a new "mixture" rank added to the pipe organ.

Also, the entire interior of the nave and sanctuary as well as the upper floor classrooms and offices have been painted, the exterior of the church building repaired and painted, and new carpeting installed in the Sunday School rooms.

The "facelift" of the building was made possible by a bequest from the estate of the late Paul and Catherine Twarok.

Expenses not covered by the Twarok legacy will be solicited from congregation members over the next three years through establishment of the "Building Improvement Fund".

Wollaston Lutheran Church has been a part of the Quincy community since 1931. Its present structure dates from 1951, at which time the design was labeled "modern".

The dedication folder states: "The principles which guided the architect and building committee were worshipfulness, simplicity, and usefulness."

The public is invited to worship with the congregation on Dec. 2 - or to visit the church.

Musical Advent Services At H.N. Congregational

There will be three advent services featuring special Christmas music beginning Tuesday, Dec. 4, at 7:30 p.m. at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave.

Featured will be knitted and crocheted items, crafts, plants, books and toys, attic treasures, cheese, preserves and food.

There will be a Midway, face painting and Puppet Shows at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. for the children.

The Snack Bar will be open in the morning and donuts and coffee will be served. A chowder and sandwich luncheon will be served beginning at 11:30 a.m.

The Necessity of the Separation of Church and State" was the title of the sermon preached Sunday morning at the First Church of Squantum at both services by pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langwin.

The sermon was based on the life and experiences of Roger Williams, who had to flee from Massachusetts in 1636 because of the religious persecution to which he was being subjected by the Puritans in Boston.

Williams was a Separatist and a Pilgrim, having served as a teaching minister of the Plymouth Church from 1631 to 1634.

After he had made his perilous mid-winter journey to Rhode Island, Williams founded the settlement of Providence which was dedicated to religious liberty for all. It was also there in Providence that he helped to organize the First Baptist Church in America.

This was the fourth sermon in a series on "The Pilgrim Faith" in which the life of a particular Pilgrim was highlighted each week.

Hymns sung during the service included "Now Thank We All Our God," "Come Ye Thankful People, Come," and "O Beautiful for Spacious Skies." The Chancel Choir sang the anthem "Old Hundredth Psalm Tune" as arranged by Ralph Vaughan Williams and "The Lord Bless You and Keep You" by Peter C. Lutkin.

Mary Ruth Scott was the organist and directed the choir. Another organist, Mindi Hurd, played a "Duet" by Handel for the offertory.

Greeters for the morning were Ida and Robert Von Riegers.

Ushers at the first service were Deborah Stohlberg and Sarah Midram; at the second service, Stewart Scott and Tore Wallin.

The fellowship hour after the service was hosted by Evelyn Ahearn and Ruth Swenson.

This Sunday, the first Sunday in Advent, there will be two morning services again: the guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m. The sermon at each service will be different.

Sunday night the Board of Christian Education will sponsor the annual "Hanging of the Greens" for persons of all ages at the church.

That program will begin with worship at 6:30 p.m. to be followed by activities in which participants can help to decorate the church to make Christmas crafts to take home.

Refreshments will be served.

Holy Communion Sunday At Wollaston Congregational

The First Sunday of Advent at Wollaston Congregational Church will be marked by a celebration of Holy Communion.

The Rev. Mr. Elden D. J. Zuern will preach "For What Are We Hoping?" on the text, Mark 13:32-37. Carol McRae will be the Lay Reader.

The choir will sing

"Kyrie" from Francis Jackson's Service in G and "Gloria" from Everett Timcomb's Service in G Minor.

Men from the choir will sing "Zion Hears the Watchmen's Voices" from Cantata 140 of J. S. Bach. The church will welcome new members at this special service.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

There are many anxious times in everyone's life. We all experience much woe... and troubles... and strife... and disappointment... and tragedy. But then into every life comes a golden moment and everything seems worthwhile. The world is exactly right for a brief space of time.

What are these golden moments that we hold in our hearts forever? The golden moments... A man and woman standing in front of an altar promising to love and cherish each other... Holding a new baby in your arms... A child putting his arms around you and saying: "I love you"... Seeing your daughter in her first party gown... Watching a beautiful sunset... Looking into the radiant eyes of a new bride and seeing the happy smile of her father... These are but a few of life's golden moments. Once you have experienced them you are never quite the same again...

10 Quincy, North Stars In Hall Of Fame

By TOM SULLIVAN

It was a night of pure nostalgia last week at the Quincy Elks Home when the first Quincy and North Quincy Football Hall of Fame Night was hosted by the Elks.

Five former Quincy players, playing between 1944 and 1970, and five former North players, playing between 1933 and 1963, were the first inductees into the Halls of Fame.

In addition, four special awards were presented.

The following Quincy players were inducted:

Gaetano (Gay) Salvucci, who coached 16 years at American International College (he coached toastmaster John (Butch) Mahoney at AIC) and five years at Holy Cross. He played for the Green Bay Packers and scouts for the Canadian Football League.

Carl Leone, Quincy's athletic coordinator, who led Quincy to a big win over North in 1946, continued to star at Brown University and was North's head coach for eight years after six years as an assistant.

Jon Provost, one of Holy Cross' finest defensive backs who had 27 pass interceptions, second only to Mike Haynes and was All-New England and All-East. Provost was on the West Coast but sent a message. His plaque was accepted by his father.

Dan Raymond, an All-New England and All-East at Holy Cross, former city councilor and school committeeman. He is an attorney and a former assistant district attorney. He was an all-scholastic for three years at Quincy. He paid tribute to his high school coach, Jack Garrity.

Jim Colclough, an outstanding end at Quincy and Boston College, who played for the Boston Patriots for nine years, having 283 receptions for the Pats for over 5000 yards. He was All-Pro in 1962.

The following North players were inducted:

Pete Zoia, an outstanding back from 1933 to 1935, an all-scholastic and captain of the 1935 team. He played semi-pro ball and coached semi-pro ball for many years. He was the first president of the Quincy Youth Football League and has been active in the North Quincy Boosters Club.

Bob (Scotty) Whitelaw, who starred at Springfield College, is a former North assistant and is commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC).

Bo Lyons, one of the outstanding linemen in North history, played and later coached at Northeastern University, where he is now a professor. He was drafted by the Patriots. He paid a glowing tribute to longtime North teacher-coach Laroy (Curly) Rogers.

Tom Kiley, a standout North quarterback who was wounded in Vietnam, came back and is now first assistant to Atty. Gen. Frank Bellori.

Bill Curran, rated one of the finest running backs at North, had a brilliant career at Northeastern and was drafted by the Miami Dolphins.

The following special awards were presented:

Rogers, who is 81 but looks no older than 60, received his plaque from Lyons.

Frank Osborne, one of the organizers and longtime president of the Quincy Fathers Club, given his plaque by former Quincy Coach Hank Conroy.

The late Munroe McLean, longtime football and basketball coach at Quincy and athletic director. His daughter, Jean Ann McLean, a Quincy teacher, accepted the plaque from Marty Finnegan, McLean's assistant for several years.

The late Jack Donahue, North Quincy's first coach, who coached the Raiders for 28 years. Pete Zoia, one of Donahue's closest friends, accepted the plaque from Mahoney.

Many of the inductees' teammates and opponents were present. Introduced were former head coaches Conroy and Garrity of Quincy and Dave Burke of North, and several former assistant coaches. Among those introduced was Ted Sadowski, who completed 26 years as a North assistant on Thanksgiving. Ted has served under every one of North's head coaches.

Also introduced were Principals Lloyd Hill of Quincy and Peter Chrisom of North and Mario (Mike) Casale, a teacher-coach in the school system for more than 30 years.

Quincy coach Jack Raymer and North coach Ken McPhee, who organized the affair with Mahoney, introduced their assistant coaches and senior players.

"Many people have asked me why we didn't choose certain other former players for the Hall of Fame," said Mahoney.

"Remember, we put this together in just three weeks. I feel we picked some very deserving players and we hope to make this an annual event and to add players each year. We have a whole year to prepare for the next Hall of Fame Night. I hope we can accommodate a lot more people next year."

Quincy 14, North 12 For Raymer, An End To Frustration

By TOM SULLIVAN

It had been a frustrating season for Jack Raymer, in his first season as Quincy's head football coach.

Raymer, who had been an assistant coach at North Quincy for the past seven years, hadn't had a full squad available since the season started as the Presidents were hounded by a series of injuries.

But the frustration of Quincy's 'first season' were forgotten on Thanksgiving Day when the Presidents, rated the underdog, upset North Quincy, 14-12, before the largest crowd in several years, estimated at more than 13,000, at Veterans Memorial Stadium, to complete a successful 'second season'.

"This is by far the highlight of my coaching career," said the elated Raymer, who had been an assistant coach for 16 years. "I've said all along this is the finest group of boys I ever worked with and I'll repeat it now. No coach could have asked more from his players. This was our first game with every one available and we just proved there is no such thing as an underdog in this series. The records don't mean a thing in this game."

"We beat a real good team with outstanding coaches."

"Jackie is right, there is no such thing as an underdog when Quincy plays North Quincy," said a disappointed North coach Ken McPhee. "People were saying we should win easily because we had a better record but I told them they didn't know what they were talking about. Jackie did a great job preparing for this game and Quincy did a fine job of stopping our running attack. They deserved to win but I am very upset about one decision by the officials.

"When (Joe) Conti got off a bad punt, which looked like a big break for us, they said the ball hit one of our players and gave Quincy the ball on our 40. I am convinced the ball never hit our player and it ruined a good chance for us to try for the winning points. But, I'm not taking anything away from Quincy, they played a great game and deserved to win it."

The game shaped up as a battle between North's tremendous ground game and the passing of Quincy's Bill Shaughnessy, who had a brilliant season.

But the fired-up Quincy defense pretty well bottled up the Raider running game, while Shaughnessy had his share of the year passing, with just one completion in 10 attempts for nine yards.

North's Steve Kelly came into the game with five 100-plus games and 875 yards rushing, while Mike Barry came in with four 100-plus games and 855 yards rushing.

The Presidents did a remarkable job on Kelly, as he finished with a net loss of nine yards. Barry did much better with a net gain of 77 yards and had a 67-yard touchdown run called back by a penalty, one of three scores in the game nullified by penalties. But, when the going got tough, the Presidents stopped him in crucial situations.

On the other side, Shaughnessy, who had completed 14 of 21 passes for 168 yards at Brockton, was completely shackled, with his one completion and the interceptions.

With the passing game halted, Daron Tucker ran for 88 yards and Joe Cullen for another 66. Shaughnessy also had a couple of good runs and, on one occasion, on third down, he couldn't find a receiver and picked up 15 yards to enable Quincy to keep possession.

Shaughnessy came up with the biggest defensive play of the game. With North driving and less than two minutes to play, he made a fine leaping pass interception to save the game for the Presidents, who ran out the clock. Gerry Coughlin appeared all set to catch the long pass and would have had a sure touchdown only for Shaughnessy's great play.

Quincy finished at 5-4, while North wound up with a 7-3 record, the first time in several years that both teams had winning records.

Pat Calabro, Kevin Burke and Mark Callahan were outstanding on defense as was Peter Gangi and they were mainly responsible for stopping North's running game.

*Cooke also kicked a field goal.

Cullen and Tucker ran well and, despite his bad passing day, Shaughnessy again proved himself a real leader and came up with the game-saving play.

North's Dave Zuroms, who was forced to pass more than usual, completed eight of 19 passes for 70 yards but had two costly interceptions, the game-saving one by Shaughnessy and the other by John O'Callaghan, who returned it for the first touchdown. Rich Brooks passed to Kelly for 19 yards and, in a surprise move, Kelly passed perfectly to Rob Bradley for 25 yards.

As usual, Al DiBella was outstanding in the line and he and Tim Sullivan had interceptions. Sullivan did a good job returning punts.

Quincy had net gain of 171 yards on the ground to 96 for North. North had 14 first downs and Quincy 12.

Penalties hurt both teams, as each had good drives halted by costly infractions.

North received to open the game and was forced to punt. The punt was fumbled and North recovered on Quincy's 49. The Raiders picked up two first downs as Zuroms hit Coughlin twice for 11 and 14 yards, but the Presidents held and took over on their 26.

North held fast and Conti punted to the Raider 41. The Raiders again moved downfield as Zuroms passed to Kelly. Zuroms picked up 12 on a keeper and Quincy was penalized 15 yards for piling on. But again the Presidents dug in and took over on their eight.

Quincy picked up three first downs to start the second quarter and moved to the Raider 37 but DiBella intercepted Shaughnessy's pass on North's 49 after Shaughnessy had been sacked by Bradley. Following two losses, Zuroms' pass was intercepted by O'Callaghan, who returned it untouched 27 yards for the first score. Conti kicked the extra point.

On the third play after the kickoff Barry raced 67 yards for an apparent score but it was called back by an illegal motion penalty.

A few minutes later Quincy held on its 26. Tucker raced 26 yards. North was penalized 15 yards and Gerry Frazier, who hadn't carried much this season, raced around the left side for 13 yards and a touchdown on fourth down, culminating a 74-yard drive. Conti again kicked the point.

On the second play following the kickoff, Zuroms lateraled to Brooks, who hit Coughlin for 19 yards. Quincy was hit with a 15-yard penalty and Barry raced up the middle for 18 yards and a touchdown. Zuroms' pass try for the two-point conversion was no good.

Quincy was held and Conti, fumbling the pass from center, got off a short punt to his 37. North went from there to its second TD as Kelly crossed Quincy up by passing to Bradley for 25 yards. North picked up another first down on the one but was set back to the five and, on fourth down, Zuroms scored. Zuroms went back to pass for the tying two points but was hit hard by Burke and his pass was broken up.

North had the ball on its own 31, moved to its 46 and then Shaughnessy came up with his big interception, saving the game as the Presidents held on and ran out the clock.

Raymer praised his assistant coaches, Mark and Jeff Giordani, Peter Cassidy and Mitch Finnegan, while McPhee also lauded his aides, Ted Sadowski, Mark Mulvaney, Kevin Cobban and Pete Zoia.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Moment Of Silence For Jack Donahue

A moment of silence was observed in memory of the late Jack Donahue, North Quincy's first coach who coached the Raiders for 28 years, before the holiday game.

In a pre-game ceremony a ball was presented to Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone in recognition of his 30 years of service as an assistant coach and head coach at North Quincy and as athletic coordinator since 1969.

Press Box Empty Without Jack

The press box seemed empty at Veterans Memorial Stadium Thanksgiving morning without the late Jack Donahue reminiscing about his 28 years as North coach and greeting many of his former players.

Jack, who died Nov. 10, only 12 days before the 52nd game in the series, had seen every one of the previous 51 games, the first 28 as coach.

Track Club Dominates Region Junior Olympics

Quincy Track Club runners repeated their outstanding performances of three weeks ago and dominated the Region 1 Jr. Olympics held recently at Aponequet High School, qualifying 17 for the Nationals.

The Bantam girls (ages 9-10) again ran away with the team title, scoring 41 points. Amy Janus led the charge with a second place, followed by Lindsey McGovern, eighth; Katie O'Shea, ninth; Regina

Murphy, 10th; Susan Curtis, 12th; Maureen Fewer, 14th; Noreen Fewer, 16th; and Tricia Driscoll, 26th.

In the boys division Brian Klier finished in fifth place.

The Midget girls also won with 93 points. Sherrin Quinfilani and Kim Guastella finished together, tying for 13th place, followed by Nancy Sheey, 19th; Elizabeth Renda, 21st; Amanda Young, 26th; and Rachel Marshall, 50th.

Also qualifying for the Nationals were Finn Kelly, fourth in 15-16 boys, and Tricia Barrett, third in 15-16 girls.

Outstanding performances were turned in by Brian Barrett, 18th in 13-14 boys; Harry Morash, 18th in 15-16 boys; and Marybeth Powers, 24th in 15-16 girls.

The top 15 individuals in each division plus the top two scoring teams in each race qualified for the Nationals in St. Louis Dec. 8.

"These are the most qualifiers ever from Quincy in nine seasons of cross-country," said an elated coach Jeff Hennessy. "Our Bantam girls were tremendous, just a great bunch of kids, and our Midget girls have all improved so much. We beat a lot of people we've never beaten before and got a lot of great races out of a lot of people. I'll never forget this season, it was a tribute to the dedication of all our athletes and their parents. A season of hard work paid off and I'm proud of every one of them."

ENC Women's Volleyball Team Ends Successful Season

The Eastern Nazarene College women's volleyball team recently completed a highly successful 43-10 season and played in the NAIA National tournament in St. Joseph, Mo.

This was the Lady Crusaders' second straight year qualifying as one of the 16 teams representing the 329 NAIA member colleges and universities which sponsor volleyball in their athletic programs.

To earn a tournament berth Eastern Nazarene won both the NAIA District V and B1 District XIV championships. Alicia Thatcher of the Lady Crusaders was named to the NAIA All-District V team.

E. Nazarene also won the MAIAW (State) Class A title, defeating the University of Lowell, 3-1, and the University of Massachusetts (Amherst), 3-0. Named to the all-tourney team were hitter Lynn Norman and setter Kim Cubie.

ENC also won the Colonial Conference and Norman and Cubie were selected on the all-conference team.

Winning has become a tradition for ENC volleyball. Now in their 13th year under Dr. Nancy Detwiler, the Lady Crusaders have an impressive 297-94 record.

To maintain this quality they will try to replace the three seniors lost to graduation.

Curry's Doherty 'Coach Of Year'

Curry College football coach John ("Duffy")

Doherty, who turned a losing football program into a winning one in just two seasons, was named Coach of the Year in the N.E. Football conference.

Curry had not had a winning season since 1978 when Doherty took over the coaching reins in 1983. He directed this fall's team to a 7-2 record, the college's best, and a third place finish in the 10-team conference.

Quincy's Bob Barrett, Curry's outstanding sophomore quarterback, was given All-NEFC honorable mention honors.

Barrett had his second outstanding year as the team's field general, completing 82 of 167 passes (49.1 percent) for 1342 yards and eight touchdowns. In two seasons he has thrown for 2086 yards and 13 TDs.

Doherty and assistant coach Peter Chella of Quincy scouted the Quincy-North Quincy game Thanksgiving and hope to recruit some of the players off both squads. Incidentally, Doherty is the uncle of Billy Doherty, outstanding North Quincy lineman.

In Late Spring

Blue Cross Will Move Division Here

Blue Cross-Blue Shield is planning to move part of its Boston operation to Quincy, possibly to one of the new buildings on the Newport Ave. Extension in North Quincy, sometime in the late spring.

Paul DiNatale, spokesman for Blue Cross-Blue Shield, said 50 employees from the Boston office will make the move when the "professional relations and utilization review operation" relocates in Quincy.

Blue Cross-Blue Shield has 20 people working for the past year at 100 Newport Ave. but DiNatale said only that the company is looking at a building in Quincy. He wouldn't say where.

Most of the 50 employees who will be transferred to Quincy are already working for the firm, he said.

"This is a very small part of our operation," he said. "We are growing in number of employees because of new business. The space we have in Boston is extremely cramped now. We have outgrown it."

"Quincy is a good place to be. We are pleased by the coming move."

3 Fatal Accidents

McCauley To Seek Dangerous Streets Study

By TOM HENSHAW — Mayor Francis X. McCauley is ready to adopt the City Council's suggestion that an intensive traffic study be made of Quincy streets in the wake of a rash of fatal motor vehicle accidents.

McCauley said he plans to confer with Planning Director James Lydon to determine whether such a study can be done in-house and whether it could be paid for with federal or state funding.

Meanwhile, the City Council voted to ask the mayor to request the aid of state police in getting drunken drivers and speeders off the Quincy streets.

"Quincy police need temporary help," said Councillor Michael Cheney, who introduced the motion. "The message has not gotten through to them. Something drastic must be done."

The latest fatality came Sunday when Raymond T. Tausovich, Jr., 25, of 128 Willard St. West Quincy, was killed as his car crashed into a utility pole at a speed estimated by police at 70 to 75 miles an hour.

The scene of the accident, 266 Sea St., Merry-mount, is only a few doors from the spot in front of 300 Sea St. where William Cram, 40, of 75 Palmer St., Germantown, died Nov. 12 when the car in which he was a passenger hit a tree.

And on Sept. 14, Charles C. Peter, 22, of Houghs Neck, was killed at the corner of Sea and Babcock Sts. in the Willows area of Houghs Neck when the pickup truck in which he was a passenger hit a car headon.

"I am concerned," said McCauley, "when I see so many fatalities in such a short space of time. In 1982 and 1983 there were no fatalities. Now we have had three on Sea St. alone in the past three months."

The Mayor said he has written to Alan Mackey, the registrar of motor vehicles, asking that the registry conduct periodic patrols of the city's main thoroughfares.

"Years ago," he said, "it was common to see registry people on Sea St., Southern Artery and Hancock St. to watch for speeders. They haven't been here for a long time."

McCauley also pointed out to the registrar that the Christmas holiday traffic combined with the shortest days of the year make the next four weeks potentially more dangerous for motorists and pedestrians.

He noted that, with the reconstruction of the Southeast Expressway, the opening of the Quincy Adams MBTA station ramps and the coming of the Burgin Parkway Extension, traffic patterns have been disrupted in the city.

At the last City Council meeting, Councillor James A. Sheets introduced a resolution asking Mass Electric to conduct a street-light survey in the area of Willard and Hayden Sts., West Quincy, where Daniel Shea, a prominent Democratic politician, was fatally injured.

Councillor Joanne Condon, noting that the MDC has made Quincy Shore Drive a safe street with new rules and increased enforcement, suggested that the survey be expanded to include all streets where there have been bad accidents.

Board Approves St. John's School As Shelter For Homeless

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

As many as 20 homeless people a night will have a warm place to sleep and some food to eat this winter thanks to the efforts of a number of Quincy groups and a local church pastor.

The shelter, scheduled to open today (Thursday) will be located in the basement of vacant St. John's School, Phillips St., Quincy Center.

The License Board granted a temporary lodging house license Tuesday to St. John's Parish for the shelter. The license, effective until May 1, 1985, is needed by law because there will be more than four people assembled not related by blood, explained City Clerk John Gillis.

Fr. William McCarthy, St. John's pastor who is known throughout the city for helping the poor and the homeless, told the board he was approached with the idea of the shelter because of the space available in the school.

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition and Quincy Community Action Organization together with the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston acting as recipient received a $40,000 grant from the Department of Public Welfare for "alternative shelter."

A few days before the deadline for final confirmation of details, the offer of the use of the Quincy National Guard Armory was withdrawn for technical reasons.

After consulting with Archbishop Bernard Law, Bishop Daniel Hart, and priests of the parish, Fr. McCarthy offered the use of the lower level of the school building.

The $40,000 will go towards heat, staff at the five bed shelter at the Salvation Army in Quincy as well as St. John's School, a full-time case manager from Community Action Organization, part time coordinator, two meals a day and supplies.

Guests will arrive at the shelter at 7 p.m. and leave by 7 a.m. seven days a week. Dinner will be brought to the shelter by the Quincy Crisis Mobile Unit between 6:30 and 7 p.m. and breakfast will be served at 6 a.m.

There will be separate bathroom and sleeping areas for men and women.

The center will be staffed at all times. Persons loitering in the area will be asked to leave and the police will be called to enforce the rule.

The program provides for a full time case manager who will work with the residents

Plaque To Memorialize Victim At Swingle's

Paul Gooch, the 17-year-old Brockton youth who drowned swimming in Swingle's Quarry 18 months ago, will be memorialized with a plaque set in stone at the quarry's rim.

City Councillor James A. Sheets said the plaque and the stone have been prepared and will be set in place by a crane and a pathway bulldozed to the site.

The Gooch boy's body was never recovered despite the fact that the more than 300-foot-deep quarry was drained of water. It is in the process of being filled with clean fill.

Sheets said he and the Gooch family and Ed Monti, the West Quincy granite cutter, have been working on the memorial for the past four months.

"It is all accomplished," he said. "All we have to do is move it into place on the perimeter of the quarry on a site away from the main gate where there is no filling activity."

"Once it is in place, I assume that the Gooches will want some sort of a memorial service. At least, it will give them some tangible memorial as a tribute to their son."

McCauley To Seek More Open Space In Houghs Neck

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has instructed Asst. City Solicitor Jay MacRichie to look into the feasibility of rezoning a section of marshland in Houghs Neck to open space to prevent development.

The area is bounded by Rockland and Spring Sts. and is currently zoned Residence

A. McCauley said area residents have been concerned that the area will be filled in and single family homes constructed on the site.

MacRichie said a number of parcels at the site are city-owned and he is trying to trace the owners of private parcels in hopes they would donate them to the city.

The rezoning process would also involve the abandonment of several paper streets.

McCauley said he hopes to have the rezoning articles ready for the Planning Board and the City Council shortly after the first of the year.

Steve Crosby of Braintree reported to police Sunday that a video cassette recorder was stolen from his car while it was parked on Granite St. near Brewer's Corner, West Quincy.

Morrissey Moves For MDC Take-Over Of Willard St.

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey filed a bill in the State Legislature Tuesday that would enable the MDC to take control of Willard St. in West Quincy from the Furnace Brook Parkway interchange to Chickatawbut Rd. in Braintree.

The filing was only one item in a rush of developments aimed at alleviating a bad traffic situation on Willard St. and clearing the way for a $20 million office complex on the site of the old Goldie's junkyard on the Braintree line.

The Zoning Board of Appeals, which denied on Sept. 11 a variance for construction of the office complex, held a second hearing last night (Wednesday) amid indications that opposition to the project among nearby residents had cooled.

The residents met Monday night to discuss the matter and City Councilor James A. Sheets said: "There is still opposition to it but also there is a large number of people who support it. Some who opposed it before will not this time."

"Those who favor it," said Sheets, "see it as the best opportunity we have to get the MDC to take over Willard St. and bring traffic under control. This is the only way that we can get rid of the trucks that use it as a main thoroughfare."

Sheets said the residents agreed that there should be two stipulations in the variance.

"One would be that the sewage must go into the Braintree system to take the pressure off the Willard St. subsystem," he said. "Also, the variance would have to run with the developer, Adams Realty Trust, and not with the land itself."

One of the two proposed office buildings would be located on the Braintree side of the line and, said Sheets, a sewer connection to the Braintree system already exists. The permit process in Braintree is in a very preliminary stage.

"Adams will have to do a lot of hard work in Braintree," said Sheets. He praised the developer for the work that was done to win support of the residents and the residents themselves for their response to the overtures.

"The people initiated most of the activity here during a series of meetings over the past three months," he said. "I have indicated that I will go along with them."

Sheets filed four resolutions at Monday night's Council meeting as "a first step in an effort to bring traffic on Willard St. under control as well as we can."

One would reduce the speed limit on the street from West St. to the Braintree line from the current 40 miles an hour to 30 and another would have solid double yellow lines painted on the surface over the same stretch.

A third would install "No Passing" signs at appropriate locations between West St. and the Braintree line and the fourth would install a "Stop" sign on Hayden St. where it joins Willard St.

All four resolves were sent to the Traffic Commission for feasibility studies.

State Teachers Group Votes Quincy Censure

The board of directors of the Massachusetts Teachers Association has voted unanimously to censure the city of Quincy, the School Committee and Mayor Francis X. McCauley for their handling of the city's teachers.

Mary Curtin, president of the Quincy Education Association, said the effect of the vote is that the MTEA will advertise in its journals that "Quincy is not the kind of place that supports education."

New teachers will be discouraged from seeking jobs in Quincy, she said.

The Quincy teachers, whose contract expired Aug. 31, are in the midst of negotiating a new one but, said Curtin, the disenchantment with Quincy goes back much farther.

"The teachers are saying they have had it," she said. "Year after year it's too much."

The membership of the QEA voted to recommend censure last week even though Curtin spoke to them against the action.

"I urged caution," she said. "I am certainly not against them expressing their anger and frustration."

Curtin said the National Education Association will be asked to take the matter up at its meeting in Washington this week.

Marina Bay Hearings Dec. 17

The Planning Board will meet Monday, Dec. 17 to consider a subdivision plan and two zoning changes for Marina Bay, the site of the old Squantum Naval Air Station.

Under the new zoning plan, two parcels now zoned for Planned Unit Development (PUD) and Industrial

A would be changed to Business C so the area could be brought together for development.

The subdivision plan, which is currently undergoing review by the Massachusetts Environmental Policies Agency, calls for 900 units of housing and up to 900,000 square feet of an office space.

The entire parcel is about 400 acres and includes 101 units already approved on a 30-acre site on the bay.

The public hearings on the zoning changes will be at 6:35 p.m. and 6:40 p.m. and the hearing on the subdivision plan, which was recessed earlier, will be at 7:45 p.m.

Sewer Hookup Ban Moves Legislature

By TOM HENSHAW

A court order banning new commercial hookups to the MDC sewage system has moved the State Legislature to action on a bill designed to initiate a cleanup of polluted Boston Harbor.

Superior Court Judge Paul Garrity ordered the ban on new hookups last Thursday after the Legislature continued to drag its feet on a bill creating a sewer and water authority replacing the MDC's Sewer Division.

Trial on a proposal to place the MDC's Sewer Division in receivership opened before Judge Garrity Tuesday afternoon and was continued after MDC Commissioner William Geary testified.

Supreme Court Justice Joseph R. Nolan was scheduled to hear an appeal yesterday (Wednesday) by the state attorney general's office to lift Garrity's hookup ban.

If maintained, the ban would effectively halt new development in the 43 communities served by the MDC Sewer District.

"It would be a chaotic situation if we had to stop what we are doing," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley. "The bottom line is that we hope the Legislature realizes that Garrity means business."

On Monday, the Legislature decided just that.

A bill creating a new water resources authority with a mandate to clean up Boston Harbor was approved by the Legislative Ways and Means Committee and sent to the House floor.

In addition to the moratorium on hookups, Judge Garrity also threatened to place the MDC's Sewer Division under receivership so that the court could supervise the cleanup of the harbor.

McCauley noted that the city of Quincy originally asked for a moratorium on new MDC hookups in June, 1983, after it filed suit against the Commission to halt pollution of the harbor.

"The city's position is that we would like to see meaningful legislation come out of the Legislature," said McCauley. "Judge Garrity was using receivership as the stick approach to get the Legislature to act."

The Mayor said if the moratorium on hookups is maintained "it should not be retroactive so that projects already underway are impacted."

Some of the Quincy projects that would be badly hurt by a retroactive moratorium, he said, are: Captain's Cove, a $40 million, 303-unit residential complex on Town River Bay; and 200 Newport Ave., a $16 million eight-story office building that is scheduled to be completed in the spring.

Council Approves Police Station Study

The City Council Monday night quickly approved a request by Mayor Francis X. McCauley for $25,000 to hire an architect to design renovations or expansion of the Police Station.

Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson said the architect may even suggest that the city's best option is a new police station, although such a recommendation is unlikely.

Councillors could not conceal their pleasure over the order.

"One of the most difficult problems of the Police Department is the physical plant," said Councillor Richard J. Koch Jr. "I'm happy the mayor brought in this order so we can get started to improve it."

"The police station is a disgrace," said Councillor Patricia Toland. "The police are very courageous to have lived under those conditions for the past few years."

Anderson said the City's Designer Selection Committee has chosen the architectural firm of DiNisco, Kretsch and Associates to do the design work.

He said 18 firms asked for bid specifications on the contract and seven responded with proposals.

The study could be finished in time to meet budget action for 1986 if the Council passed it Monday night, said Anderson.

THE VIKING VENTURE tanker unloads 210,000 barrels of fuel oil—(8,220,000 gallons)—at the Town River Terminal of Quincy Oil, Inc. in Quincy. This is sufficient fuel oil to heat 9,000 homes for one year. According to a company spokesman, there will be several such shipments of oil as well as smaller shipments by barge throughout the heating season. Monitoring the unloading of the Viking Venture are, from left, William R. Prang, Chairman, CEO and President of Quinoll Industries, Inc., the parent company of Quincy Oil, Inc., John Jacobson, Operations Manager of the Town River Terminal, and Robert P. Board Approves Transfer Of Caesar's License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The License Board voted Tuesday to transfer the common victualer-all alcoholic license for Caesar's Luncheon & Delicatessen, Quincy Sq., from Constance T. Affsa to Thomas Norlin.

A Scituate resident, Norlin will change the name of the restaurant to Granite Rail Inc., according to the application.

Norlin, who also operates the Blue Mooring in Scituate, told the board he will expand the dinner menu for the restaurant to be open 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.

Atty. Gregory Sullivan, who represented Norlin, said the new owner hopes to attract customers looking for dinner after the theatre or movies.

Sullivan also said George Montillo plans to upgrade the entire block where the restaurant is located and Norlin plans to work with him to that end.

Reader's Forum Heartened by GOP Voter Increase Here

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a registered Republican, I was heartened to see those recent statistics showing that of the most recent registered voters in Quincy, Republican registration is up to one-third. While the GOP is far from a political threat in most of the older urban centers in eastern Massachusetts, something is definitely starting.

Democrats may outnumber registered Republicans here in registered voters nearly five-to-one but Republicans are gaining in electoral support. Quincy does have a Republican for mayor, only a few Massachusetts communities can say that. Quincy was a former Republican stronghold and could return to that tradition if statistics mean anything.

The Republican Party is becoming the Growth and Opportunity Party for working people, homeowners and middle-class taxpayers and sooner than most think, the GOP will make Massachusetts a two-party state again, providing the political balance of power necessary for better and wiser government.

The Massachusetts Republican Party is already getting geared up for the 1986 statewide election, lining up potential candidates, holding campaign schools and the like.

The only way to rebuild the party is from the bottom up. Hopefully, there will be a few free rides given to Democrat state rep and senate candidates in two years.

The only way to rebuild the party is from the bottom up. Hopefully, there will be a few free rides given to Democrat state rep and senate candidates in two years. Making a dent on Beacon Hill is a good beginning. Taking small steps will eventually lead to more and bigger victories statewide.

Closer to home, the Quincy Republican Party has hopes of rebuilding the party back into municipal power as well. Recent activism by the Quincy Republican City Committee will increase ward committees get involved in the upcoming 1985 city elections.

Hopefully, there will be a strong Republican presence in the municipal elections next year. Giving local Democrats free rides may be a thing of the past as the Republicans begin to fight back with their own candidates for a change.

The times they are a-changing and the people can only prosper by the change.

Registered Republicans may never outnumber Democrats but at least they will have enough people to put a strong fight and force the voters to look at a whole spectrum of political thought.

Reagan's landslide and Shamie's good showing in Massachusetts says Republicans are finally back in the ballgame again after sitting on the bench for years.

As a Republican activist, I see a positive future for the GOP as we get out our message. The more conservative approach to government offered by the Republican Party is more in tune with the vast majority of voters.

As a former Baptized Democrat, I finally swung over to the Republicanism and I know it wasn't easy but felt it was the right thing to do.

The Republican Party has become the natural home for conservative Democrats and together with traditional Republicans have coalited for what should be a working political majority.

Campaign '84 was just the beginning. Next year and the year after will really tell whether GOP success is long term or in it for the short haul.

Harold Praised For Cities Aid

The Massachusetts Municipal Association has expressed its thanks to Sen. Paul D. Harold for his help in providing assistance to cities and towns.

In a letter congratulating Harold on his reelection, MMA Director James Segal said the association is "very grateful not only in providing local aid to help cities and towns meeting the challenge of Proposition 2½, but also for your help on other issues affecting local government."

Segal cited Harold's efforts in the areas of pension reform, Chapter 90 road funds, reform of county government, and providing grant money to help communities deal with water and sewer problems.

Ruth: 'Best Day Of My Life'

Ruth Gordon has had many big days in a long life of accomplishments.

She has won her share of awards, accolades and ovals on the stage, in movies and on television. Her talent, like good wine, improves with the years.

One of those awards, of course, was a prestigious Oscar.

That's a hard one to top.

But Quincy did a few weeks ago.

New York and Hollywood may have her talent, but Quincy has her heart.

And nothing has made her happier or prouder than "Ruth Gordon Day" proclaimed by Mayor Francis McCauley — the day the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre in Merry Mount Park was dedicated and officially opened with her present.

In a letter to this writer, she confides: "I think it was the best day in my life."

It was the perfect day — a day on which Quincy seemed to be a dream world all of its own.

"I thought," she says, "we all took off and went somewhere else. We went somewhere where there was no trouble, or worry or mean stuff. We all floated off where it all went right."

"I know the work that went into making it happen." Oh, My!!!

Quincy, that Nov. 10, was both Ruth Gordon's hometown and her Utopia.

NO TROUBLE, worry or mean stuff.

Miss Gordon was born in October, 1896 the year Benjamin Harrison was elected President.

Those were, in many respects, the "good old days." Oh, there were troubles and worries back then. But there wasn't so much of the mean stuff as there is today.

When she was delivered by Dr. John Alexander Gordon at 41 Winthrop Ave., Wollaston, grew up at 14 Elmwood Ave. and attended old Quincy High School now Central Middle School, times were different.

People in most communities used to be able to leave their homes without locking the door and return and find everything still there.

Nowadays you have to lock the door even when you're in the house.

You realize how much mean stuff there is today when you see what is in the newspapers — and what isn't.

The papers are full of crime — a lot of it vicious or mean stuff against the young, the elderly, the handicapped — by weirdos and punks, many of them fueled on drugs and or booze.

You realize even more how much mean stuff there is today when you read death notices or engagement stories and you find something missing.

When there is a death in a family, you never see the home address listed anymore. Because some weirdo or punk is apt to break into the house if he knew the family was at a funeral.

In engagement stories, you seldom see the exact date of the wedding listed. Because, again, one of these characters will jot the date down and break in while everyone is at the wedding.

It's so had these days that even without a home address listed in a death notice or an exact wedding date announced, many people still don't feel safe. They have a "house sitter" they can trust come in to guard the house.

Times were different back at the turn of the century when Miss Gordon was born. And though the teen years of the new century, the 20's, 30's, 40's had their problems, there seemed to be a lot of nice people around. And, fewer of the other kind.

There are still a lot of nice people around, today. But unfortunately, we hear more about the weirdos. And, unfortunately, there seems to be more of them around today per square inch than ever before — anywhere and everywhere.

But on Nov. 10 Ruth Gordon Day there were only nice people here.

Nov. 10 was one of "those good old days" to cherish and fondly remember.

"...where there was no trouble, or worry, or mean stuff."

Greyhound Race Track Proposed For N. Quincy

Three prominent Quincy men joined forces to form the Dennison Airport Kennel Club with plans to convert Dennison Airport in North Quincy into a modern athletic facility, complete with a layout for greyhound racing.

The incorporators were Dr. Walter Kendall, the internationally known sportman and dog-breeder; former Mayor William A. Bradford; and Harold T. Dennison, the aviation pioneer.

Dec. 6-12,
1934

50 Years Ago
This Week

The club had already filed an application with the State Racing Commission for a license to operate a greyhound track on the airport site at the intersection of Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum St.

A spokesman for the group said it was planned to spend $250,000 on the plant, including $150,000 for a grandstand, a clubhouse, kennels and a regulation quarter-mile track. Construction was expected to start in the spring.

EIGHT WARDS VOTED

The City Council, after a two hour debate, passed a plan proposed by Councillor Daniel S. Dennehy to redistrict the city into eight wards. The vote was 5-4 with Council President Laurence J. Curtin casting the tie-breaking vote.

Also voting for the plan were Councillors Leo E. Mullin, David S. McIntosh and John R. Shaughnessy. Voting in opposition were Councillors Thomas S. Burgin, Stanley S. Bates, William M. Edmonston, and Neil A. McDonald.

The new Ward 8 would include Merrymount, Adams Shore, Germantown and Houghs Neck while the new Ward 7 would be carved out of Wards 5 and 6 at the Wollaston Atlantic line.

CONSTRUCTION LOANS

Mayor Charles A. Ross asked the City Council for authority to borrow $400,000 for street, sidewalk and sewer construction and it appeared that the city would spend $1 million on such projects, including a west wing to North Quincy High School.

SEWAGE CRITICIZED

The Squantum Women's Club voted to petition the State Legislature in an attempt to eliminate the dumping of sewage in Quincy Bay, a procedure the ladies said was not only an annoyance but might lead to the pollution of the bay.

Each year, people discard useable toys that may still be in good condition and provide hours of enjoyment for a boy and girl whose parents cannot afford a gift for Christmas.

In 1971, the Koch Club presented 300 Christmas gifts to children burned out in a pre-Christmas blaze. Since then, over 20,000 items have been collected.

cleaned and distributed for other children to find happiness with at Christmas.

The Koch Club Dress-A-Doll Program is seeking help. For the past 12 years, the used dolls collected have been washed, dressed, hair groomed and gift wrapped for presentation to a girl at Christmas. Contact Mrs. Simmy Koch at 328-8286, Mrs. Leo Derringer at 4 Edward Cody Lane, South Weymouth or Mrs. Rita Kelleher of 19 Brae Rd. North Weymouth.

5 From Quincy Honored At Abp. Williams

Five students from Quincy have been selected for special recognition for outstanding service to the Resource Center at Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree.

They are Dan Casey, Sean Curry, Dennis Moriarty and Jeff Norton, all media center assistants; and Phillip Fantasia, library assistant.

Members and friends of the congregation celebrated the first Sunday of the Advent season Sunday with two morning services and a "Hanging of the Greens" at night.

In the morning, church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin spoke to the congregation of the first service about "The Word to Zechariah."

During the service, members of the congregation were asked to do some actual Bible study of the text dealing with the events preceding the birth of John the Baptist.

Part of the sermon included the display and study of art work done by various members of the congregation. Patti Hurd, Mary Ruth Scott, Ruth Swenson, Cecilia Stamos and Ellen Ogilvie assisted the pastor as discussion leaders.

Guitarist Mary Ruth Scott provided the music. Melissa Stamos and Kristen Reister lighted the first candle in the Advent wreath.

They reminded the congregation that that candle signified the Old Testament prophecies of the coming of Christ. Reece Thornion and Chris Dixey were ushers.

In the second service, Dr. Langevin preached on the subject, "What Are You Expecting?" The sermon was based on a text taken from the words of John the Baptist about Jesus, "Behold, the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world!"

The Chancel Choir sang "Jesus! Name of Wondrous Love" by Everett Titcomb. Robert Frazer was soloist. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

Albert and Michael Franklin assisted the pastor in lighting the first candle in the Advent wreath. Greeters for the morning were Gail Williamson and her daughter Gwen. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott.

The Lord's Supper was observed at the second service with Deacons Evelyn Ahearn, Leon MacIntyre, Stewart Scott, Grace Holmes and Gretchen Bumpus seated at the Lord's Table with the pastor and serving the elements of bread and wine to the congregation.

The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Janet Sumner and her daughter-in-law, Sandra Sumner.

In the evening, the Board of Christian Education sponsored the annual "Hanging of the Greens" for everyone in the church family.

During this event, persons of all ages either decorated the church, made Christmas crafts or baked Christmas cookies. The evening was concluded with refreshments including wassail.

This Sunday, Dec. 9, will be two worship services again: a guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and a traditional service at 10:30 a.m.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Did you ever meet a completely fearless person? One who was never afraid or fearful at any time? Of course not. Every human being has a sense of fear at some time...

Fears are normal. Fears can be actually healthy at times. Fear enables one to take appropriate self-protecting measures, if or when needed. Without these measures we would probably be consumed by our own folly, or the hostile and destructive purposes of others.

To be fearful, without reason, is foolish. But when a reason for fear exists, the fear should be dealt with constructively. The manner in which we handle our fears allows us to feel satisfied and secure - OR - insecure and unhappy. Usually deep fears can be dispelled with fore-thought and reason. Confidence and faith, coupled with proper action can alleviate most fears. In many cases throughout the ages, man's most effective weapon against fear has been - "I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me"...

It is, and always can be an excellent insulator against fear...

$35,000 Police, Fire Studies Proposed

Mayor Francis X. McAuley said Tuesday he has received a proposal from the Massachusetts Municipal Association for a comprehensive management study of the Quincy Police and Fire Departments.

The studies would be conducted by experts in the law enforcement and fire science fields at a cost of $35,500 and would be completed four months from the date of commencement.

Earlier this year, McAuley submitted an appropriation order for $35,000 to hire a firm to study the Police Department but the order died in the City Council when Chief Francis X. Finn objected to the firm.

McAuley said the MMA proposal will be studied by police and fire officials as well as by Councillor Richard J. Koch Jr., chairman of the Council's Finance and Public Safety Committees.

The Council would have to approve an appropriation order for the study.

McAuley said the studies would include the review of organization and management; manpower utilization and development; and budgeting and fiscal control.

Board Grants C.V. License For Christy's In North Quincy

A new Christy's Market is scheduled to open in a few months at Hancock and Moscow Sts., North Quincy, the site of a former Exxon Station.

The License Board granted a common victualer license Tuesday for the business which will also offer such items as coffee and donuts to go.

Hours will be 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Police Chief Francis Finn said he was concerned that the store would be an "attractive nuisance" to youngsters at nearby Sacred Heart School who might be tempted to go back and forth across busy Hancock St.

City Clerk John Gillis pointed out that the North Quincy branch library is already located across the street.

Representatives of Christy's met with the Sacred Heart Parish Council which requested that no liquor or adult-type magazines be sold.

Christy's officials are to work with Building Inspector Allan MacDonald on such things as parking, and landscaping.

Jewelry Concepts

RUBY—A RARE VALUE

Large rubies are extremely rare and cost much more than diamonds of comparable size and quality. Clear stones are worth more than translucent stones with silky interiors due to their fibrous content. The surface of the latter, when cut into a domed, unfaceted style, called "cabochon", reflects streaks of light. These are the star rubies, which contain long, narrow crystals arranged in three sets of parallel threads that intersect at angles of sixty degrees. Star rubies, after being cut, appear to have a star of radiant white light inside. The "silk" in these stones makes them slightly less transparent and tends to gray the color and lighten it.

Jewelers who truly know their product are hard to come by today. However at TODDIE'S FINE JEWELRY, I have established myself as a jeweler who not only knows jewelry but who knows how to customize pieces to reflect your uniqueness. We display a beautiful selection of all gem stones set in numerous settings and types of jewelry. Our store is also known for its prices and as a landmark for people who can't find exactly what they want elsewhere. Have confidence when purchasing jewelry and see us at 1163 Hancock St. Mon-Fri. 10-6; Sat. til 4 Tel 479-9464.

Many small but beautiful rubies are available at moderate prices.

Wollaston, recently reported for duty at the Naval Military Personnel Command (NMPC) in Washington, D.C.

A 1980 graduate of North Quincy High School, he enlisted in the U.S. Navy in February, 1981. He first reported for duty aboard multi-purpose aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk (CV-63), where he served until April 1984.

In May 1984, he transferred to the Naval Intelligence Processing Systems Support Activity in Alexandria, Va., where he served immediately prior to reporting to NMPC.

At NMPC, Seaman Christopher is assigned to the occupational development and analysis center as a computer operator. His branch manages approximately 3,000 job analyses each quarter.

Among his awards and decorations are the Humanitarian Service Medal and the Navy Expeditionary Medal.

Kramer, Klein Testify For Teen Alcohol Center

Judge Albert Kramer of Quincy District Court and Probation Officer Andrew Klein testified recently on behalf of the establishment of the state's first in-patient treatment facility exclusively for adolescent alcohol abusers.

The hearing was held on the application of the Hawthorne Treatment Center, Inc., to locate a private, 50-bed facility in an unused state building in Medfield to offer a 30-day, multi-level residential program for males and females ages 14 to 20.

"Until now, we've had to send kids out of state for treatment," said Klein. "We find the adult alcohol facilities don't cover the needs of juveniles and it's more difficult to get adolescents in these adult units."

The Massachusetts Public Health Council approved the application.

Only 3 Varsity Returnees But: Miller Promises North Will Be Competitive

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy basketball coach Eddie Miller realizes his team will again have its troubles competing with such powerhouses as Cambridge Rindge and Latin, Brockton and Brookline, but he promises a competitive club.

"We shouldn't be playing such teams as Cambridge and Brockton, but I'll promise you one thing, we'll be ready to play," Miller said. "I hope we can improve on last year's record (the Raiders won only six games a year ago) and maybe we can pull a few surprises."

When North opens at Somerville Dec. 14 in a non-league game, Miller will have only three varsity returnees, 6-2 Ken Runge, Jim Martin (5-10) and Mark Scanlon (5-9).

Steve Dever (6-3) played for the junior varsity with a little varsity service and the North coach has several promising players coming up from the jayvees.

They are Bob Salton (5-8), Chris Rossi (6-1), Brian Morris (6-2), Ken Zwicker (5-10), Eric Roukey (6-0) and Mike Kubera (5-10).

The Raiders will have their first freshman on the varsity, 6-1 Dave Lawless, who has looked good in practice.

"Runge and Scanlon will be two of our key players," Miller said. "Runge should be a good scorer and rebounder and Scanlon is a fine point guard."

"We will be playing a lot of underclassmen and we have a fine freshman group. Now that I'm back in the school system, I plan to work with the junior high boys. When the junior high programs ended, it hurt the high school teams in every sport."

"I think Cambridge, always the class of the Suburban League, is stronger than ever and Brockton has a big, veteran team. We should hold our own against some of the other teams, but we just shouldn't be playing in this league."

Following the opener with Somerville, North will host Hingham in another non-leaguer Dec. 18 and will play in the Weymouth South Holiday tournament Dec. 27 and 29 with Quincy, Weymouth South and Weymouth North.

Former Raider Wes Paul is assisting Miller with the varsity, Ted Stevenson is the junior varsity coach and Miller's brother, Steve, is the new freshman coach.

DR. DAVID GOODMAN of Quincy ran in the recent Colonnade Doctors' Run for the American Heart Association. Dr. Patrick Moore of Quincy also ran in the race, which raised $24,000, bringing the total to over $100,000 raised for the American Heart Association since the inception of the run.

More Experience, Confidence DeCristofaro Sees Improvement For Quincy

Rick DeCristofaro didn't have much luck last year when he took over as Quincy's basketball coach with only four wins, but he feels the Presidents will improve this season with more experience and more confidence.

"We didn't have much experience last year and it was awfully tough playing against the Suburban League powerhouses," said DeCristofaro. "We had a fine junior varsity team and we should have more confidence this year with five returning veterans and several good players from that junior varsity team. Again it will be rough playing against such powers as Cambridge, Brockton and Brookline, but I think we will do all right against most of the other league teams."

The Presidents will be out for revenge against North Quincy, the Raiders defeated Quincy three times last season, once in the Hingham holiday tournament and twice during the regular season. Before taking over the Quincy reins last year, DeCristofaro was North Quincy coach Eddie Miller's assistant for three years.

Back from last year's varsity are Pat Faherty, at 6-5 the Presidents' tallest player, Mike Farrand (6-1), Bob McCarron (6-1), Daron Tucker (5-10) and Bill Shaughnessy (6-00).

Also looking good are Andrew Lenhardt (6-1), Jim Arroyo (5-9), Dave Mohr (6-4), Mark Cronin (6-1), Mike Dracchio (5-9), Don Parry (5-10), Frank Freedman (5-9), Bob Pitts (5-11), Max Johnson (6-3) and Bob Connolly (5-9).

"We have more height than a year ago and we will be quicker," the Quincy coach said.

The Presidents open next Tuesday, Dec. 11, at Walpole and will be home to Arlington on Dec. 21, both non-league games. They will play in the Weymouth South Holiday tournament Dec. 27 and 29 with North Quincy, Weymouth South and Weymouth North.

"You know, we lost four games by one or two points last year, including a one-pointer to North Quincy in the Hingham tournament," DeCristofaro said.

Mitch Finnegan, who coached the freshmen last year, succeeds Bob Dacey as junior varsity coach and Ron Mariano is the new freshman skipper. "Dacey did an excellent job with the jayvees last year and I'm sorry to lose him, but Mitch and Ron will do a fine job. I'm sure," DeCristofaro said.

Tozzi 'Coach of Year'

Lou Tozzi, coach of the North Quincy girls' cross-country team, has been named the Boston Globe's Coach of the Year.

Sophomore Tricia Barrett, a consistent winner for the Raiderettes, was selected as the Globe's Runner of the Year.

Barrett, Mary Ann

Kelleher, Leanne Fitzgerald and Meg Leary were named to the Suburban League girls' all-star team, while Heath Petracca and Tom Wildes were selected to the boys' all-star team.

Catalano To Help Plan Boston Marathon

The Boston Athletic Association has hired two men to coordinate the day-to-day activities of putting on the annual Boston Marathon and to move the Patriots' Day event into the present day running world.

The first was Guy More, appointed to serve as race administrator for the marathon, and the second was former Quincy High track coach Joe Catalano, who will serve in the newly-created role of athlete liaison.

Catalano, whose wife, Patti (Lyons), a Quincy native, is one of the nation's top female distance runners, was hired to make contact with the specifics of the marathon.

"Upgrading the hospitality to runners is what I see as one of my functions," said Catalano, a fine distance runner himself and his wife's coach. "It's too early to talk prize money, but we want to make it easier for runners to race here and show them we respect them. Things like inviting athletes, helping with transportation and housing."

Hiring Catalano as athlete liaison is the first tangible sign that the BAA is prepared to reach out actively toward securing world-class athletes, a distinct change from the past.

on housing, job counseling, budgeting, advocacy, and alcohol problems.

Police Chief Francis Finn emphasized the need for such a shelter.

"Some cold nights we have people sleeping in the hallway of the Police Station," Finn said.

Ward Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro noted "the security at the shelter, is very, very ample. It's a good and proper situation."

John Gillis, who is also board chairman, suggested that Nancy Powers, Salvation Army Community Social Worker, talk with residents of Phipps St. who are concerned about a possible overflow of people who aren't admitted to the shelter at night.

Gillis also added his approval to the idea of the shelter.

"I think it's a great thing. I'm 100 percent behind it."

BE CAUTIOUS WITH DEEDS
QUESTION: My uncle, a successful farmer, has always handled the family's real estate transactions to save us the cost of using professionals. Do you think I should check out the deed he just wrote up just to be sure?

ANSWER: An apparently secure deed can turn out to be a worthless piece of paper (especially if drafted by a layman). Perhaps it doesn't contain the seller's signature? Suppose the seller died before you received the deed? Suppose there's an error in the property description?

Any of these defects could make your deed invalid. And the best way to be cautious is to deal with a reputable real estate professional.

Stay Alive!

A SLIPPERY DEATH

The most widespread cause of accidental death next to auto accidents is the accidental fall. Last year over 20,000 persons were killed in this manner. And with the added hazard of winter, a good percentage of these fatalities occur from falling on ice. Fortunately, a little prevention can save a needless tragedy.

Make sure all snow and ice is removed from your walks and stairs. A bag of salt will cut down on the shovelling efforts. Also, when the walk is clean, sprinkle more salt to prevent formation of an icy glaze.

Leather-soled shoes are a hazard on winter ice. You get more traction with rubber or sponge ribbed soles or by wearing rubber boots. Strips of abrasive tape on the soles of shoes also provides some anti-skid gripping power.

After 3 Successful Years Quincy's Girls Volleyball Looks Good Again For 1985

Over the past three years the Quincy girls' volleyball teams have had obvious success with three South Sectional championships and two state titles and a three-year record of 66-5.

The First Ladies have had nine Globe all-scholastics, one Globe Player of the Year and a prep-high school All-American. Quincy has produced many Div. 1 and 2 athletes and three of six starting players on the Mass. Patriots Junior team, which finished ninth in the nation, losing to the number one team 15-13, were Quincy High players.

"What is not so obvious, especially if one has not seen us play, is the kind of player we have," said Coach Ray Whitehouse. "The first quality is unusually high skill levels. I have been told by many coaches that our 1983 team could have beaten many college teams."

Quincy practices three and a half hours a day six days a week, spending two hours passing, a half hour serving and a half hour on movement.

"The second quality is mental toughness," Whitehouse said. "This comes from working through pressure situations in practice where, if the athlete fails to execute a certain skill, the whole team suffers."

"But most of the kids also have this toughness built in. It comes from a person who strives for the best and is never satisfied until she reaches her goals. It comes from girls who obviously will succeed at volleyball because they thrive on pressure. We count on other teams folding because volleyball is a psychological sport. You can't physically intimidate your opponent, because of the net.

"We have confidence in our skills and know if we apply pressure, one team will give. Most of the time it is them."

An example of mental toughness: Brookline, with six-foot Robo Umlah and 6-1 Ruth Lamprey, offers a powerful offense with the state's hardest hitters. Yet, in the third game of the quarterfinal match in the South Sectionals, 5-6 Colleen Dunn blocked them three times in succession. The fourth time Umlah hit into the net and Quincy won the game, 15-5.

"The third quality is the character of the team," Whitehouse added. "The girls know how to both win and lose with grace and class. They respect their teammates and opponents. This program is modeled in the concept that successful teams take on a family atmosphere, both on and off the court. This closeness is a characteristic of Quincy teams."

With the loss of junior high sports, the Quincy program is in jeopardy, like other programs. Hopefully, young athletes will be attracted to replace graduating seniors.

Quincy appears to be potentially strong again next year with returning juniors Mario LeVangie and Stacie Nigro providing leadership.

Sophomores, who would have started for most teams this season, will fit in nicely. Outside hitters Lauren Stranding and Terry Duggan, middle blocker Pam Austin and weakside hitter Susan Parry will be ready to carry on.

Although hurt badly by no junior high volleyball, Whitehouse sees two bright spots.

"Ginny Duggan (another sophomore star this year) is going to be one of the best setters in the state next year," he said. "She played behind Karen Marnell and Terry McLaughlin and could be the smartest athlete I have seen in terms of set selection and reading defenses."

"The other bright spot is at Central Middle School where some eighth graders are showing potential. We might have our first freshman starter next year in either Amy Guidice, Corinne Fletcher, Nancy Laitinen or Holly Rendle. Hopefully these eighth graders will carry on the program."

Eddie Dunn Leads Quincy Over Tufts JV

Acting Capt. Eddie Dunn led the way with nine points, all of them in the second half, as the Quincy High School basketball team opened its promising season with a 25-11 victory over the Tufts Junior Varsity at Medford.

The zone defense installed by Coach Jimmy LeCain limited the college team to no field goals and only three free throws in the first half. Tufts had only four baskets in the entire game and the team was shut out over the last period and a half.

BOYS CLUB LOSES

Weak forward play and general methodless tactics of attack were criticized as the Quincy Point Boys Club bowed to the Lusitania Recreation team of East Cambridge, 2-0, in a Boston and District Soccer League game at Fore River Field.

The Boys Club lineup included: O. Swift, goal; A. Campbell, J. Cosgrove, backs; J. Davidson, G. Desmond, A. Allison, halfbacks; M. McGuire, Davenport, F. Greer, H. Logan, Craig, T. McAuley, Brown, forwards.

RING WORSHIP

Don Juan Vareles, manager of the Argentinian wrestler Jose Firpo, protested to the Massachusetts Wrestling Association that Melsheka of Arabia planned to spend five or 10 minutes in religious worship prior to his bout with Firpo at Quincy Arena.

"Why this man should be allowed to halt the proceedings, making his opponents nervous and out of sorts in order to do something he should do at home is a mystery to me," said Vareles.

NORTH WORKS OUT

Capt. Bill Morrison was the only returning regular and Ralph McLeod and Joe Rogers the only others back with varsity experience as Coach LeRoy (Curly) Rogers' North Quincy High School basketball team prepared for its opener Jan. 2 against Milton.

SQUANTUM PREVAILS

Johnson and Anderson led the scorers with 17 points between them dumped Quincy Point Congregational, 27-17, to remain tied with United Presbyterian and Braintree Congregational atop the YMCA Sunday School League.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

WEEK OF: DECEMBER 6

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19
Domestic dispute benefits from an objective outsider's point of view. Work ideas are applauded, but you can't coast now. Further bright ideas can lead to a bonus by year end.

Current keyword is variety. Life is livelier when you take on new interests and spend time with people from assorted walks of life. Romance is on the upswing.

Communications problems improve by the end of this period. Changes in scenery are favored through the week. Hidden talents emerge, impressing your family, your employer, yourself.

CANCER — June 22-July 22
Small financial windfall is possible after the weekend. Workload increases gradually. Children require additional encouragement — they look to you as an important role model.

LEO — July 23-August 22
Offbeat opinion of a loved one may lead to creative thinking on your own part. Chance to increase earnings may be opening up, but give honest thought to domestic and other responsibilities.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22
Emphasis is on creative projects. You may be taking on a teaching role. Minor bonus can brighten the week. In family dispute, take the first and second steps.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22
Tensions at work ease once you take the initiative. Watch tendency to overextend yourself. Be careful in handling gadgets. Neighbors may be in a borrowing mood.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21
Loveless friends and a lineup of relatives occupy your time this week. Try not to hide emotions from your partner. Diplomacy is the key in dealing with neighbors.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22-December 22
Puzzlers of several kinds punctuate the week as you take on the role of sleuth. A socially busy time. Friends compete for your time. Avoid overcommitting yourself.

CAPRICORN — December 23-January 20
You and partner may have difficulty seeing eye-to-eye on family-related matter. Political discussions can get heated on the weekend. Ambitious streak surfaces on Monday.

Deputy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman Jr., said there were no smoke detectors in the wooden building at 213-215-A Kendrick Ave.

The building is owned by Mrs. Evelyn Pellicier of Falmouth.

Deputy Chief Herbert Rourke assisted when the second alarm was sounded. The fire department was at the scene for more than an hour.

Screwdriver, Pliers Weapons In Robberies

A man armed with a screwdriver and a pair of pliers created a one man crime wave Saturday morning, robbing two convenient stores and a filling station in Quincy and two stores in Braintree.

He appeared first in Quincy at the Cumberland Farms store, 610 Hancock St., Wollaston, threatened clerk Anthony Krystynak of Quincy with a screwdriver and a tree branch and demanded money.

Krystynak said he gave him some one dollar bills from the cash register and the man fled down Willett St.

The robber was described as about 20, 5-foot-10, 160 pounds wearing a red blazer.

An hour later, a man threatened attendant Leroy Krueger of Quincy at the Sunoco Station, 59 School St., Quincy Center, with a pair of needle-nosed pliers and escaped with $95.

He was described as about 19, six feet tall, 180 pounds with brown hair, wearing a brown baracuta jacket, black pants and white sneakers.

A half hour after that, Dawn Banta of Rockland, manager of the Dacey Brothers store, 219 Quincy Ave., Quincy Point, told police a man threatened her with needle-nosed pliers and demanded money.

He took $250 from the register and fled down Charlemount St.

He was described as about 20, 5-foot-8, 160 pounds with brown hair and wearing a black jacket and pants and white sneakers.

Police said the same man robbed all three stores and two in Braintree earlier.

Freedman's Deli Granted License For Quincy Pt.

The License Board voted Tuesday to grant a common victualer license to Donald J. Freedman of Hingham for Freedman's Deli, 626 Washington St., Quincy Point.

The restaurant will be located at the former site of Doughboy Donuts.

Hours will be 5 a.m. to midnight, seven days a week and bakery and deli items will be expanded, according to the application.

Freedman told the board he would like the business to be more of a bakery and deli rather than a diner.

The license was granted with the stipulations that the dumpster be enclosed and signs be approved by the Building Inspector.

Fire Inspections Fees Cut To $25

The City Council voted Monday night to cut the fire inspection fees by owners of gasoline stations from $100 to $25.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley had asked for a decrease to $50 but Councilor Stephen J. McGrath amended the schedule change to make it $25 "to give the little guy a break."

Auditor Robert E. Foy III said bills for the $100 charge went out for the first time July 31 and only 13 of the 53 station owners billed have thus far paid their $100.

"The fees are excessive so they are not paying," said McGrath. "Some of these stations are marginal businesses and $50 is too much."

City Clerk John Gillis told the Council that there had never been a fee charged for the inspections prior to this year.

McCauley did not actually lowering a fee," said Councilor Michael Cheney. "We are setting one. It amounts to a hidden tax if we impose an unreasonable fee."

The vote to cut the fee to $25 was passed by 5-3; with Councilors Theodore P. DeCristofaro, Richard J. Koch Jr. and John J. Lydon Jr. voting against it.

The matter was sent back to the Ordinance Committee for advertising before final passage.

'Aunt Jemima' Furor Over, Schools Believe

"We think it is over," said Asst. School Supt. Carol Lee Griffin. "Mr. Osterman apologized for the school system. We will pick up the pieces and go on from here."

Griffin was referring to the Aunt Jemima controversy that erupted last week when a white school aide dressed up as the black woman on the pancake flour box to promote pancakes for lunch at the schools.

Doris Gardner, a black woman whose daughter, Lisa, attends the fifth grade at Snug Harbor School, took offense and drew an apology from School Supt.

John Osterman.

Gardner said her daughter was taunted by white classmates after the incident and she said she has requested that her daughter be transferred to another elementary school.

"I have no request in writing yet," said Griffin. "But we have an open enrollment policy. Any parent has the right to have a child in any school as long as there is space. We always grant a transfer."

The catch is that the parents of the child must provide the transportation to the new school and Gardner said she wants the School Department to provide it.

The Aunt Jemima promotion, which Osterman ordered halted, was used in the Snug Harbor, Montclair and Merrymount Schools.

A white school aide put on dark makeup and wore a kerchief like the black woman on the pancake flour box in an effort to get more pupils to purchase the pancake lunch.

The lunch program in the Quincy schools is not supported by the city but is maintained by sales.

State Mediator Sought For School Talks

The School Committee and the Quincy Education Association have decided to ask for a state mediator to help resolve their deadlocked negotiations over a new contract for School Department personnel.

"We seem to have reached a point where we do not have much to talk about," said Mary Curtin, president of the QEA, after a negotiating session Monday night.

"We thought that we could talk about some issues outside of money but all the issues seem to impinge on money. We decided at that point that we needed a mediator."

Curtin said the first step in obtaining such assistance is to file with the State Mediation Board, which will then assign a mediator who is acceptable to both sides.

"It will be a two week process to get a mediator assigned," she said, "and another week for the mediator to bring us together so we are talking about mediation after the first of the year."

Curtin said the last few negotiating sessions with the School Committee have been "positive, open and candid."

"It was discouraging Monday night," she said. "We hoped that we could resolve the issues on our own."

$5-M Project To Convert Sears Building

Interior demolition has begun on the old Sears Roebuck building on Hancock St. to clear the way for a $5 million project to convert it into a gallery of small specialty shops.

Arthur Stavris of F.X. Messina Enterprises of Braintree said the renovation work is expected to be completed by the end of March and the building should be available for tenants April 1.

"We are negotiating with a number of prospective tenants," he said.

The feature of the converted building will be a walkway from Hancock St. to the Parkingway with shops on either side. The second and third floors will be office space.

There are plans for parking space for 110 cars but an application for an Urban Development Action Grant from the federal government failed to win immediate approval.

Registry, Police Cut Sea St. Speeding

By TOM HENSHAW

Increased traffic patrols by the Registry of Motor Vehicles and Quincy police appears to be enforcing the speed limit on Sea St., the scene of three fatal accidents in the past three months.

The patrols issued 54 citations for traffic violations on the first day last Thursday and since that time citations have declined, although precise figures are not available.

"I attribute the reduction in citations to a reduction in speed on Sea St.," said City Councilor Michael Cheney. "It is noticeable most in the number of motorists observing the speed limit.

"But there is still a problem at night and I am concerned with what will happen when the Registry men leave at the conclusion of the holiday season. I'd like to know what plans the mayor has after that."

Cheney said he would like to see Mayor Francis X. McCauley allocate more money to the police budget so that more patrols can be put on key Quincy streets, notably Sea St. and Newport Ave.

"It's great to have the Registry assist," he said.

"but we should also look at the Police Department to see if it is adequately manned. Traffic has become a major problem in Quincy."

Meanwhile, the Quincy Police Betterment Association also questioned whether the presence of Registry inspectors is a long-term solution to the problem.

Association President David P. Doherty called the Registry presence "a slap in the face" to Quincy Police and suggested that McCauley's budget cuts were to blame for safety problems on city streets.

Edison Seeks Cause For Wide Power Failure

The Boston Edison company is still seeking a cause for the failure of supply lines to Mass Electric that plunged 23,000 homes in Quincy and the South Shore into darkness for some two hours Monday night.

"We are at the mercy of Edison," said Aldo Barresi of Mass Electric. "We have no idea what their problems were. They lost their lines to us."

The affected areas in Quincy were Houghs Neck, West Quincy, Quincy Center and Quincy Point. Power remained in North Quincy and Wollaston.

Barresi said the outage began at 9:53 p.m. and the lights began to come back on shortly after midnight.

A similar outage Saturday morning left 10,000 residents of Milton and Quincy without power. That incident too was attributed to a failure of an Edison power line.

Quincy Police reported receiving hundreds of 911 calls on the outage and Bay State Ambulance was alerted that an ailing woman on Sea St. lost oxygen and had only a two hour reserve supply.

Intruder alarms all over the city were triggered by the outage and the restoration of power after midnight.

Bloodmobile Dec. 17 For Little Jaclyn Miller

Local residents may donate blood for 21-month old Jaclyn Miller, a Quincy youngster with leukemia, Monday, Dec. 17, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Morrisette Legion Post, 54 Miller St., West Quincy.

The bloodmobile will be held by Mass. General Hospital where Jaclyn has been a patient.

She is the daughter of James Miller and Joan Wiedemann Miller of Quincy.

Appointments for the bloodmobile are necessary and may be made by calling Jake Mahoney, commander, at 472-8716; Chuck Brooks, second vice commander, 471-3688; Paul Nolan, Milton Police, 698-1212; or Joseph Murphy, Quincy police, 331-5183.

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to Jan. 8 a hearing on requests from Dairy Mart Convenience Stores, Inc. for common victualer-Lord's Day licenses for four former

Dairy Mart Request Continued By Board

Dacey Bros. stores.

The stores, recently purchased by Dairy Mart, which has 300 stores in its chain, are located at 213 Samoset Ave., 139 West Elm Ave., 263 Beale St., and 330 Washington St.

The C.V. license is to sell items such as coffee and sandwiches.

Chyuan Jang, Dairy Mart Eastern Division general manager, was instructed by the board to clear up some problems with the Health Department and speak to neighbors of the stores about their concerns.

Health Comm. Dr. M. Grace Hussey said there are some problems such as missing tiles at the Washington and Beale Sts., and West Elm Ave. stores.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney said the Merrymount Association and residents of the area are concerned that the Samoset Ave. store hours remain the same "to preserve the quality of life in the neighborhood."

A recently passed City Ordinance sets the hours for convenience stores at 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Those hours will also apply when the store moves across the street as had been planned by Dacey's.

Dairy Mart will have to appear before the board with plans before that move takes place.

A resident who lives near the West Elm Ave. store complained about such things as deliveries late at night and youngsters stealing items from the store.

The resident expressed the hope that Dairy Mart and the neighbors could work out a peaceful coexistence.

Referring to the same store, Ward Councillor Stephen McGrath stated in a letter to the board the need for a neat and well-kept appearance on the exterior, and the requirement of dispersing any group that may congregate.

McGrath also said neighbors have contacted him about a higher fence being constructed at the rear of the property.

Another resident told the board the dumpster at the Beale St. Store is not covered.

In another letter to the board, Councillor John Lydon, Jr., asked that neighborhood complaints be addressed.

The Jan. 8 meeting will be the next held by the board.

Safe Crackers Get Several Thousand Dollars

Some $10,600 worth of equipment was reported stolen Monday from the offices of Dr. Barry G. Freedman at 112 McGrath Highway, Quincy Center, by thieves who entered through the front door.

Taken were a computer and printer valued at $4,000, a Minolta copying machine at $3,000, two electric typewriters at $2,400, a video cassette recorder at $600, a 19-inch color TV at $400 and an answering machine at $200.

Thieves using tools found on the premises broke open the safe at Max's Hardware, 254 Washington St., Quincy Point, and escaped with several thousand dollars in cash, tools and appliances Sunday night.

Police said the intruders climbed over a chain link fence around the property and removed an air conditioner to gain entry into the building.

Along with a large but undetermined amount of cash and thieves made off with two chain saws, a wheel barrow and other tools and appliances.

Goldie's Site Variance Granted, Questions Remain

The Zoning Board of Appeals has granted a variance to clear the way for construction of a $20 million office complex on Willard St. but City Councillor James A. Sheets says there is still a question whether it will be built.

One of the conditions of the variance is that the sewer connection be made to the Braintree system and, said Sheets, "I'm not sure Braintree will be willing to do that."

As part of the variance, Adams Realty Trust, the developers, agreed to lobby for a bill filed by Rep. Michael W. Morrissey last week to have the MDC take over Willard St. as a parkway from the Furnace Brook Parkway interchange to Chickatabut Rd. in Braintree.

Sheets said he was pleased that the variance was granted.

"The decision is in keeping with what the people in the area will accept," he said. "Adams obviously worked very closely and intensely with the residents. Only one resident spoke against it at the board of appeals hearing."

A vote taken at a meeting of residents two days before the hearing showed 11 in favor of building the office complex, seven not opposed and four opposed.

The vote of the Board was 3-0 for the variance. An earlier vote taken Sept. 11 had the Board split 2-1 in favor of the project. A unanimous vote was needed. Anthony Sandonato changed his vote, saying Adams' new presentation addressed his fears.

The project will involve construction of two buildings on the site of the old Goldie's junk yard. One of the buildings will be on the Braintree side of the line.

Sheets estimated it will take six to eight months for Adams Realty Trust to receive all the permits needed to start construction. The variance will be held in escrow until that time.

Guard Assaulted At Shipyard

A guard at the gate of the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard told police Monday that he was assaulted for no apparent reason by a man with a at the guard shack.

Kenneth Chipperfield, 30, of Rockland said the man pushed him in some bushes and assaulted him with what appeared to be an M-14 rifle.

The man was described as small and wearing a stocking cap and overalls.

Pizza On Menu At Third Rail?

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The owner of The Third Rail restaurant at the Quincy Center MBTA Station would like to add pizza to his menu.

But the Police Chief is afraid it will result in the mall being harder to police and keep clean.

The matter was continued to Jan. 8 so that the owner can bring plans for the ovens to the Health and Building Departments.

Atty. Richard Hynes of Boston, who represented owner William J. Rooney, said that marketing research showed that customers would prefer pizza and submarine sandwiches to the meals which are being offered.

Police Chief Francis Finn said that he has no qualms about pizza and subs being served on the premises, but is concerned about allowing those items for take-out.

Rooney estimated that 95% of his customers would eat those items in the restaurant, but worried that he would lose business to such customers as New England Telephone Co. employees who order lunches to go.

"The only way I would vote for it would be for a probationary period," said Finn. "I can't allow the situation to deteriorate."

City Clerk John Gillis said the business has a good track record and hasn't had problems.

Gillis said he was in favor of the request.

Proposes Extension Of Furnace Brook Parkway

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Regarding the article in The Quincy Sun of Nov. 21, 1984, on the traffic on Willard Street and the possibility of the MDC taking jurisdiction of Willard Street from the Furnace Brook Parkway to the Braintree line.

In my opinion it is not going to solve the traffic.
The proposed traffic lights and pedestrian signs will not solve the problem.

What is needed is extending Furnace Brook Parkway from St. Moritz
Pond through the Blue Hill Reservation to Chickatawb Road or back on Willard Street at Pine Hill Cemetery which is beyond the residential section on

Willard Street.

The new roadway will not require private land taking, it is all in the Blue Hill Reservation. The extension will provide a direct route to Braintree from Milton and the expressway from the junction of Willard Street and the Furnace Brook Parkway.

The issue of the MDC to purchase Goldies Junkyard
I assume that is dead, but in the event that it should happen it will not solve the traffic on Willard Street.
What is needed is the extension of the parkway which will by-pass the residential section on Willard Street.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS

inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Mike's Corner

by Representative
Michael W. Morrissey

This is the 70th in a series of articles written by Rep.
Michael W. Morrissey.

The 1984 Legislative session is winding down and will end on December 31. The branches are considering a number of important and far-reaching proposals which include
Workmen's Compensation Reform, Presumptive Sentencing, Educational Reform, and a proposal to create a Metropolitan Sewer and Water Authority. The proposal to revise and institute a system of Presumptive sentencing has received the approval of the House and has been sent on to the Senate. Debate has
on the Educational Reform proposal.

At this writing, the House should be considering the Metropolitan Sewer and Water

Authority. The current revised version by the Ways & Means Committee grants both Quincy and Winthrop a seat on the Board of Directors.
Other amendments that must be considered include capping the level of participation of local community financial involvement, limits on the Authority's bonding and eminent domain powers, and a number of other proposals aimed at helping control the costs to the homeowner.
Anyone who would like further information on this proposal or any other matter, can call me at the Statehouse 722-2470 or at home 328-0900. The debates on all matters before the House are televised live on Channel 44 in Boston.

It's Now 'Call Mike'

In Ward 1, if there was a problem it used to be: "Call Leo."

Now, it's: "Call Mike."

Leo, of course, if former Ward 1
Councillor Leo Kelly.

And Mike is current Ward 1
Councillor Michael Cheney.

Kelly held the job for 10 years until he stepped down last January to accept a post with the Quincy Housing Authority.

Next week, Cheney will reach the six month mark as his successor following the special election last June.
It has been a busy six months for Cheney.

There have been plenty of issues and accomplishments.

An ordinance banning chlorine carrying trucks to travel the streets to the Nut Island Treatment Plant on school days a half hour before school and a half hour after school gets out.

Rezoning of the Great Hill School area to open space and the creation of Veterans Memorial Park there.

An ordinance to prevent convenient stores from being open 24 hours a day. Hours have to be no earlier than 7 a.m. and no later than 11 p.m.

Then, there was the successful move against the transfer of the Palmer Pub license, restrictions on Dacey Brothers move across the street. And Judge Albert Kramer's apology for calling Germantown "a white ghetto" all of which Cheney and community leaders had a hand in resolving.

Cheney, concerned over three fatal accidents on Sea
St. in a three month period is now moving to improve traffic conditions.

He would like a set of traffic lights installed on Sea St. at Post Island Rd.

And, he wants to have all the traffic lights on Sea St. sequenced to slow motorists down similar to the way it was done on Quincy Shore Drive.

"Motorist," Cheney says, "would have to travel not more than 30 to 35 miles an hour to keep from stopping at every traffic light."

"It has worked on Quincy Shore Drive and will work,
I am sure, on Sea St."

He is working with the Traffic Commission on that right now. And also for a traffic study on Samoset Ave.
Cheney enjoys being the councillor from Ward 1, a ward in which the people have close contact with their councillor.

CHENEY

He averages anywhere from four to 15 calls a day from constituents - depending on what the problems or issues are at any given time.

He's out almost every night - sometimes attending two or three meetings a night.

"I really enjoy it," he says.

His wife, Patricia, (fish) has found being the wife of a councillor "very interesting." And, she has "met a lot of nice people."

Has Cheney found it difficult following in Kelly's footsteps?

"I really wouldn't say so," he says.
"Leo has been extremely helpful to me. But he had his way of doing things, and I have mine. The important thing is not so much the way it is done, but that it is done to the satisfaction of the people."

KELLY

In case you are wondering, he is definitely a candidate for re-election next year.

And he has no other political ambitions. Not right now, anyway.

AGAIN THIS YEAR, for the sixth consecutive year, the Christmas card Senator Paul Harold is sending out is designed by a student at St.
Coletta's School in Braintree.

Danny Duncan, winner of the contest conducted at the school, will receive a $50 savings bond from Harold as the prize for his winning entry.

His drawing depicts a young boy with a snowman which has been reproduced on Harold's Christmas card.

Danny Duncan is a two-time winner. He was the first winner of the contest judged by the faculty of St.
Coletta's.

Harold holds an ice cream and cookies party for the students in appreciation for their participating in the Christmas card contest.

Danny, his family and everyone at St. Coletta's will be interested in knowing that one of this year's cards is going to New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange.

Harold hosted Lange last year during a visit to Boston when he was then head of the minority Labour Party. Since then, the Labour Party gained a majority in the Parliament and the minority leader assumed the office of Prime Minister.

HAROLD

Bank Mortgage Limits Raised

Limits on banks and credit unions have been raised to allow them to write mortgages in greater amounts, Sen. Paul D.
Harold notes.

Under new legislation
now in effect, savings banks, cooperative banks and trust companies may write residential mortgages up to one-quarter of one per cent of their deposits, or $100,000, whichever is greater.

The former law allowed loans up to one-quarter of one per cent of assets, but set a $50,000 limit.

The effect of the law is to allow smaller banks to write larger mortgage loans,
Harold said.

Larger credit unions, having deposits of $4 million or more, may now write first mortgage residential loans on owner-occupied property of up to $75,000, up from the former $60,000 limit.

They may also write second mortgages up to $25,000, up from the former $20,000 limit, provided that total second mortgage loans do not exceed ten per cent of their assets, Sen. Harold said.

Raise Predicted For Teachers

The School Committee was expected to vote, over the objections of Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, to grant a 5 per cent pay increase for teachers, bringing the starting salary to $4,000 a year and the minimum after 12 years experience to $7,500.

"Where is the money coming from?" asked Della Chiesa, who also served as chairman of the School Committee.

The Mayor told his committee colleagues that rough figures show the school budget without any salary hikes will be up $126,000 and with the increases it would rise another $250,000 to $376,000, a figure equal to two dollars on the tax rate. He also noted that the state recently laid off 700 people due to lack of funds and if the city's financial situation gets any worse, he said, "many of our people are going to lose their jobs. Then what good is a pay raise?"

GAS STATION OPPOSED

Thirty four residents of West Quincy petitioned the Planning Board to change the zoning of five parcels of land at 6-26 Willard St. from business to residence to prevent the Sun Oil Co. from buying the land and building a gasoline station.

A spokesman for the Sun Oil Co. said that "plans for any station on Willard St. are strictly in the thinking stage for the time being."

JOB APPRAISAL SOUGHT

Mayor Della Chiesa asked the City Council for $15,000 to hire an outside firm of experts to make a job appraisal study of municipal employees and Council President James R. McIntyre called the proposal "a sham both to the taxpayer and the employee."

"This survey," he said, "along with many other of Plan E, will accumulate dust—very expensive dust to Quincy taxpayers—by resting on the shelves of City Hall."

STRIKE ALL WINTER

Officials of the bus drivers union warned that the 27-day old strike against the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. could very well last all winter, affecting 300,000 riders in greater Boston. A similar strike in 1952 lasted 127 days.

HOLD PLACED ON SPENDING

Mayor Della Chiesa issued a general directive to all department heads barring the execution of all purchase orders for the remainder of the year unless they were approved by the Mayor himself. He said he wanted to finish the year in an advantageous financial position.

Cimetidine, the common ulcer medication, may prolong or intensify the effects of other drugs such as anti-coagulants, some tranquilizers, digoxin, some beta blockers, and others. Council On Aging Gets $28,210 Grant

The Quincy Council on Aging has been awarded a $28,210 state formula grant to hire five employees, Sen. Paul D. Harold has announced.

The State Department of Elder Affairs (DEA) grant includes funds to rehire a social service technician and four senior corp workers, and also includes matching funds toward the purchase of a new van truck.

Grants are scheduled to be mailed this week.

State formula grants are given to communities based on their over age-60 population, and totalled $1.4 million statewide for this round of grants, said Harold.

In order to receive grants, a community must file an application describing the purpose to which it intends to put the money. The DEA then has authority to set restrictions and conditions on the funds.

Alzheimer's Support Group To Meet Jan. 10

The Beechwood community life center announces the formation of a support group for families in the Quincy area who are affected by Alzheimer's Disease.

Margaret Heckler, Secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, has designated Alzheimer's Disease as a priority area for assistance by the Federal Government.

An exploratory meeting was held recently at the Beechwood Center and attended by a number of Alzheimer families as well as several resource persons.

It was agreed that a support group is needed in this area to provide for sharing, information and assistance.

The group decided to plan monthly meetings for all interested persons, starting Thursday, Jan. 10, at 7:30 p.m. at the Beechwood Community Life Center (formerly Beechwood Knoll School) 225 Fenno St., Wollaston.

Group leader will be Linda Von Iderstein of Duxbury, who holds a master's degree in counseling and has several family members affected by Alzheimer's Disease.

Gary Miner, Ph.D. of Braintree, who has done extensive research work on Alzheimer's Disease, will serve as a consultant.

A speaker at the Jan. 10 meeting will be JoAnn Mitchell of Hingham, who has been serving as leader of a similar group in Hingham.

Information about plans for the support group has been provided to churches and Social Service agencies throughout the city.

For more information, call Ann English, Elder Service worker, at 471-5712 or 325-3647.

Christmas Activities At United First Parish

United First Parish Unitarian Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Sq., will celebrate the Christmas season with a variety of activities this month.

There will be a dedication of parents and children Sunday, Dec. 16, at the 10:30 a.m. service.

Participating families will come forward, and the Rev. Keith Munson will lead the congregation in a unison pledge to love, support, and guide the children throughout their lives.

Each child will be presented with a rose as remembrance of the ceremony. The pulpit address, "A Community for All Seasons", will be delivered by student minister Robert Throne.

The congregation will celebrate Christmas Sunday Dec. 23, at 10:30 a.m. Rev. Munson will deliver a sermon titled "I Heard the Bells".

The choir will lead the congregation in carol singing. Each person will come forward to choose an ornament from the church Christmas tree to bring home for the family tree.

Children from the Church School will join their parents for the first part of the service, then have a Christmas celebration and puppet show in the downstairs dining hall.

A Candlelight Service will be held Christmas Eve, Dec. 24, at 7:30 p.m. The historic sanctuary will be in semi-darkness, lit only by three candles at the altar. During the service, each person will light an individual candle, passing the light from person to person, until the entire sanctuary is aglow. Christmas music and readings will be featured.

The public is invited to attend the services.

Gerard Capobianchi and Bruce Boorkman will hang the greens which will be brought to them by children of the Church School: Janette Archer, Scott Buckmann, Amy Chenette, Lisa Chenette, Debra Connors, Wendy Eng, Steven Fernald, Curt Gifford, Krissy Massey, and Scott Parrish.

During the ceremony the congregation will sing Christmas carols.

Preceding the greening, the senior minister, the Rev. J. William Arnold, will give a brief commentary concerning this Advent tradition.

The Advent wreath candle lighting ceremony will be held at 6:00 and

The Chancel Choir, under the direction of Peter I. Krasinski, organist, will sing as the offertory, "Glory Be To God In Heaven" by Frances Snow, and as the second anthem, "Adam Lay Ybounden" by Boris Ord.

Pastor Arnold will preach the sermon entitled, "I eternal Christmas" based on scripture passages in Luke 1:26-38 and Revelation 11:15-18, at both the 9 a.m. chapel service and at the 10 a.m. sanctuary service.

Lay scripture readers will be Calvin Young at the early service and Bryant Carter at the late service. The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will serve as liturgist at both services.

Students of the Church School will attend the first portion of the 10 a.m. service after which the pupils will go to their classes. A nursery is provided for babies and toddlers.

At 11 a.m., there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor. Light refreshments will be served. Individuals and families from the community are welcome to come and share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

Second Advent Candle Lighted At Squantum Church

"What Can I Give Him?" was the subject of the sermon by church pastor The Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin Sunday during the guitar service at the First Church of Squantum.

During that sermon, members of the congregation were asked to discuss selected Bible verses among themselves in order to come up with various ways that kindness can change inter-personal relationships, both in and out of the church.

Guitarists Mary Ruth Scott and Andy Ogilvie led the congregation in Christmas carols and taught several new ones.

Karen Reister and Scott Catton led the call to worship. Andy Ogilvie and Robert Dixey lighted the second candle in the Advent wreath, reminding the congregation of the Old Testament prophecy that the Christ should be born in Bethlehem.

Deborah Stohlberg and David Williams served as ushers. Recilla and Melissa Stamos were in charge of the refreshments.

Pastor Langevin's sermon at the second service was "Born of a Virgin." His text was "The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; therefore, the child to be born will be called holy, the Son of God." (Luke 1:35b)

The Chancel Choir sang J. S. Bach's "O Jesu Sweet, O Jesu Mild" as the offertory anthem. Hymns were "Watchman, Tell Us of the Night", "O Little Town of Bethlehem", "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming", "Bring a Torch, Jeannette, Isabella" and "Angels We Have Heard on High".

Paul and Mary Gifford were greeters. Gale Thornton and her daughter, Gwen, assisted the pastor in lighting the second candle in the Advent wreath.

Ushers were Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott.

Cliff and Shirley Mason, and Lee Sindelar hosted the Fellowship Hour afterwards.

There will be a Christmas Sunday Breakfast Dec. 23, at 9:15 a.m. and a single service at 10:30 a.m. The church will be decked with poinsettias and other Christmas flowers. Three choirs will sing.

On Christmas Eve, Dec. 24, there will be two candlelight services; a family service at 7 p.m. and a second service at 11 p.m. The public is invited.

Persons of all ages coming to either Christmas Eve service are asked to bring a hell or bells with them to jingle.

This Sunday, Dec. 16, there will be two worship services: a guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and a traditional service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday School and nursery care is provided.

Calling all Women

Holiday Parties In A Hurry

The winter holidays can be both the glory and despair of a host or hostess who loves to entertain. They raise the question of what to serve guests that is quick, satisfying and affordable at the most festive time of the year when impromptu gatherings are more frequent.

Dips of all kinds are one answer to the party fare dilemma. They're easy to assemble and serve, can often be prepared in advance and the most popular ones call for just a few "on-hand," inexpensive ingredients.

Start with a can of Cheddar cheese dip, new from Frito-

Lay. Available in three robust flavors, unopened cans don't need refrigeration and will keep fresh up to one year. Delicious right from the can, they also combine well with a wide range of savory additions to provide fabulous party food.

Here are ideas to get your holidays off to a glorious start. Serve any one or all three... they're that simple!

EASY CHEESE FONDUE

- 1 can (10 ounces) Frito-Lay's® brand Cheddar and Jalapeno Flavor Cheese Dip
- ½ cup tomato juice
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

In medium saucepot combine all ingredients; mix well. Bring to a boil. Serve hot in a fondue pot or on a hot tray. Use potato or corn chips or chunks of French bread as dippers. YIELD: About 1½ cups.

CHEESE STUFFED TOMATOES

- 1 can (10 ounces) Frito-Lay's® brand Cheddar and Herb Flavor Cheese Dip
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed well-drained
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
- Dash hot pepper sauce
- 2 pints cherry tomatoes

In medium bowl combine cheese dip, spinach, onion, horseradish and hot pepper sauce; mix well. Cover. Chill several hours. Cut thin slice off top of tomato; scoop out, turn over to drain. Fill each tomato with cheese mixture.

YIELD: 1½ cups. Enough to fill 2 pints cherry tomatoes.

Handmade Ornaments Add Holiday Cheer

Deck the halls with handmade ornaments. It starts in the kitchen, in the oven with dough ornaments made with Bisquick baking mix.

The ornaments can be an exercise in creativity with whimsical creatures fashioned from pliable dough.

Children will enjoy contributing to the holiday scene with imaginative ideas. Use cookie cutters or draw original shapes. Make three-dimensional designs by combining pieces of dough.

Lovely on the tree or mantel, Dough Ornaments also make attractive gifts or package decorations.

Handmade Dough Ornaments

Heat oven to 350°. Mix 2 cups Bisquick baking mix and 1/2 cup boiling water until soft dough forms; beat vigorously 30 seconds. Turn onto cloth-covered board well dusted with baking mix.

Gently roll in baking mix to coat; shape into ball. Knead 10 times. Roll 1/8 inch thick. Let stand uncovered 5 minutes. Cut into desired shapes, using cutters of 2 sizes to obtain cutouts, or design your own patterns. (Cutout decorations can be attached by brushing with beaten egg yolk and pressing gently into surface of larger shape.)

If ornaments are to be hung, make a hole in each 1/4 inch from top with end of plastic straw. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet until golden brown, 8 to 10 minutes. About ten 4-inch ornaments.

High Altitude Directions (3500 to 6500 feet): Decrease baking mix to 1 1/2 cups and add 1/2 cup all-purpose flour.

Recapture The Old-Fashioned Holiday Sights And Scents

As your guests arrive, the rich, pungent aroma of cedar logs crackling in the fireplace fills the air. It's followed by the delicious scent of the savory gourmet spices peppercorn and coriander. Later, the robust, unmistakable scent of an autumn hayride tingles their delighted noses. No matter where you are, this is no ordinary holiday: it's an extraordinarily nostalgic one made possible by the Aroma Disc System™ from Environmental Fragrance Technologies, Ltd.

Another holiday scenario: as Barbra Streisand sings "Silent Night" and Engelbert Humperdinck performs his classic rendition of "White Christmas," the exhilarating aroma of newly cut evergreens pervades the room. Tony Bennett's "Chestnuts Roasting on an Open Fire" is accompanied by the warm, unmistakable fragrance of a burning yule log. And while Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme charm you with that old favorite, "Let It Snow, Let It Snow, Let It Snow," you are suddenly overcome by the very real sensation of walking outside through a fragrant, snow-covered winter wonderland. From Hawaii to Maine, this is no ordinary Christmas: it's a very special, very memorable one enhanced by "The Sounds And Scents Of The Holiday Season," a unique album collaboration between EFT and CBS. Records that coordinates traditional holiday fragrances with best-loved festive songs.

Now, for the first time, the old-fashioned holiday spirit has been recaptured — ironically, through new technology. The Aroma Disc System, the nation's foremost innovator in fragrance technology, offers an exciting new sensory dimension for the holidays, with fragrance records like "Fireplace," "Christmas Tree," "Hayride," "Wintertime."

Koch Club Christmas Activities Continue

The Koch Club Christmas charitable committee will conduct its annual series of holiday workshops to refurbish, clean and prepare used toys for distribution to church, community, health and social service agencies serving needy families in the Boston area.

Prime recipients are in the Chinatown, Southern and Roxbury sections where the need is the greatest.

The program was initiated in 1971 when a pre-Christmas fire left several hundred families in the Uphams Corner area of Boston homeless and the Koch Club responded with 300 gifts. In the past 13 years the project has been expanded and a total of 20,000 items of toys have been provided for children in Boston while thousands of articles of used clothing, shoes, boots and coats have also been collected and donated.

Over 1500 used toys have been received to date from the Christmas Festival Parade, Fire Station collections, Sacred Heart School, NQHS, Francis W. Parker School, St. Joseph's School, First Baptist Church Sunday School of Wollaston, the North Quincy Catholic Women's Club as well as families and individuals, who are part of the Holiday Project.

Donations of food and funds for turkeys have been forwarded by organizations, families and individuals.

duals who wish to remain anonymous, but each year are part of the coordinated efforts.

The Woodward School For Girls each year Christmas wraps over 350 gifts providing the paper and time to make the gifts more enjoyable.

New gifts for children in the Quincy area are distributed through the Catholic Charitable Bureau, Mass Dept. of Social Services, Atlantic Neighborhood Association, Southwest Community Action Program, St. Vincent DePaul and St. Chrysostom's as well as several other agencies, including the Salvation Army.

8-Day Chanukkah Celebration Begins Dec. 18

By LESTER H. GLASSER
Chanukkah, the Feast of Dedication, also called the Feast of the Maccabees, will be celebrated during (as per Jewish calendar) the eight days from the twenty-fifth of the month Kislev (Dec. 18 through Dec. 25) chiefly as the Festival of Lights.
It was instituted by Judas Maccabeus in the year 165

B.C.E. (Before Christian Era) as a memorial of the purification of the sanctuary, because three years earlier Antiochus Epiphanes had caused a pagan altar to be set up in the Temple of Jerusalem.
Every evening lights are kindled in commemoration of those events. The first candle was lit on Tuesday evening, Dec. 18, with two candles lit on the second night and three on the third night and so on until the final night, Dec. 25. The daily increase in the number of lights teaches us to grow more progressive and enthusiastic in our religious life every day.

The following traditional benedictions are recited upon the kindling of the Chanukkah lights:

"Blessed be Thou O Lord our God, Kind of the Universe who has sanctified us with Thy commandments and commanded us to kindle the light of Chanukkah."
"Blessed be Thou O Lord our God of the universe who wroughtest miracles for our fathers in days of old at this season."
Only on the first night, the following benediction is added:
"Blessed be Thou O Lord our God, King of the universe, who has kept us in life and has preserved us and enabled us to reach this season."
After kindling the lights, songs are sung in honor of the occasion. The popular "Moz' Tsur" (Rock of Ages, but different from that used in Christian churches) is the best known of these.
This is the story of Chanukkah:
For a century after the death of Alexander the Great, Palestine found itself the coveted territory of the Syrians in the north and the Egyptians in the south. Finally Syria gained possession of the little land. The Jews naturally resented the presence of the foreign invader, but undertook no active resistance until the Syrian King Antiochus Epiphanes attempted to destroy the Jewish religion and spirit by campaign of cultural and religious imperialism.
This tyrannical imposition of a decadent Hellenic culture and cult upon the small nation was met by revolt, initiated primarily by a priest of the town of Modin, Mattathias and his five sons.
They organized guerrilla bands and successfully fought off stronger armies of Syria and achieved independence for Judea. In the meantime, the sacred shrine in Jerusalem had been violated by setting of a pagan altar in the Temple.

Judas Maccabeus, son of Mattathias, was the foremost leader of the struggle.
On the 25th day of the month of Kislev 167 B.C., the Temple was cleansed of every trace of heathen worship and rededicated.
In order to re-establish the Jewish Temple service, pure olive oil was needed for the kindling of the lamp that burned steadily and continuously in the Temple.
The oil used by the priests had to be absolutely pure. It was pressed from special olives and then placed in small vials and sealed by the High Priest.
After a prolonged search, Judah found one small vial of this pure oil. It was sufficient for one day's burning. However, this one day's supply sufficed for eight full days.
By that time, Judah obtained fresh oil prepared by the Jewish priests which was pure and undefiled.
Little yellow wax candles or wells of oil with threads folded together are used as a rule. The lamp (the menorah) is generally placed on a window sill facing the street.
It is generally agreed by scholars that if the Jews had been defeated by the Syrian Greeks, the religious foundation upon which Christianity was later established would have been lost to the world and neither Judaism nor Christianity would have exerted their influences upon civilization.
Today children love this holiday, not only because it has become a time for the giving of small gifts, distributed on each of the eight nights. Grown-ups also exchange gifts.

Chanukkah is the traditional time for playing the "Dreydel" game. The dreydel is a small four-sided wooden or metal top that is spun by hand. The sides are inscribed with four Hebrew letters which begin with the words: Nes gadol haya sham (A great miracle happened there.)
It is also traditional to serve latkes (potato pancakes) at Chanukkah parties.
Tonight (Thursday) at Temple Beth El, the Women's League of the Congregation, will sponsor an evening of songs, games and refreshments with lots of latkes. Storyteller Judith Black will entertain. Members and friends are guests of the Women's League.
Chanukkah candles are available at Temple Beth El.
With the passage of centuries the Chanukkah candles have taken on a deep meaning for the Jews. They symbolize the light of religious freedom that Judah Maccabee and his followers kept alive.
In the glow of the candles, many Jews rededicate themselves to the ideals of their faith as once the Maccabees rededicated the Temple to the service of the One God.
Because Chanukkah symbolizes the triumph of faith in God over brute force, it has long been a source of inspiration to the weak and small in number who fight for liberty and justice against stronger and tyrannical foes.
It strengthens the conviction that religious freedom is the right of every people and that God desires man to worship Him in freedom.

SCJ Overturns Sewer Connection Ban

Supreme Court Justice Joseph R. Nolan has overturned a court-ordered ban on new commercial sewer connections in the MDC system which was imposed as a first step toward cleaning up polluted Boston Harbor.

But the US Environmental Protection Agency announced two hours later that it will ask the Justice Department to sue the MDC to impose federal supervision on the harbor cleanup, including a new sewer tie-in ban.

And the State House of Representatives voted 92-52 to postpone a scheduled debate on two bills that would establish a separate sewer authority to take over the system and begin a cleanup.

Judge Nolan's decision, said Rep. John Cusack of Arlington, serves to "take the pressure off" the Legislature.

The original ban on tie-ins was imposed by Superior Court Judge Paul Garrity when the Legislature refused to meet a court-ordered deadline to deal with the pollution issue.

South Shore Hypnosis Center Classes To Start In January

The South Shore Hypnosis Center, 16 Sycamore Lane, will offer self hypnosis classes starting in January.

The center will have 10 weekly, one-hour sessions, teaching self-induction.

The classes will be held at the Hingham Community Center Monday nights, at 8. Preregistration is required. The Center's director

John Carson, said:

"There are over 350 problems that may be solved using self hypnosis. There are too many to list, some of them are cigarettes, weight, stress, depression, pain, better grades, memory, sales, image, confidence, athletics, and it goes on and on."

"This course studies how self induction influences the brain, and how the brain responds.

"If you took all the computers that have ever been made, with all of their memory capacity it would be equal to one per cent of the memory capacity of one human brain."

"This course is absolutely fascinating in my opinion."

The center also offers private consultation, by appointment. The telephone number is 749-2762.

McCauley Readies New Overlay Deficit Plan

Mayor Francis X. McCauley is reported to be readying an overlay deficit order that would wipe out a paper debt of $2.5 million to General Dynamics by paying it on the fiscal 1995 budget.

The order may go to the City Council as soon as next Monday's meeting.

The $2.5 million is carried on the General Dynamics books as money to be paid to the city in back taxes. The debt was wiped out by a court ruling that the city overtaxed the debt, the city must appropriate the money and give General Dynamics a tax rebate certificate to free the books. Both acts must be approved by the State Legislature.

The overlay deficit was part of the so-called battle of the budget last summer when McCauley wanted to pay the debt quickly and the Council voted it down.

The new order, according to reports, would treat the overlay as an 11th payment in addition to the 10 annual payments the city is making to General Dynamics for the company's actual overpayment.

Eight Ribbon-Cuttings In One Hour In Wollaston

If it wasn't a mark fit for the Guinness Book of World Records it was close to it.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley and City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath recently participated in eight ribbon cuttings in an hour's time at newly opened stores within a couple of blocks of each other in the Wollaston business district.

It all began when Arthur Foley, the mayor's administrative assistant, and his partner, Peter Booras, opened their Century 21 Annex Realty at 49 Beale St.

and McCauley agreed to preside at the ribbon cutting.

"I'm an inactive partner right now," Foley hastens to point out, so there is no conflict with his city job.

Then someone recalled that a large number of small business establishments had opened in the immediate area in the past seven months and a poll was taken to see how many of them would be interested in a mass ribbon-cutting by the mayor and the ward councillor.

Seven responded, in addition to Century 21 Annex Realty.

They are: Wollaston Discount Store, 29 Beale St.; Dandy Donut and Deli, 687 Hancock St.; Mascot Chef Restaurant, 666 Hancock St.; Fat Cat Restaurant, 698 Hancock St.; Sandy's Tailoring, 25 Beale St.; Nancy's Nook, 25A-27 Beale St.; Sullivan's Cellar, 34 Greenwood Ave.

A ninth new business, Scissors Hair Studio, 30

Greenwood Ave., hadn't opened yet so there was no ribbon to cut but it was included in a reception for the new people on the block later at the Century 21.

25 From ENC In Students 'Who's Who'

The 1985 edition of Who's Who among students in American Universities and Colleges will include the names of 25 students from Eastern Nazarene College who have been selected as national outstanding leaders.

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included the names of these students based on their academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and potential for continued success.

They join students selected from more than 1,500 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and several foreign nations.

Outstanding students have been honored in the annual directory since it was first published in 1934.

Students named this year from Eastern Nazarene College are:

Stephen Woodward; and Beth Ann Zevan.

Harold Commended By MMA

State Senator Paul D. Harold (D-Quincy) has received recognition from the Massachusetts Municipal Association for successfully supporting legislation that streamlines procedures for replacing or repairing damaged municipal property.

The law doubles to $10,000 the amount of an insurance award cities and towns may spend to replace damaged municipal property without action of their appropriating authorities. The award might cover repair of a damaged roof or replacement of a police car.

"Senator Harold has helped bring the state law up to date," said Municipal Association Executive Director James Segel. "With spending guidelines that reflect the current costs of maintaining municipal property, municipalities can avoid the unnecessary time and cost of calling a special town meeting for these ordinary expenditures. The result will be faster, more efficient repair and replacement."

4 NQHS Seniors Commended Students

North Quincy High School has four seniors designated Commended Students in the 1985 Merit Program, announces Peter J. Chrisom, principal.

Jane Owens, Stephanie Petrakos, Tracy Coleman and Leanne O'Rourke placed in the top five percent of over one million participants in the 30th annual competition and will receive a Letter of Commendation in honor of outstanding promise for future academic success.

An officer of National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC), which administers the program, said that, "The exceptionally high test performance of young people who are named Commended Students in the extremely competitive Merit Program is deserving of recognition in their communities. To acknowledge the attainments of academically talented students and to credit schools for the part they play in the development of these youth are important in a nation that values excellence. We sincerely hope that their accomplishments thus far will motivate these students to pursue higher education and to acquire the skills they will need to become productive adults and contributing citizens in a free society."

Participants entered the current Merit Program by taking the PSAT/NMSQT in the fall of 1983, when most of them were juniors. Although the qualifying test scores of the 35,000 Commended Students designated nationwide were very high, they were slightly below the level required for Semifinalist standing in the competition for some 5,500 Merit Scholarships to be awarded in 1985. The 15,000 Semifinalist in this year's competition were announced publicly by NMSC on September 13.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Much has been said or written about people who are popular with their fellow beings. One truism is oft repeated. The popular people are those beings who are blessed with what one might call "self-forgetfulness."

This thought brings to mind a quote by Rudyard Kipling. When asked to account for the popularity of a certain great British leader, Kipling replied: "All the years I have known him I have never once heard him say that he was hot or cold, wet or dry, sick or well, but I have never known him to forget a man who was."

Concern for the welfare of his fellow man is one of the greatest assets of a leader. Whether it be in military life, in the shop, in business, in the church, people like to feel that their leaders have their welfare at heart.

Couldn't it be said that the whole sum of the matter is that the more we do for others the more we do for ourselves; and the less we think about ourselves, the more others will think about us? ...

Despite Deficit

Johnson 'Convinced' QJC Will Survive

In spite of a deficit that he places at $150,000 a year, Quincy Junior College President O. Clayton Johnson says he is "absolutely convinced" that the only city-run two-year college in the state is going to survive its financial tribulations.

"This college will not close," he said. "We have a school committee that is going to support us. We have a community that is supporting us. And we have a faculty that are going to work hard and they're going to turn this thing around."

"I'm just absolutely convinced that we're going to be all right but we're going to have to make some changes and those changes are indeed going to be painful."

Johnson, who is in his second year as president of the college, was interviewed on Quincy Sun's Cable TV, Ch. 8.

He placed the college's "raw deficit" at about $330,000 in a budget of $3.5 million.

"However," he added, "when you make adjustments such as cutting back on things that you would do if you could do them to a bare minimum, you are probably looking at a more realistic figure of about $150,000 on an annual basis."

"But that's going to increase in future years and that's the troublesome thing."

"You're going to have salary increases. You're going to have to deal with inflation. You're going to have to deal with the serious question of repair of facilities. You have all these inflationary things out there and you have to begin to plan now."

"My best guess is that we can do all of those things and keep the college stable and an attractive environment so that students will want to come here at the same time. But we cannot do them in the situation in which we find ourselves now."

"We have to retract and lower our expenditures and once we lower our expenditures we can get a grip on our problem and stabilize our financial condition and then I think we can move forward on another spurt of growth. But that's not going to be an easy objective."

Johnson noted that when Proposition 2 and one half first began to slice into the Quincy school budget and the Junior College was cut loose from the purse strings to fend for itself, it's demise was widely predicted.

"We've got to have resolve and we've got to go on because if we don't have it then the impending crisis that everyone talked about will be a reality," he said.

"If we exercise what they would say in the Navy 'damage control now' and repair ourselves and then get a full steam ahead and move forward toward our objectives, we'll be all right."

6 Boys Admit Vandalizing Merrymount School

Six Quincy boys, ages 12 and 13, have admitted to vandalizing the Merrymount school and have agreed to make restitution for damages estimated to cost between $500 and $1,000.

Police Capt. David Rowell, head of the detective bureau, said the boys will not be charged in juvenile court if they help pay for the removal of spray paint from the school's exterior walls.

Rowell said the boys and their parents cooperated with police during the investigation.

11 Returnees, 4 Transfers Make Drago Optimistic

Last season the North Quincy hockey team qualified for the Eastern Mass. tournament for the first time in 23 years, defeating Saugus in the first round, then being walloped by St. John's Prep.

The Raiders finished with a 14-6 overall record (13-5 in the Suburban League) and Kevin Drago, starting his third season as coach, sees no reason why they won't be able to at least match that record or improve on it.

"We have 11 returnees from last year's squad, all of whom played in the tournament, and we have four blue chip transfers," said Drago, himself a former Raider star. "We have several potential all-stars and barring key injuries, we should be up with the league leaders."

The Raiders, who played in the Quincy Youth Arena jamboree last Saturday and opened their season last night (Wednesday) against Cambridge Rindge and Latin, will face Quincy Saturday night at 7:50 p.m. at the Youth Arena. They will face Newton Wednesday at 6 p.m. at the Watertown Municipal Rink.

For many years North, as well as Quincy, has lost outstanding players to parochial schools but this season Jago has three fine transfers from those schools as well as a transfer from Quincy.

They are Tom McGrath from Quincy, Mark Simonelli from Don Bosco, Pat Feeney from B.C. High and Mike Haynes from Abp. Williams.

"It's certainly is good to see some of these boys coming back," said Jago. "It has been frustrating each year to see so many fine players going outside."

North's first line consists of Rich Horrigan, Dave Tapper and Rob Reidy. This line scored 81 points a year ago and should once again be among the league's top scoring lines.

The White line has Dave Fasano, McGrath and Simonelli. The Red line includes Mark Zimmerman, Feeney and Haynes. John Reinhardt will also alternate on this line but has been out with an injury.

The Blue line has Jerry Layden, Brian Ostiguy and Mike Doherty with Frank Coymann also playing on the line.

Jago has an excellent group on defense, led by league all-star Pete Furiado. The others are Dave Cooke, Greg McGlame, Derek Holt, Bill Connolly, Don Guthro and Joey King.

In goal is league all-star and all-scholastic Matt Higgins, who had an outstanding 1.27 goals-against average last year. Behind him are untested Paul Hanscom and Sean Dwan.

"My big concern is in goal where Higgins has to stay healthy," Jago said. "He is one of the best in the league and the other two boys have good potential but are untested. If Higgins stays healthy, we will be in very good shape."

"I have three of the best defensemen in the league in Furiado, Cooke and McGlame. Last year we scored an average of four goals a game and gave up only two a game. I think we should be able to do as well this year."

"Horrigan, our captain; Tapper, Reidy, Fasano, Reinhardt, Zimmerman, Furiado, Cooke, McGlame, Holt and Higgins all played last year and, together with the excellent transfers, gives us a well-balanced squad. But, we can't live on last year's record and have been going all out from the first day of practice."

"No one on the squad has had a losing season. I've had them for four years, including their freshman season when I was an assistant coach."

Jago's assistants are Rick Hutchins and Rick Avery, who played at Quincy High from 1973-75 and played on one of the Presidents' tournament teams.

In last week's jamboree North defeated Don Bosco, 3-2, and dropped a 1-0 decision to Catholic Memorial, ranked No. 1 in Eastern Mass.

Bunker Steps Down At North

Charlie Bunker, North Quincy baseball coach for the past 14 years, has resigned, effective immediately.

Bunker gave no reason in his letter to the committee, but his son, Chris, the leading hitter in the Suburban League the last two years, has entered Dartmouth College and Charlie has said he wanted time to see his son play there.

Bunker, a pitching standout at Charlestown High and Boston College, was one of the top prospects in the Red Sox minor league system until he had to quit because of arm trouble.

While in the minors he lost a 10-inning 1-0 decision to Luis Tiant.

The late Red Sox scout, Neil Mahoney, said he had no doubts Bunker would have made the parent club if not for his arm trouble.

Several of Bunker's North Quincy players went on to star in college and some of them had pro tryouts.

In addition to accepting his resignation, the school committee approved the following coaching appointments:

man basketball, and Robert Quist, Quincy girls' freshman basketball.

After Setting Records Pro Teams Have Eye On Leone

By TOM SULLIVAN
For three years he was an outstanding place kicker and end at North Quincy High.

For the last four years he was breaking or tying every kicking record at the University of Maine.

What's next for North Quincy's Jack Leone?

Next year he could be kicking in the National Football League or the United States Football League.

Jack, son of Quincy Athletic Coordinator and Mrs. Carl Leone, recently completed a brilliant career at Maine and the Denver Broncos. Dallas Cowboys and Seattle Seahawks of the NFL and Los Angeles Express of the USFL are among the pro teams interested in him. Several scouting bureaus have also been keeping an eye on him.

"I would like to play pro ball more than anything in the world," said the 5-7, 160-pound Leone, who is majoring in accounting at Maine. "But if God doesn't want it to happen, then I'll have to try the business world."

Leone's record at the U. of Maine shows he should make the grade in the pros.

He led the Black Bears in scoring this season with 44 points. He scored 189 points in his college career with 96 of 103 extra points and 31 of 51 field goals.

In 1982 Jack set an NCAA record for most consecutive extra points in a season (45). This record has since been broken and is now 47.

JACK LEONE: Headed for the pros?

Also in 1982 he was first team All-Yankee Conference as a kicker and as a name to the FCAC honor roll for the week after the Connecticut game.

This fall his 42-yard field goal with nine seconds left beat Northeastern, 20-17. The previous week his 25-yarder in overtime lifted the Bears to a 13-10 win over Connecticut.

He holds the school record for extra points in a career, 96, and for most field goals in a career, 31. He also tied the school record for field goals in a season, 10.

Leone feels consistency is his biggest asset. Prior to this season he had charted his field goal attempts and found that from 30 yards or closer his accuracy mark was between 80 and 90 percent; from 30-40 yards it was between 70 and 80 percent, and 40 yards and above was 69 percent. This fall he barely missed on a 57-yard attempt.

"The best thing I do involves consistency," he said. "I can always strengthen my leg if that is needed, but I think the accuracy and consistency factors are what the pros are seeking."

Like several current NFL kickers, Jack is a barefooted soccer-style kicker.

During his career at Maine he was called upon to make six tackles and he can remember all of them. One in particular against Delaware his freshman season sticks out in his mind.

In that game Delaware's Kevin Phelan, brother of Maine halfback Paul and Doug Flutie's favorite target this year at Boston College, Gerard, returning the

North Swimmers Open Against Blue Hills Dec. 18

The North Quincy boys' swimming team opens its season next Tuesday, Dec. 18, against Blue Hills Regional at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool and, with a returning nucleus of 17 lettermen and 13 new members, coach Bill Walker is looking forward to another successful season.

North is coming off a 7-3 record last year, a record of eight straight winning seasons and a five-year record of 38-14.

"We look capable of increasing and adding to these statistics," said Walker. "Usually I write off Brock's record because we usually have a lot of early season marks, but the fact is we have the potential this season to beat any one we swim against and that is a nice feeling."

"Right now I can use at least two veterans in every event and this allows us to spend more time getting the new swimmers ready. I am pleased with the turnout of 30 boys, but I still wish that we had been able to attract more freshmen and sophomores because I feel short of my goal to have 40 swimmers, 10 in each class."

The team includes seniors John Bangs, Dan Moriarty and Brendan Walsh, the tri-captains; Tom Farmer, John McCosh, Chris Roberts, Rob Weikel and Brian McClelland; juniors

Pro Teams Have Eye On Leone

opening kickoff up the side lines and got past everyone except Leone.

Jack hit Phelan about hip-high and knocked him down at the Maine 40. Two plays later Maine intercepted a pass and drove for a touchdown.

"To this day Kevin relays through Paul how humiliated he was at being tackled by a kicker in that game," Leone said with a smile.

Jack will remember one of his misses all his life. With nine seconds left in regulation and the score tied against Boston University in 1982, Jack attempted a 47-yard field goal. One official signaled it good but another said it was wide. The kick was ruled no good and the Bears went into a four-overtime game they eventually lost. If his kick had been ruled good Maine would have finished the season as the sole Yankee Conference champion and would have been in the NCAA playoffs.

"Jack Leone has exceptional talent and has the ability to kick on the professional level," said his coach, Ron Rogerson. "He has a very strong leg and an excellent knowledge of the fundamentals of place-kicking. He is one of the finest athletes I have ever coached. His business and spirit will always allow him to be a top contender."

At North Quincy High he was a versatile athlete and, in addition to being one of New England's top place-kickers, he played golf, was a diver and ran both indoor and outdoor track. He won the state high jump championship in his senior year and kicked four field goals that year, including a 51-yarder against Weymouth South, a New England schoolboy record. He also was an all-scholastic in diving.

He also is a high jumper on the Maine track team.

His high school coach, Dave Burke, says of him: "I have no doubt whatever that Jackie can make it in the pros. He has a strong leg and is very consistent. Being a high jumper helps strengthen his legs. I have no doubt he will do well in pro football."

"Jack has always been a joy to us all through high school and college," said his mother, Greta. "He played in every game at Maine and we attended just about every one. I think he has a lot of loyal fans but none stronger than his own family."

Jack's brother, Carl, also played football at North Quincy and his sister Joanne was a cheerleader.

Christine Gallery 'Rookie Of Year'

Christine Gallery of Quincy, a freshman at the University of Rhode Island, has been named the Atlantic 10 Conference's Rookie of the Year in volleyball.

The former Quincy star who led the First Ladies to the state title two years ago and to the state semifinals last year, rose as high as eighth in the country this year in hitting percentage.

Rodophele, Evans Lead Over Weymouth

John Rodophele scored 23 points and Bob Evans added 17 and a stout defense in the last minute turned back a Weymouth bid as the Quincy High School basketball team whipped the Maroons, 66-55, in a Greater Boston League game at Weymouth.

The Presidents were plagued by foul trouble but Weymouth could convert only 17 of 30 attempts from the free throw line while Quincy was able to can 10 in 15 tries.

Reserve strength paid off for the Presidents in the late stages of the game as many starters were in foul trouble and Barry Green, Fred Greer, John Walsh, Ned Berman and Bo Paronich filled the gaps.

The Quincy lineup included: Harrison, Berman, Evans, Walsh, forwards; Fallon, Green, centers; Hamilton, Greer, Rodophele, Paronich, guards.

NORTH QUINCY WINS

The North Quincy High School basketball team ran up a 13-point lead at the end of the third quarter on the shooting of Paul LaBrecque, Jim Painter and Russ Landberg and then hung on for a 58-53 victory over Malden in a Greater Boston League game at Malden.

Malden's star Al Barriss finally solved the Raider defense in the final five minutes and connected with three straight hoops to cut the North lead to three points with 53 seconds remaining but time ran out on the fornaoeds.

The North Quincy lineup included: Davidson, Albert, Holmberg, Evans, forwards; LaBrecque, Thornell, centers; Painter, Bonner, Landberg, Sadlier, guards.

WOLLASTON UNDEFEATED

Jack Cattaneo, the leading scorer in the Old Colony Hockey League, added four points to his total with three goals and an assist as the Wollaston Hockey Club trounced Lower Square, 7-5, to remain undefeated and one point behind Pond Plain for the top spot.

The Wollaston lineup included: LaPierre, goal; Erickson, Fletcher, defense; Cattaneo, Casale, LeBlanc, forwards; Swanson, Small, McCabe, spares.

NEW YORKERS BEATEN

Dave Hutchinson scored 18 points from the pivot and Jack Smith added another 18 from the floor as the Eastern Nazarene College basketball team opened the season with a 70-50 victory over Johnson city Seminar of Binghamton, N.Y., in the Quincy High gym.

The Eastern Nazarene lineup included: M. Mann, R. Mann, forwards; Hutchinson, Norman, centers; Smith, Roberts, Wilhoit, Bricker, guards.

QUINCY HOCKEY OPENS

Coach Bill Hutchinson was preparing the Quincy High School hockey team for the Metropolitan League opener with a first line of Alfred Bonani, Alfred Bina and Jack Gunning; Brian Toland, and Bruce Person on defense; and Paul Hack in goal.

SPORTS BITS '58

Quincy High School football coach Bill Sullivan said he was not interested in an annual game with Archbishop Williams since the Presidents already played one Class B team, North Quincy, and a second would hurt their chances of a state title in an undefeated season. . . . Ed Crowley of Quincy was awarded a varsity letter in soccer at Bridgewater State Teachers College. . . .

Capt. George Burke was out with a hand injury but Wally Frye took up the slack with 26 points as the North Quincy Koch Club defeated Randy's, 90-83, in the Randolph High School gym. . . . Doug Mohns returned to the lineup after missing 23 games with a broken jaw and sparked the Boston Bruins to a 6-3 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs. . . . Bob Johnson showed the way with 17 points as Local 5 opened defense of its YMC A Industrial League championship with a 58-48 victory over Pneumatic Scale. . . . The Boston Red Sox obtained outfielder Jim Bushy from the Baltimore Orioles for shortstop Billy Klaus in their third trade in less than two weeks. . . . Frank Ramsey engineered a drive in the closing minutes that gave the Boston Celtics a 108-104 win over the Syracuse Nationals and enabled them to keep first place in the National Basketball Association.

Sylvia Short On Experience But Tall On Enthusiasm

Bob Sylvia has made it a habit of having winning seasons and leading Quincy's hockey teams into the Eastern Mass. tournament.

Last season Sylvia suffered through his worst season ever as the Presidents won only five games and he hopes to improve on that record this winter, although he isn't expecting any miracles.

Sylvia is in his 19th season as Quincy coach and many of his teams made the tournament. Two years ago the Presidents missed the tournament by just one game.

Quincy played in the Quincy Youth Arena jamboree last Saturday, opened its Suburban League season against Newton North last night (Wednesday) and Saturday will meet North Quincy at 7:50 p.m. at the Youth Arena. Next Wednesday the Presidents will host Brockton at the Youth Arena at 6:40 p.m.

"We lack experience but the players are showing a lot of enthusiasm," said Sylvia. "Our captain, Marc Aboud, has taken charge and is giving us the best leadership since Jack Crowley several years ago.

"We have to get off to a quick start. We'll be competitive and all the boys can skate. My problem is the same as it has been the last few years, scoring. I have a fine goalie and our defense should be excellent. It is the same old question, can we put the puck in the net?"

"North Quincy and Waltham look like the teams to beat in the league and the rest of the league looks well-balanced. I feel we can hold our own with most of the teams."

Billy Cahill returns as the number one goalie and Sylvia feels he will do the job. Behind him are Mark Sandonato, Dave Newcomb, a transfer from Thayer Academy, and a good looking freshman, Neil O'Callahan.

Aboud leads the defensemen and behind him are John Keeley, Mark Winter, sophomore Ed Flavin, a fine freshman prospect, Jon Bertoni, and Neil O'Neil.

Sylvia's top forward, Mike Hays, is currently injured and is not expected back until after the holidays.

The first line is made up of veterans Mark Walsh, John O'Connor and John Gleba and has looked good in practice.

Scott McGahey, Mike Bille and Steve Conas made up another promising line and the other forwards are Bill Ward, sophomore Brian Provenzano, Tony Scola, Peter Schuerch, sophomore Sean Craig, Brett Heeney and freshman John Scola, Tony's brother.

"As you can see, we have a lot of freshmen and sophomores who must prove themselves," Sylvia said. "But they have a lot of desire and I expect them to come along well."

Most of the players are products of the Quincy Youth Association, as are most of the North Quincy players.

Bob Troup is back as Sylvia's assistant coach and George Peachey has returned as freshman coach.

In last week's jamboree Quincy lost to Norwood and Randolph by scores of 3-0 and 1-0.

Track Club Runners Shine In St. Louis

Quincy Track Club runners turned in many excellent performances last week at the TAC Junior Olympics in St. Louis.

Leading the Quincy runners in the national meet was North Quincy High sophomore Tricia Barrett, who finished ninth in a field of 133 girls in the Intermediate Girls 5000-meter race, asserting herself as the finest distance runner to come out of North Quincy High.

"Tricia's the best sophomore in the state right now," said QTC Coach Jeff Hennessy. "She placed seventh in the high school all-state meet at Northfield and to get ninth nationally is fantastic. Nobody works harder and has more racing sense, and she's getting better all the time."

"This was the largest Junior Olympics ever held with over 1700 runners. I'm very pleased with our kids. After all, they only practice twice a week."

The Bantam girls (9-10) team finished sixth with Amy Janus finishing 45th, Lindsey McGovern 68th, Regina Murphy 82nd, Swan Curtis 83rd and Noreen Fever 86th. Also running were Katie O'Shea 93rd, Tricia Driscoll 105th, and Maureen Fewer 111th. There were 145 who finished this race.

The Midget girls' team finished ninth with Sherrin Quintilliani, leading the charge in 49th place, followed by Elizabeth Renda, 80th; Nancy Sheehy, 86th; Kim Guastella, 98th; Amanda Young, 100th, and Rachel Marshall, 106th. There were 153 finishers in this race.

Brian Klier placed 57th in Bantam boys over the muddy and challenging course.

"I would like to thank all the parents who accompanied us to St. Louis and gave the boys and girls encouragement," Hennessy said.

Raiderettes To Host Barnstable In Opener

Despite a relatively young and inexperienced varsity team, North Quincy girls' basketball coach Paul Bregoli is looking to improve on last year's disappointing 7-13 record.

The Raiderettes open Friday at home against Barnstable at 5 o'clock. Tuesday they will play at Hingham at 7:30 p.m. Their first Suburban League game will be Jan. 3 at Brookline. The freshman team opened Tuesday at Westwood.

"Last year we got off to a very slow start, losing a couple of close games early," said Bregoli. "It is going to be extremely important for us to get off to a good start this year."

North has two returning starters in senior captain Ann Duggan, a 5-8 forward, and junior forwards Karen Runge (5-9).

"Ann is our best defensive forward and will be asked to guard the opposing team's top players," Bregoli said. "However, she can score as she is quick and shoots well. Karen, who led the team in rebounding last year, is coming off a fine sophomore season. A good shooter, she can also take people inside."

Others who saw some varsity action a year ago include guards Jean Welby and Anne Marie Hughes and 6-foot center Eileen Warren. "Welby and Hughes work well together both offensively and defensively and Warren really blossomed into a fine inside player during the summer," said Bregoli. "She will rank up with the other top centers in our league."

Also figuring to make major contributions are seniors Geraldine Murphy, Stephanie Petrakos and Sandra Proude.

"Murphy and Petrakos give us some flexibility at center and forward as they both rebound well and play good defense," Bregoli continued. "Broude is from South Carolina where she played on that state's championship team. She can play either guard or forward and will be a big plus to this team."

Other varsity players are senior Mary Alice Sullivan, a 5-11 forward; sophomores Marybeth Maloney, 5-3 guard and Nancy Leonard, 5-4 guard; junior Nancy Lyons, 5-7 forward and freshman Nancy Flukes, 5-6 guard.

"The team's attitude has been terrific during the pre-season," said Bregoli. "We have looked good in scrimmages. We play seven of our first ten games on the road, however, so we'll know quickly how good we're going to be. I'm looking forward to working with this group."

Bregoli has a new assistant coach in Jim Timmins, former standout at B.C. High, while David Bregoli has taken over as freshman coach.

Stay Alive!

By John Valante.

DON'T LET YOUR TREE KILL YOU

You can almost count on reading it in the headlines every Christmas season. "Family dies in X-Mas tree-caused fire". Don't let it be you. Here are some safety suggestions for lighting your indoor tree.

Make sure your lights carry the UL (Underwriters Laboratories) label on the package to insure safety from the start.

Do not overload circuits. If one circuit won't take the extra burden, try more than one. Never replace a fuse with one of a higher amperage - the lights may go on but you also run the risk of fire.

Drape wires on tree so that lights fall between branches and not on them. Position bulbs so that they touch needles as little as often. Be sure any artificial tree you buy is flame retardant.

Finally, always disconnect lights when the family is asleep or away from the house.

Jail For Credit Card Cheats

Persons who fraudulently sign credit cards, or falsely report them stolen will face jail sentences under a new law, Sen. Paul D. Harold reports.

The new legislation amends the law covering credit card fraud by making it a crime to make a false statement in reporting a credit card lost or stolen.

The law already covers false statements in obtaining a credit card, stealing a credit card, and falsely using a credit card, Harold noted.

In each case, a person convicted faces a fine of not more than $500, a jail sentence of up to a year, or both.

The new law also includes falsely signing a credit card, making it a crime of forgery similar to forging a traveler's check.

Each violation is subject to a jail term of not more than two years, or a state prison sentence of up to 10 years, Harold noted.

Camp Fire Holds Dance

More than 100 Camp Fire youth members and their families attended the annual Quincy Camp Fire Square Dance held recently at First Baptist Church, Wollaston.

Bob Johnson of Quincy, caller at the event for the past 13 years, led the young people and their parents through a variety of folk and square dances.

Johnson's wife, Ruth, guided participants ranging in age from preschoolers through grandparents through maneuvers such as do-si-do, grand right and left, and right-hand star.

Everyone attending brought a non-perishable food item for Quincy Camp Fire's Holiday Food Drive.

The five cartons of donated food were delivered to Esther Sanger, Director of the Quincy Crisis Center, for distribution to Quincy's needy during the holiday season.

Laura Shea and Jaime Meade won the door prizes of candy-filled Camp Fire 75th Anniversary mugs.

Apple cider and munchkins were served.

Program coordinators Fran Meade and Lillian McCracken organized the event.

WEEK OF: DECEMBER 13

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19
Moderation is the keyword, especially when it comes to spending cash or taking on a heavy-duty project. Romantic intuition is sharper than you may believe.

PISCES - February 20-March 20
Allow extra time for attending to financial matters. Documents related to legal, property or other affairs should be read between the lines. Friend is willing to back your ideas.

ARIES - March 21-April 20
Intuition is strong, especially in romance-related areas. Career goal comes into sharper focus. If shopping for a special friend, combine a commonsense idea with a whimsical touch.

Your charm and humor win admirers and earn you praise. This is your week for entertaining, for promoting ideas, and for expanding areas of interest.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21
Small but satisfying domestic triumph spotlights the week. Weekend finds loved one in a lighthearted, sociable mood. New friend is unexpectedly quiet; don't force anything.

CANCER - June 22-July 22

LEO - July 23-August 22
Loved one is evasive while you're in a mood to tell all, but try not to reveal major plans until they've materialized. Begin a family health inventory as the year draws to a close.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22
This may be the week that a friend makes a long-awaited commitment or announcement. You have a knack for playing matchmaker. Color-wise, you're in a bold, upbeat mood.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22
Your best efforts are joint efforts, especially in fields of advertising and public relations. Verbal skills are sharp. Workload includes a mix of variety and challenge.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22
Try to avoid conflicts with someone who's very much like yourself. Financial news is positive, but be sure that promises are in writing. Possessive friend relaxes the grip.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20
Friend surprises you with far-out ideas, but don't dismiss them too quickly. Travelers should have a backup plan. If debating or arguing a cause, you prove a true master.

2ND HOME AND TAX DEFERMENT

QUESTION: I understand if I sell my principal residence at a profit and buy a more expensive one that I won't have to pay the tax on the profit at the time of the sale. Does this apply to vacation homes also?

ANSWER: No. If you sell a vacation home at a profit and promptly buy a more expensive place, you cannot defer the income tax on the profit. This tax break is available only when both the house sold and the house purchased serve as your principal residence. A vacation house doesn't qualify. However, if you owned the dwelling for more than a year, the profit would be taxed at the lower, long-term capital gains rate.

SINCE YOUR VACATION HOME IS NOT YOUR PRINCIPAL RESIDENCE, IT DOES NOT QUALIFY FOR A TAX DEFERMENT IF YOU SELL AND MOVE UP.

EFFICACIOUS PRAYER to MARY, QUEEN OF OUR HEARTS

O Mary Queen of our Hearts, advocate of the most hopeless cases, Mother so Pure, so Compassionate, Mother of Divine Love, and full of Divine Light, I place in Thy tender Hands the favors which I ask of Thee today.
Behold our miseries, our needs, our tears, our interior trials and sufferings! We know that Thou canst hear us through the merits of Thy Divine Son Jesus Christ. We promise, if we are heard, to spread Thy Glory, and to make Thee known under the title of MARY QUEEN OF OUR HEARTS and Queen of the entire universe.

We beseech Thee to grant us our requests, at Thy Altar, where each day Thou givest such manifold proofs of Thy power and Love for the health of the soul and body.
We shall hope against all hope, O MARY, OUR QUEEN, ask of Jesus our cure, our pardon, and our final perseverance.
O MARY, QUEEN OF OUR HEARTS, cure us, we have confidence in Thee (Repeat 3 times).
Recite this prayer for nine consecutive days, go to confession and receive Holy Communion.

O most holy apostle, St. Jude, faithful servant and friend of Jesus, the name of the traitor who delivered your beloved Master into the hands of His enemies has caused you, to be forgotten by many, but the Church honors and invokes you universally, as the patron of hopeless cases, of things almost despaired of. Pray for me, I am so helpless and alone. Make use I implore you, of that particular privilege given to you, to bring visible and speedy help where help is almost despaired of. Come, my assistance in this great need that I may receive the consolation and help of heaven in all my necessities, tribulations, and sufferings, particularly—(Here make your request) and that I may praise God with you and all the elect forever. I promise, O blessed St. Jude, to be ever mindful of this great favor, to always honor you as my special and powerful patron, and to gratefully encourage devotion to you. Amen.

McCauley Hopes Other Unions Follow Laborers In Contracts

The city reached contract agreement with the Laborers' Union last week and Mayor Francis X. McCauley said if other unions follow the guidelines in that contract the city will be living well within its means.

The 180-member Laborers' Union settled for a two-year contract retroactive to last July 1 with a 3 per cent pay raise Jan. 1, 1985 and a 4 per cent wage hike July 1, 1985.

McCauley said the contract will cost the city about $48,000 for the last six months of fiscal 1985 and $225,000 for the full fiscal year 1986, which starts July 1, 1985.

"If all the unions in the city settled for 3 per cent and 4 per cent," said McCauley, "the cost for fiscal 1985 would be $650,000. Since we have about $950,000 in the reserve for appropriation fund, that would leave us $300,000 for emergencies."

The Mayor said another union, which he refused to name, is close to a settlement on about the same terms.

The two largest unions in the city, the teachers and the clerks and hospital workers, are awaiting the appointment of a state mediator to mediate their contract stalemates.

"If all the contracts are settled in the area of 3 and 4 per cent, we could live with it in fiscal 1986, too," said McCauley.

Communities To Get $1

Per Resident In State Census

Cities and towns will now be reimbursed $1 per resident for conducting the state-mandated local census, State Senator Paul D. Harold reports.

Under new legislation now in effect, the former state reimbursement of 25 cents per resident has been quadrupled.

The local census is only taken ever 10 years, but the next state "census day" is next March 1, so the increase is timely, Harold said.

The census lists people living in the city or town as of March 1, and must be reported to the Secretary of State by the following 1.

The Secretary of State

then uses a report of the census results and the Governor must, within 30 days request funds for reimbursing the cities and towns.

The Legislature then appropriates the money, and the State Treasurer must pay the cities and towns within 90 days, Senator Harold said.

Nursing Home Aids Needy

The Quincy Nursing Home has combined the efforts of the staff, patients, visitors and families to provide food and gifts for a needy family assigned through the Koch Club

Christmas Charitable Program.

The group will donate the gifts and food for a mother and five children in their annual project to assist others as the patients, friends and workers combine.

Nancy Libby, representative of the Quincy Nursing Home, completed arrangements for the projects

$250-M Squantum Project Gets Mixed Reaction

By TOM HENSHAW

More than 200 people jammed the City Council Chamber at City Hall Monday night for yet another lively hearing into the proposed development of the old Naval Air Station property in Squantum.

At issue before the Council and the Planning Board were three proposed amendments to the zoning ordinances changing 22.54 acres from Planned Unit Development (PUD) to Business C, 33.07 acres from Industrial A to Business C and 18.82 acres from Industrial A to PUD.

The O'Connell brothers, Peter and William, are seeking the zoning changes so they can develop 80 acres of the 400-acre site under a $250 million plan that includes 845 condominium units, 850,000 square feet of office space, two restaurants and a 300-room hotel.

Five people at the hearing testified in favor of the zoning amendments and 107 recorded themselves in favor. Eleven people spoke in opposition and 51 were recorded.

Proponents had high praise for the O'Connells who are already constructing 101 condo units on the site and who have built apartment buildings and office complexes all over the city.

Carmine D'Olimpio, president of the Quincy Building Trades Council, said in his experience the O'Connells have "consistently demonstrated their concerns for the city and its citizens and the hours, wages and working conditions" on their projects.

Roger B. Lyons of 211 West Squantum St., North Quincy, a developer himself, pointed out that the area "has been abandoned since World War II. Several projects proposed for it have not been ideal. Now we have a good one. Let's go. It's great."

The chief objections to the O'Connells' plans were that they would create and magnify sewage and traffic problems and, with the proposed zoning changes, the city would lose control of the development.

Maureen Mazrinias, president of Save Our Shores, noted that the same area had been zoned and rezoned before in the past few years and, she added, "now we are back at the puzzle at Christmastime to benefit the developer. Enough is enough."

"There seems to be very little planning in this proposal for a $250 million project," she said. "It's time we took a hard look at all development in Quincy. It has gotten out of hand."

"This project has been opposed for 20 years," said Arthur Chandler, president of the Quincy Citizens Association. "We are not opposed to change but we are opposed to the degree of what is happening in Quincy."

"The city has no master plan. You are rezoning the city like it came out of the woodwork. You are changing the whole complexion of the city. The citizens of Quincy are not happy. The younger families are leaving because they do not like what is happening."

Chandler asked that the land not be rezoned "until we get a master plan of the development that everyone can see."

"We are not outsiders," said William O'Connell, defending the development plan. "We have never done anything detrimental to Quincy and we are not going to start now."

The hearing was at times stormy as testimony (Cont'd on Page 4)

Track Depression No Mistake Says McCauley

Mayor Francis X. McCauley says he disagrees with the state auditor's contention that the MBTA wasted $2.4 million in federal funds and $600,000 in state money depressing the tracks in Quincy Center.

The report by Auditor John J. Finnegan said the track depression "eventually provided no benefit to either the rapid transit system or the surrounding community."

"The reconstruction," he said, "would have allowed Quincy to proceed with its own downtown urban development project."

"However, the value of the reconstruction was never realized because after the authority completed its reconstruction, the city of Quincy abandoned its proposed development plans."

"Therefore, in our opinion, the reconstruction proved to be an unnecessary expenditure of taxpayers' money."

McCauley said he failed to see how it was an unnecessary expenditure.

"Regardless of what goes on over the depressed tracks," he said, "we still have the opportunity to build over them. Who knows if we will in the future? The opportunity is there."

"Even if nothing occurs, it's still a good idea."

Probe Quincy Youth's Death On MBTA Track

An investigation continues into the death of William T. Kinsella, 18, of 159 Farrington St., No. Quincy, who was killed early Monday when he hit his head on a bridge in Dorchester while riding on top of an MBTA Red Line train.

Police said Kinsella apparently climbed on top of the train as a prank while it had stopped at a station and was standing on top of the car when the train arrived at the Redfield St. bridge near Neponset Circle.

He and six friends had boarded the train at Washington St. station, Boston, en route home from a rock concert in the Boston Garden shortly after midnight.

MBTA Deputy Police Chief Albert J. Sweeney said police are investigating reports that at least one possibly three, other youths had also been riding atop the train.

Doors at each end of the cars are supposed to be locked but the top of the train can be reached by climbing inside a station.

A funeral Mass for Kinsella will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. in Gate of Heaven Church, South Boston.

Visiting hours were yesterday (Wednesday) 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the O'Brien Funeral Home, 148 Dorchester Ave., South Boston.

He leaves his parents, Joseph T. and Patricia A. Kinsella of Quincy and a sister, Kathleen, also of Quincy.

310 Needy Families Get Christmas Help

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The holidays will be a little bit happier for 310 needy families thanks to the efforts of three local organizations who are distributing food baskets and toys.

The local organizations are the Koch Club, Quincy Lodge of Elks and the Salvation Army.

The Koch Club of Quincy and its Charitable Committee are continuing to sponsor a series of projects for the holiday season.

The organization started its program in 1956 by delivering two food baskets to needy families in North Quincy at Christmas. The Committee will in its 29th year provide 80 food baskets consisting of turkeys, hams, fresh fruits and vegetables and canned goods as well as gifts for children. The food and gifts will be distributed through Community Action, church and social service agencies who service the needy throughout the year.

The Koch Club new and used toys program will exceed a total of 5,000 items that have been donated by organizations, schools, families and individuals from Quincy and adjacent towns.

Toys will be delivered this week to children in the Quincy area while several thousand used toys have been cleaned, sorted, packaged and delivered to sections of Boston where the need is the greatest including the South End, Roxbury and Chinatown sections of the city.

Since 1971, over 25,000 toy items have been collected, cleaned and delivered to organizations serving the needy.

Thousands of articles of good used clothing and shoes have been distributed to sections of Boston and Cambridge where hundreds are in need of warm clothing. Once again, the clothing has been donated by many families from Quincy and Weymouth.

In the past year, it is estimated that at least 10,000 articles of clothing have been collected, sorted, packaged and transported to locations for distribution to those in need of assistance.

The Koch Club with its additional donation from the Sacred Heart C.Y.O. of North Quincy in a $1,000 donation have purchased and provided woolen hats, gloves and socks for the homeless at the Pine Street Inn, Rosie's Place and Long Island Hospital along with sheets and handkerchiefs.

Richard J. Koch, Executive Director of the Koch Club, points out that it would be impossible to accomplish its expansive and far reaching projects of concern without the dedicated organizations and individuals who with donations of money, food, toys and clothing and hours of volunteer work make the holiday program of compassion a success.

Youth and senior citizens have combined to make the 1984 Koch Club Christmas Charitable Endeavors the most successful in its 29 year history.

The Quincy Lodge of Elks will distribute Sunday about 130 Christmas baskets with turkeys and all the trimmings for a holiday meal.

About 25 club members will use their own cars and trucks to deliver the baskets to needy families.

The money for the baskets was donated by the members, said lodge secretary George Alcott.

About the same number of families was helped last year as this year, said Alcott.

Fred Casey, esteemed leading knight, is chairman.

Alcott added that fruit baskets were delivered to sick members last weekend.

About 100 families will receive food and toys from the Quincy Temple Corps of the Salvation Army in Quincy, according to Capt. Gerald Stephens, commanding officer.

Families that applied to the Salvation Army will visit the Salvation Army and select toys they wrap and give to their children.

Parcels of food including canned goods, flour, butter, cheese, turkey stuffing and vouchers for meat and vegetables according to family size will also be distributed.

Money from the Salvation Army kettles helps pay for the toys and food, said Stephens. Mail donations are also received.

So far, requests for assistance are down from last year, Stephens, said, but for a good reason.

"We feel employment in the area is on an upswing, and we can't help but feel the situation is better for the needy," Stephens said.

He explained there is more emergency housing, such as that provided at the Salvation Army and St. John's School, and better feeding facilities.

"This will help enhance the quality of life for Christmas for the street people and people with need in Quincy," said Stephens.

A Close Call For Morrissey

Rep. Michael Morrissey had a close call in a well known Boston restaurant the other night.

Morrissey was dining with his wife, Joanne, and two friends, Rep. Kenny Lemanski and Janice Pasucci when a piece of meat became lodged in his throat.

Morrissey calmly said: "I'm choking. Help me."

Joanne, keeping her cool, too, got up from the table and began the Heimlich maneuver which she had learned on television.

But apparently she was not forceful enough and the piece of meat remained lodged.

A young man who was at a nearby table saw the problem and went to Morrissey's aid, taking over the Heimlich maneuver from Joanne and succeeding in dislodging the piece of meat.

And talk about the right person being in the right spot at the right time!

The young man turned out to be Powel Brown, a New York University medical student who was in Boston for interviews for a possible residency at one of two Boston hospitals.

A grateful Morrissey thanked him and said he'd be happy to write a letter of recommendation for him.

"I can honestly tell them you are good," Morrissey told him.

It was a happy ending to a scary situation.

MORRISSEY

CONDON

IF JOANNE CONDON goes ahead with her plans to run for mayor next year as expected, it could open a floodgate of candidates for Ward 6 City Council seat.

Many names are being mentioned as potential candidates. Four have been noted here before: Thomas Nutley, Boston Gas Co. executive and Condon supporter; Thomas Koch and Linda Bowes, brother and sister of Councillor Richard Koch, Jr. and John Walsh, who managed Ron Iacobucci's campaign for councillor at-large last year.

But now a number more are being added as possibilities. Among them:

Richard Golden who unsuccessfully challenged Senator Paul Harold this year; Walter Hickey, who has been a candidate in the past; Pat Conroy, who has run for the School Committee; Mary Ann Mahoney, a prior candidate; George Alcott, Jr. and Richard Sheridan.

Condon, incidentally, must have won a few friends and/or votes handing out corsages to senior citizens at the recent Christmas party at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

BUCKLEY

WELL, Brian Buckley, coordinator of the Quincy Youth Commission and Quincy Council on Aging has done it again.

For the ninth straight year his Christmas card features a photo of him with a celebrity. This year's star: Jerry Mathers, better known as TV's The Beaver.

Last year's celebrity was Carroll O'Connor, Archie Bunker himself.

Others have included Bobby Orr, Bobby Hull, Bill Fitch, former Celtics Coach, and Rafer Johnson Olympics gold medalist.

And, of course, Buckley showed Roger Dangelield some respect, selecting him one year.

Visual Illusion Activities At Children's Library

Self guided activities about visual illusions will be held in the children's room at the Main Library in Quincy Square during school vacation week.

Children can drop in at any time during the vacation period to challenge their beliefs with illusions.

An activity center with clear instructions and materials needed for each illusion will be set up in the children's room. Books about illusions and books of illusions will be on display and available for borrowing.

wandered far afield from the zoning damages on the agenda.

Rona Goodman, an attorney who lives at 40 Crabtree Rd., Squantum, charged that the zoning change from Industrial A to Business C was asked simply to legalize existing liquor licenses in the Industrial A zone in which such liquor sales are not allowed.

The remedy for the liquor licenses, said Goodman, is "to go to the City Council and fool around with zoning one more time."

She noted that there had been a fire not long ago in one of the liquor establishments and she implied that it had been started in five different places in and outside the lounge in order to gain another liquor license in the area.

"The Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms investigated the fire," she said, "and they found not enough cause to indict but that it was clear that there was arson."

Councillor Michael Cheney warned her that her words could be interpreted as accusing the owners of the lounge of setting the fire and asked her to back up the charges.

"I have questions about what happens out there," replied Goodman but she did not produce any support for her statements.

"We started out with a hearing on zoning," said Councillor Joanne Condon, "and we're ending up with a hearing that has nothing to do with zoning at all. This has no bearing on the issues. I'm surprised that, as an attorney, she would make such statements."

Condon herself came under fire from Jens Thornton of 14 Orchard St., Squantum, who suggested that she might be in conflict of interest by voting on the zoning changes because she received campaign contributions from the O'Connell brothers.

The general feeling among the councillors was that if campaign contributions were judged to be in conflict of interest then all councillors would be unable to vote on most issues.

The hearing was chaired by Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia while Council President James A. Sheets watched on television in his office to avoid any hint of conflict of interest. His wife, Joann, works for the O'Connell brothers in another one of their enterprises.

At one point in the stormy three-hour hearing, Eleanor Johnson of 180 Lansdowne St., Squantum, testifying in opposition to the zoning changes, refused to speak until Councillors Stephen J. McGrath and Condon were in their seats.

"She is our councillor," said Johnson. "I want them to hear what I say."

LaRaia finally assuaged her by permitting her to resume her testimony later when the councillors had returned.

At another point in the hearing, William Grabowski of 164 Crabtree Rd., Squantum, questioned the legality of the hearing because a large number of people could not get into the jammed hall.

City Solicitor Dean Nicastro suggested that the hearing could be adjourned to a time convenient to everyone and LaRaia tried to do just that but Dennis Harrington, attorney for the O'Connells, objected.

"This hearing was properly advertised and it started on time," he said. "It could continue even if there were 5,000 people outside who could not get in."

"There are certain time limits to this project. This hearing must be concluded and the applicants presentation must be heard tonight."

The Planning Board postponed consideration of the zoning changes until its Jan. 15 meeting.

Sheets Proposes Master Plan For Development

By TOM HENSHAW
City Council President James A. Sheets has proposed that the Mayor, the city planners and the City Council sit down and develop a master plan to determine the scope of development allowed in the city over the next decade.

"If we continue to let development come into the city in an unmanaged manner," he said, "Quincy will be a city in the true Boston sense."

"Just as we have reached a limit in allowing pollution in the bay, we have also reached a point where we can no longer allow sprawling unmanaged development."

But Mayor Francis X. McCauley was less than enthusiastic over a master plan for the city.

"All this talk of a master plan is nice," he said, "but it's difficult to do that in a private society, unlike a collectivist state. I don't think it's practical."

McCauley noted that the city was first zoned in 1943 and there was citywide rezoning in 1971 and "we've worked very well with it."

A number of people who testified Monday night at a rezoning hearing before the Council and the Planning Board said they thought it is time for the city to formulate a master plan of development.

"What happens now," said Sheets, "is that the ward councillors are left to fight over development by themselves."

He said the matter came to a head with him last Saturday when he got a call from the Ballou St. area of West Quincy where a woman went downstairs to do her wash and found raw sewage floating in her wash tub.

"That's scary," he said. "Usually that happens only when there is a heavy rain and the system is surcharged with water. We don't have wet weather now. That says to me that the pressure on the subsystem has become greater."

"That raises the question to me, 'Are these homes livable?'"

Sheets said the Mayor, the Planning Department and the City Council should sit down as soon as possible "and make some hard decisions on the future of the city."

"It is possible that we should take a look at rezoning the city," he said. "Enough changes have occurred since 1971, when the last major rezoning amendment was passed, so that we should take another crack at it."

"Even with the new Sewer and Water Commission revitalizing the system, it looks like it will be four years before Quincy gets the massive relief it needs."

"We also need an interim plan to control development."

McCauley said a master plan for city development "smacks of central planning which is not practical in a free society."

"We've handled economic development and the quality of life in the city pretty well," he said. "We've had a balanced approach. We do not have a 'no growth' policy but we have made sure there is substantial open space."

But, he added, "We need to be increasingly vigilant. Land is scarce and we are in a building boom. Traffic and Sewer problems will not be solved by a master plan but it is something we have to work on. I'm willing to look at anything."

Restrictions Lifted On Branch Banks

Massachusetts banks may now establish branch offices anywhere in the state, Sen. Paul D. Harold notes.

Under new legislation now in effect, the former geographic limitations on bank branches have been abolished.

Formerly, banks could locate branches in the same community where the main office was located, or within the same county, or within forty miles of the main office.

Harold said the new law still requires the approval of the state banking commissioner after a public hearing, but expands the commissioner's authority to grant applications anywhere in the commonwealth.

"This new law will allow real competition among banks, and will allow them to better serve their customers," he said.

He noted that many banks have established electronic teller depots in outlying areas so that customers do not have to travel all the way to the bank to conduct their banking.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Teachers Reject $300 Raise

Quincy teachers took a secret ballot vote on what to do next in their campaign to reject a temporary $300 salary hike and obtain a permanent $500 increase.

Kenneth J. Kelley, secretary of the Quincy Central Labor Union, said a number of the teachers had asked the American Federation of Labor how to go about organizing a union.

William H. Edmonston, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, which supports the temporary raise, said a poll taken of Medford citizens was against permanent increases.

But a committee of Quincy police and firemen noted that their counterparts in Somerville had received permanent hikes to $2,912 a year, adding only $1.40 to the tax rate.

The Somerville tax rate was $42.50 and the Quincy rate was $30.

A funeral Mass for Marie "Mary" (Brunelle) Desrosiers, 81, of Quincy, a retired waitress and mill worker, was held Monday in St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

Mrs. Desrosiers died Dec. 14 in Presidential Convalescent Home, Quincy.

She had lived in Quincy for 10 years.

Wife of the late Joseph "Louie" Desrosiers, she is

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Another New Year has arrived. What kind of a year will it be? It is our hope that the coming year will be well endowed with supplies of faith, courage and determination - a sufficient supply for everyone - for private citizen as well as public official. . . . Without faith, not only in God but in the abilities of our leaders at all levels and in ourselves, accomplishments will be few. Our leaders must display faith in the future by preparing and adopting programs filled with vision and veracity. Vacillation will not instill faith in the public - a faith that will be needed to insure the success of their programs.

All of us must develop the type of courage it takes to speak out when a wrong needs righting. Too many sit back and hope that somebody else will make the first move or speak the first word. . . . Too many "don't want to get involved" - a decision that can feed the fires of greed, incompetence and dishonesty.

And finally, we must acquire determination to assure that those things which we have become involved through use of our courage reach fruition.

Without these three - faith in the future, the courage of our convictions, and determination in our efforts - the coming year will not be a good year. . . . But with these three, we can do much to shape a better community, state nation and world. . . .

Perhaps you were not there at all,
Just thought of us that day.
Whatever you did to console our hearts,
We thank you so much whatever the part.

Will Retire Next Year

Rev. Keith C. Munson To Step Down As First Parish Minister

The Rev. Keith C. Munson, minister of United First Parish Church, Quincy Sq., had decided to resign after 10 years at the church.

In a letter to church members, Rev. Munson, 62, stated.

"After a great deal of soul-searching, career-planning, and evaluation of personal needs and desires, I have decided to bring to a close my career in the parish ministry."

"I shall formally announce my resignation as minister of United First Parish Church Sunday, June 2, 1985 to take effect August 31, 1985."

"... I have reached that time in my life when I do not wish to postpone so many interests and desires I long to experience. Time and life seem to become more precious as the years accumulate."

Rev. Munson has been involved in parish ministry for over 40 years.

His previous assignment was at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill, N.J., where he spent eight years and coordinated the parish's paying back a $100,000 debt.

Born in Caribou, Maine, he received his undergraduate degree from Tufts University in 1944 and theological degree from that institution in 1946.

He and his wife, Peggy, have two children and four grandchildren.

They plan to settle in their house in Maine.

Some of the interests Rev. Munson hopes to pursue are sailing, ham radio operating, traveling around the country in a motor home and visiting abroad.

Still, it seems Quincy will always have a special place in his heart.

Rev. KEITH C. MUNSON

"I've enjoyed the honor that I've felt in being minister of this historic and most dignified church, and relating to the community at large."

"I've had a very pleasant and fine relationship with the city's mayors and other officials."

"I've felt pride in the progress of the Woodward School, where I've been chairman of the board of supervisors. I have a good feeling about the enrollment which has doubled in the last five years. There has been a five-fold increase in the budget."

Rev. Munson has also enjoyed the historic aspect of the church of the Presidents since he majored in history in college and studied American church history.

The decision to leave was difficult, said Rev. Munson.

"But, life doesn't wait, time marches on."

"I'm going to settle with my wife in our home in Maine and we'll enjoy each other and our family."

Christmas in Church

The Christmas Story

Luke, 2, 1-14. At that time, there went forth a decree from Caesar Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. The first census took place while Cyrenus was governor of Syria.

And all were going each to his own town, to register.

And Joseph also sent from Galilee out of the town of Nazareth into Judea to the town of David, which is called Bethlehem - because he was of the house and family of David - to register, together with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child.

And it came to pass while they were there, that the days for her to be delivered were fulfilled.

And she brought forth her first-born Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the Inn.

And there were shepherds in the same district living in the fields and keeping watch over their flock by night.

And behold, an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of God shone round them, and they feared exceedingly.

And the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which shall be to all the people; for today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you, Who is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign to you; you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angels a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men of good will."

2 Candlelight Services At Squantum Church

There will be two candlelight services Christmas Eve, Dec. 24, at the First Church of Squantum.

A family service will be held at 7 p.m. and a second service at 11 p.m.

Persons of all ages planning to attend either service are asked to bring a bell or bells with them to jingle.

Members of the First Church of Squantum participated in a candlelight observance of the Lord's Supper Sunday at the early Sunday service.

Church pastor the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin preached on the topic, "The Unexpected Christ."

Guitarist Mary Ruth Scott and pianist Mindi Hurd provided accompaniment for the carols.

Lori Ogilvie, Amanda Young and Marci Hurd assisted the pastor in lighting the third candle in the Advent wreath, recalling the angels who came to tell the shepherds that Christ was born.

David Williams and Susan Scott were ushers.

Robert Dixey was in charge of refreshments.

At the later traditional service the pastor's message was entitled "The Scandal of Particularity." Texts for that sermon were "Be not afraid; for behold, I bring you good news of a great joy which will come to all the people; for to you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord" (Luke 2: 10-11) and "But when the time had fully come, God sent forth His Son, born of woman, born under the law, to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as sons." (Galatians 4:4-5)

Jaimie Galvin and Sammy Corey assisted the pastor in lighting the third candle in the Advent wreath. Greeters were Tom and Janet Williamson. Ushers were Fore Wallin and Steward Scott.

The Junior Choir sang "The Gift of Love" by Sue Page. They were accompanied by James Summer on the violin. Kerry and Kristen Pelletier played "Gesu Bambino" by Pietro

A. Yon on the flute and the piano for the offertory.

The Chancel Choir sang Martin Shaw's arrangement of the traditional "Conventry Carol" for the offertory anthem. The carols were "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "Angels, From the Realms of Glory," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen" and "Angels We Have Heard on High." The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Barbara Frazer and Kay Kelly.

This Sunday, Dec. 23, there will be a Christmas Sunday Breakfast at 9:15 a.m. and one service for all at 10:30 a.m.

The 10 a.m. service is followed by a Fellowship Hour in the Social Hall. At 5 p.m., the combined Youth Fellowships will meet for Christmas carolling to shut-ins.

suggestions

There is still time to give just a few more things in the real spirit of Christmas. And all they cost is a little of you. You can probably think of many more, but these are just a few suggestions to start with.

- * Ask someone who's far from home (or has no home) to share your Christmas dinner
- * Use your mistletoe generously
- * Say thank you a lot
- * Take one of your favorite presents to that kid in your class you suspect Santa might miss
- * Take a thermos of hot chocolate to your school crossing guard
- * Pick someone up and take them with you to Christmas services
- * Put out bread crumbs for the birds and nuts for the squirrels
- * Pull out your mother's chair for her when she sits down to dinner
- * Offer to say "grace" yourself
- * Invite someone who has no fireplace over to enjoy yours
- * Call your doctor and ask how he's feeling
- * Help the little kids in your neighborhood build their first snowman (if there's snow)
- * Tell someone you love them

Colonial Federal Has More Guaranteed Student Loans

More credit for guaranteed loans is available to area students because Colonial Federal Savings Bank of Quincy has sold part of its student loan portfolio to the New England Education Loan Marketing Corporation, also known as Nellie Mae.

"What this means to students in communities served by Colonial Federal is that $110,000 has been freed by the bank to make more guaranteed student loans," says Lawrence W. O'Toole, president of Nellie Mae.

With this sale, Colonial Federal Savings Bank has sold more than $600,000 of its student loans to Nellie Mae, a regionally-based financial intermediary serving the education credit market.

"Working with a secondary market like Nellie Mae gives Colonial Federal the flexibility to help more students meet the rising costs of higher education," says O'Toole.

Nellie Mae is a private, non-profit corporation created to replenish local supplies of student credit. Nellie Mae has purchased more than $100 million in guaranteed student loans from 93 New England lending institutions.

Toodie's Jewelry Concepts
by Howard Jacobs

If you are in the market for a very unusual colored stone, alexandrite may very well fit the bill. These distinctive stones actually change color from various shades of green, under daylight, to various shades of red under artificial light. Ideally, this very distinct change should progress from grass green to raspberry red. This relatively scarce stone gives the sophisticated buyer a chance to enjoy its almost mystical quality. Alexandrite was discovered in the Ural region of Russia on the day in 1831 on which Alexander II, Russian heir-apparent, came of age. Hence, a Russian mineralogist coined the name "Alexandrite." This is, indeed, a very intriguing colored gem.

At this time the staff at TOODIE'S FINE JEWELRY would like to wish all our readers and customers a very Merry Christmas and a happy and healthy New Year. It has been our pleasure serving you this past for all your jewelry and gift giving needs, and we look forward to doing the same in 1985. We pride ourselves on the quality of our merchandise and of the service we give to you. We do expert jewelry repairs including watches and give professional appraisals. Make sure this year you visit us at 1163 Hancock St., Mon. - Fri. 10-6 Sat. till 6 Sun. 12-5 Tel. 479-9464.

Alexandrite is very durable with a MOHS scale rating of 8.

What Christmas . . . And Chanukah Mean To Me

Students in Quincy's public elementary and middle schools again this year were invited to submit articles on the themes "What Christmas Means to Me" and "What Chanukah Means to Me."

The Sun is happy to share their thoughts at this season with you.

Publishing these articles has become a tradition to which all of us at the Sun look forward to and we hope you do too.

We were swamped again this year with entries and because of space limitations are unable to print all of them. We are sorry because so many, many others were worthy of publication.

However, we will print more next week as space permits.

To all who participated we wish a Merry Christmas, a Happy Chanukah and a Healthy New Year.

I think Chanukah is a time of sharing with family and friends. It is a very special time that shouldn't be taken for granted. For the eight days it lasts I feel special and loved when I given presents and receive them. It sometimes makes me see how fortunate I am to have a family who's always there and a nice house and neighborhood and I think everyone should share this special feeling.

What Christmas . . . And Chanukah Mean To Me

The Greeks took over the temple in Jerusalem. The Greek army was big. The battle began and the Jewish army won. The temple was out of commission. They found one can of oil and it was supposed to last for one day, but it lasted for eight days. Hanukkah should be celebrated throughout the year.

To me, Christmas means going out with my father and buying a real tree. The best part is decorating the tree. We put on beautiful designed ornaments, sparkling garlands, and blinking lights. Some of the colorful ornaments were made by my family.

I like having a real tree because it smells good, and it leaves a pine scent in the air. Having a real tree seems to make it look more Christmasy.

What Christmas Means To Me...

Christmas means sharing, giving, taking, and loving. It means getting up early and opening presents. You can eat delicious candy canes and play with your new toys. You can try on your new clothes and see how they fit. There is also no school that week, so you can go skating and sledding. I think Christmas is the greatest holiday of the year.

Christmas means love and joy. Almost 2,000 years ago, Christ came to earth to bring love and joy. In every person's heart there is plenty of room for the sick people, for the people who are hungry, cold and homeless. I see on television that the people die from hunger in many countries.

I hope you pray to God to help, all the people and bring peace. That's what Christmas means to me.

What Christmas Means To Me . . .

Christmas means seeing friends and family that you haven't seen for a long time. It means love, joy, and sharing with one another. I think Christmas should be a time when everyone could be together but, sometimes people are alone. It's a time when you give and receive gifts. On Christmas we always sing Happy Birthdays to Jesus.

Debbie Robbins

Christmas to me means a joyful time for family get together. Celebrating the birth of Christ by attending church and singing carols has always been one of my favorites. Decorating the Christmas tree and putting up lights to make the house look spectacular is important. Christmas to me also means giving and receiving, loving and not hating.

Jennifer Murray
Montclair, Gr. 5

Christmas means when Jesus was born in the stable. When my family goes to church, we share each other's joys and love. On Christmas Eve children go caroling in the neighborhood. Other things that please me are decorating the tree, and putting up the stockings.

Julie Comeau
Montclair, Gr. 5

Christmas means much to me because it is a special time for sharing, caring and enjoying. This special time of the year is a time for fun, playing in the snow, opening presents, and celebrating the birth of our dear and beloved Christ. What a time it is for joy, being with your family enjoying the holiday, giving and receiving presents and feeling the coziness of the holiday, being inside all warm and fresh by a lit fire watching the snow floating down in clouds of white.

Last but not least, Christmas is especially a time for love shared by your whole family on Christmas Day and forever. I that's what Christmas means to me.

Amy Wong
Montclair, Gr. 5

Christmas means a lot of love and warmth. It means Jesus the King is born. It does not mean a lot of toys. Really it has nothing to do with toys. I wouldn't care if there were no toys. I think the best part of Christmas is going to church. My church always has a stable in it. It has Mary, Joseph, the baby Jesus, three wise men, and many animals. That's what Christmas means to me.

Kara Teahan

Christmas is a time we celebrate the birth of Jesus. It is a time for family members to get together and to give and receive gifts. Everywhere Christmas spirit is in the air. The Christmas spirit is in the air when people decorate their Christmas trees, hang up wreaths, light the Advent wreath, put lights in the windows and decorate the house.

Professional Third Party To Handle Claims

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has contracted with the Massachusetts Interlocal Insurance Association (MIIA) for third party services in workmen's compensation claims in an effort to save money for the city.

The contract was effective Oct. 15.

"The passage of Proposition 2 and one half," said McCauley, "has made it necessary to find new ways to reduce so-called 'fixed costs.'"

"The use of third party administrator will allow the city not only to reduce costs but also to provide its employees better quality service."

The Mayor said it would take a year to get an estimate of how much money the city would save.

MIIA was developed by the cities and towns to help municipalities fight rising insurance costs. With 128 local governments as members, MIIA is the largest program of its type in the Commonwealth.

Under the contractual agreement, the city will receive claims management services for both new and old claims. Unlike an insured plan, however, the city will be responsible for actual claims payments.

Nevertheless, with the use of a professional third party, the city expects to greatly reduce its workers' compensation costs. Legitimate claims will be handled more efficiently, thereby allowing injured employees to receive payments promptly, said McCauley.

Safety engineering services will also be provided to the city to make it a safer place to work. "The City's employees are our most important resource," said McCauley. "I do not like to see any of our employees injured, particularly unnecessarily. The new loss control program should go a long way in reducing workplace injuries."

Christian Scientists Hold Satellite Videoconference

For the first time Christian Scientists on four continents gathered simultaneously for a satellite-transmitted videoconference.

Quincy and Milton Christian Scientists congregated at Bayside Exposition Center, 200 Mt. Vernon St., Dorchester.

In announcing the meeting two months ago, church directors referred to the urgent needs facing humanity and the necessity for specifically facing and bringing healing to these challenges.

"To live for all mankind," the meeting's theme, was taken from the writings of Mary Baker Eddy who founded the denomination in 1879.

It was 9 a.m. in Honolulu, Hawaii, and 10 p.m. in Nairobi, Kenya, as church members from some 3,000 congregations gathered simultaneously in churches and convention centers in 140 cities.

The denomination's historic Mother Church in Boston was the focal point for the meeting as 19th century stained glass windows depicting Biblical scenes providing contrast to the space-age satellite receiver parked outside.

In introducing the videoconference, Harvey W. Wood, from the church's five-member Board of Directors, explained, "This meeting is about lives... It's about the Christ speaking to human consciousness through individuals who are living truth. It's about hearts speaking to hearts." He also spoke of the "spiritual urgency... to address the needs of our fellow man at the deepest possible levels."

A panel of reporters from The Christian Science Monitor joined the meeting via satellite from the Old Royal Observatory in Greenwich, England.

The panel discussed a broad range of challenges—from the nuclear arms race to what one panel member termed "the saturation point of materialism in some of the western world."

The very urgency of today's problems, said veteran European reporter Elizabeth Pond, "reminds us that our personal lives aren't here somewhere and world problems out there somewhere else."

In Boston, the panel was joined by Monitor editor Katherine W. Fanning and Allison W. Phiney, Jr., editor of the monthly Christian Science Journal and other church publications.

Phiney addressed the question of the Christian's relation to the world and responsibility toward solutions to contemporary challenges. He noted Christ Jesus' prayer at one point when, as Phiney put it, Jesus was "talking with God and thinking ahead beyond the crucifixion and resurrection, thinking about the future of his disciples." Jesus' prayer—"I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world, but that thou shouldst keep them from the evil"—indicates his conviction that a "spiritual perspective" makes a "tremendous practical difference in our own lives... and in human consciousness as a whole," Phiney stated.

Christian Scientists in Australia and New Zealand heard the program the following day. And Asian church members were sent videotapes at the close of the meeting.

Simultaneous translation of the videoconference was handled by church and United Nations translators in Spanish, German, Danish, French, Swedish, Italian, and Portuguese.

LIGHT UP OUTDOORS SAFELY

Outdoor holiday lighting, which adds to the festivity of your home's appearance can be a sight to remember - or cause a tragedy you'll never forget. Here are some safety guidelines.

When working with the outdoor wiring, be sure that electricity is turned off. The least bit of dampness could mean disaster.

Run cords above ground over Y-shaped wood spikes to keep cords well above snow and slush. Wind insulated tape around each connection to keep it water-tight.

For temporary wiring outside, use only outdoor extension cords (at least number 16) with permanently molded plugs and sockets.

Never string electrical cords under a door or in other places where they are apt to be pinched or worn.

Don't overload your wiring system. It may be necessary to use several circuits to obtain power.

Christmas is a time for decorating. It brings thoughts of happiness. It's showing your appreciation for others, receiving various presents from people.

It's also the day Jesus was born. This is why we celebrate Christmas.

We get to see all the Christmas lights. And we get a Christmas tree and put bulbs on it. On the top I put an angel for a star. On Christmas Eve sometimes I get to open one of my presents. At Christmas day I get to open them all up and eat some of my candy from my stocking.

Heather Dugan
Daniel Webster, Gr. 3

Christmas is the time of year for giving and receiving. My family likes doing both. Christmas is my favorite holiday.

At this time of the year, I try not to fight with my sisters. I also try to save up as much money as I can to buy Christmas presents.

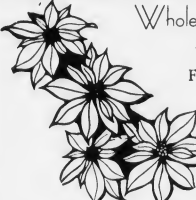

My family and I go around the house and collect all our old clothes and all of our old toys. Then my mother takes them to the Salvation Army. We also give canned goods away.

My family goes to church on Christmas Eve. When we get home, we all have our Christmas stockings. Then we leave our cookies and carrots for Santa. But just before we go to bed, we all open our presents.

Christmas day is filled with joy. We go and visit all of our relatives. I love Christmas.

Dudek, Anson, Iodice, Segalla N.E. All-Stars

To the victors go the spoils and such was the case this season for the Plymouth, N.H., State College football team.

The Panthers finished the regular season with a 10-0 record. They were the first from New England ever selected for the NCAA Div. 3 playoffs after winning their unprecedented fourth straight N. E. Football Conference championship. And, they placed 10 players, including four from Quincy and North Quincy, on the N. E. Conference all-star team.

"This is a very nice tribute to our football players and the program as a whole," said Coach Jay Cottone. "We have some very talented and dedicated individuals and it's nice that the opposing conference coaches recognize this."

Heading the list of Plymouth all-stars is junior two-time All-America halfback Joe Dudek of North Quincy, who led the nation with 21 touchdowns this fall and finished fifth in rushing with 1378 yards. He averaged 6.9 yards per carry and was named to the Kodak Div. 3 All-American team for the second time. Dudek is only 12 touchdowns away from tying the great Walter Payton's all-division NCAA mark. He also is closing in on the all-division rushing record.

He has broken all school and Div. 3 rushing and scoring records.

"He is the best player I've ever coached," said Cottone. "He's been an All-America for one team or another for three years now. He just loves to run."

Dudek's success is no surprise to his high school coach, Dave Burke. "He is an outstanding runner and I knew he could be a fine college back," said Burke.

Dudek led Burke's teams to wins over Quincy in 1980 and '81, scoring three touchdowns in 1980 and scoring the only touchdown in the 1981 7-0 win with a 55-yard run.

Another conference all-star is Quincy's Scott Anson, a 6-4, 220-pound end, chosen for the third year in a row. Despite a nagging ankle injury, the former Quincy High star hauled in 19 receptions for 233 yards and four touchdowns.

Joining them is North Quincy's Glen Segalla, a 6-1, 215-pound linebacker and co-captain of this year's team. He finished second on the team with 78 tackles and also intercepted three passes, including a 32-yard return for a touchdown against Framingham State.

The fourth local selection was Ed Iodice of Quincy, a 6-foot, 175-pound cornerback, who finished fourth in the nation with nine interceptions.

He also finished with 36 tackles and two fumble recoveries. During his four-year career at Plymouth State, Iodice finished with 17 interceptions, placing him third on the all-time Panther list behind Bob Gibson (23) and Lee Richard (20).

The Panthers finished fourth in the final NCAA Div. 3 regular season poll before losing, 26-14, to Union in the National playoffs. Dudek scored both Plymouth touchdowns in that game.

After 46-43 Loss

Raiders Hope To Even With Somerville

The North Quincy boys' basketball team lost a 46-43 squeaker at Somerville last week and hoped to even its record Tuesday when it met Hingham.

Ed Miller's Raiders will be home to Somerville Friday night at 8 o'clock, will compete in the Weymouth South Christmas Tournament Dec. 27 and 29 with Quincy, Weymouth South and Weymouth

North, and will open their Suburban League season against Brookline Jan. 3.

North got off to a good start at Somerville and led at halftime, 30-25, but couldn't hold the home team off in the last two quarters.

Ken Runge led the Raiders with 13 points. Mark Scanlon scored 10 and Jim Martin added eight.

Brian Morris led the Raiders on the boards, taking down 10 rebounds.

"Runge, Scanlon and Martin are the only veterans and they did a good job," Miller said. "Runge is the key to our offense and Scanlon is an excellent point guard. Morris did a very good job on the boards and looks like one of our best rebounders."

Quincy Girls Lose 2 But Show Improvement

The Quincy girls' basketball team is off to a slow start, losing its first two games, but the First Ladies showed marked improvement in their second game and coach Bob Uhlar hoped it would continue Tuesday night when they played at Newton South.

The Quincy girls will host

Weymouth South Friday at 5 o'clock and will play in the Christmas Tournament at Weymouth South Dec. 27 and 29.

The First Ladies lost their opener to Milton, 38-19, falling behind, 20-9, and never getting their offense untracked.

Sophomore Terry

Duggan scored four points and turned in a strong defensive performance.

Quincy looked much better, especially on offense, last Friday when it lost to Newton South, 43-38.

Chris Cuccinatta led the Quincy girls with 12 points. Mary Beth Masters added 10 and Chris Thornton took down five rebounds.

Hancock Pool Closed During School Vacation

The Quincy Recreation Department announces that its swimming programs at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool will be cancelled Monday, Dec. 24, through Tuesday, Jan. 1.

The closing is to allow workers to make improvements to the heating system. The normal schedule will resume Wednesday, Jan. 2, 1985.

North Hockey Team Off To Fast Start

The veteran-studded North Quincy hockey team is off to a fast start with victories in its first two games and Kevin Jago's Raiders sought their third in a row last night (Wednesday) against Newton North.

The North icemen will play at Waltham at the Watertown rink Dec. 26.

Quincy, which broke even in its first two games, faced Brockton last night (Wednesday) and will play Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Boston University.

Last Saturday North Quincy had easy sailing over Quincy, 8-1, with league all-star goalie Matt Higgins having a good night.

The Raiders led, 2-0, after one period and took a 5-0 lead into the final session.

Dave Tapper had two goals and added an assist and the other goals were scored by Rob Reidy, Rich Horrigan, Dave Fasano, Tom McGrath, Mark Simonelli and Jerry Layden.

"I was pleased with our performance in this game and we showed marked improvement over our first game," Jago said. "We were much more aggressive."

Earlier in the week North had opened with a 5-0 victory over Cambridge but Jago was disappointed in the Raiders' performance.

"We missed a lot of scoring chances. We moved the puck well and played good defense, but we just didn't finish off a lot of plays," he said.

Mike Haynes had two goals for North as did Tapper and Greg McGlame had the other. McGlame also had two assists and Horrigan, McGrath and Mike Doherty one each. McGlame, David Cooke, Pete Furtado and Derek Holt played strong defense.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team got off to a good start, defeating Newton North, 5-3.

Quincy rallied from a 3-2 deficit with three unanswered goals. Dave O'Connor scored two goals and John Gleba, Scott McGahey and Steve Constas one each.

Raiderettes Breeze By Barnstable, 42-29

The North Quincy girls' basketball team got off on the right foot last week with a 42-29 non league victory over Barnstable.

Paul Bregoli's Raiderettes faced Hingham Tuesday, will play at Dorchester Friday at 2:30 and will play in the Cape Cod Classic at Barnstable on Dec. 28 and 29. The Raiderettes will open their Suburban League season at Brookline

Jan. 3. Barnstable scored the first basket of the game but North ran off 10 straight points with Karen Runge scoring four. Capt. Ann Duggan four and freshman Nancy Flukes two. The Raiderettes led after a quarter, 17-6.

North led, 24-14, at the half following a sloppy second quarter and went up by 18 points in the third quarter. Sandra Proude, who led the scorers with 10 points and had 15 rebounds, scored six points in the quarter and Ellen Warren had four.

Bregoli substituted freely in the fourth quarter and Barnstable scored eight points in the final minutes.

Flukes had nine points and Runge and Warren had eight each. Warren also took down 15 rebounds.

Anne Marie Hughes played an excellent game and sophomore Nancy Leonard came off the bench in the second quarter and did a fine job.

"We were a little sloppy but that is to be expected in an opening game," Bregoli said. "The girls were nervous and we had far too many turnovers. But the defense was superb and we had 21 steals."

Game Capt. Walker Wheelock and George Burke led a second half spurt that propelled the Quincy High School basketball team to a 32-24 victory over North Quincy before a full house in the Quincy gym.

The Red Raiders, coached by Jack Mullarkey, pulled away to a 16-13 lead at halftime on the strength of the shooting of Dick McLaughlin and the playmaking of acting Capt. Gus Cuneo.

But Coach Munroe MacLean's Presidents, playing a strong pressing game and with Dick Drake and Doug Campbell rebounding at both ends of the court, came back to earn the win in the second half.

North's McLaughlin led all the scorers with 11 points while Wheelock had nine for Quincy.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Mgr.

WHEN SHOULD I LIST HOME?

QUESTION: We would like to sell our home next spring during the peak selling months. When should we list it with a Realtor?

ANSWER: Don't wait for the target months to arrive. Put your house up for sale during February or March - BEFORE the heavy selling. True, more prospects will be looking during the peak months - but, then again, more homeowners will be selling. The shrewd homeowner who waits to list his home for a summer move, should list it before the influx of the heavy bulk of sellers.

During quiet periods, the Realtor can put more time, effort and advertising into selling your home and there will be less competition.

PUT YOUR HOUSE UP FOR SALE BEFORE the heavy selling season.

Turn Tables On Walpole

Presidents Host Arlington

A year ago the Quincy boys' basketball team, under first year coach Rick DeCristofaro, opened the season by losing to Walpole by a single point.

The Presidents went on to a disappointing 4-16 record.

Last week the Presidents turned the tables on Walpole, pulling out a 57-55 victory in their opener and DeCristofaro hopes this is a sign of better things to come.

Quincy will open its home season Friday night, hosting Arlington at 7:30 at the Vn-Tech gym. The Presidents will play in the Weymouth South Christmas tournament Dec. 27 and 29 with North Quincy, Weymouth South and Weymouth North and will open their Suburban League season Jan. 5 against Waltham.

In last year's one-point loss to Walpole (one of four one and two-point losses), Bill Shaughnessy sparked Quincy with 28 points. Last week the outstanding football quarterback again led the Presidents with 26 points. Twenty-three of his points came in the first half when Quincy took a 34-26 lead. "Shaughnessy started right where he left off last year," said a happy DeCristofaro. "I think he scored the game's first basket and whenever he got the ball he had a look in his eyes that he was going to shoot."

The Presidents built up a 10-point lead in the third quarter but it was cut to 48-38 going into the final session.

Walpole almost pulled it out with a late rally as it scored 11 points from the foul line. Walpole's Kevin O'Connell cut Quincy's lead to 48-45 on a jumper and to 50-49 with two free throws. Brendan Eldridge gave Walpole a 55-54 lead but Pat Faherty rebounded a missed foul shot for a 56-55 Quincy lead and Aaron Tucker gave the Presidents their two-point win with a foul shot.

Don Parry had 10 points for Quincy. Dave Mohr had eight and Faherty seven.

"They didn't have their 6-9 center (John McPhee), but we were without one of our top guards, David Britt (broken ankle in football), so it evened out," said DeCristofaro.

North Girls' Track Team Opens With High Hopes

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy girls' indoor track team, 9-0 a year ago and 43-1-1 since Lou Tozzi took over the coaching reins, opened its season Tuesday against Newton North with high hopes.

The Raiderettes will face Brockton Friday, Jan. 4, at Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 3:30.

Last season the North girls won the state championship for the fourth time in five years and won the Class B relays title.

"We lost some great athletes through graduation but we have an experienced team but with very little depth," said Tozzi.

Once again the distance runners will be North's strong point.

Heading the list is sophomore Tricia Barrett, who was seventh in the all-state cross-country championships and who will run against the opponents' top distance runner in each meet.

Junior Mary Ann Keller, second in the state meet mile last year and the school record holder, is currently injured but will be another key runner.

Senior Meg Leary should be one of the league's best and shows tremendous leadership. Other veterans are junior Tricia Leary and sophomore Ann Toland. The other distance runners are sophomore Stacey Cochran, junior Cheryl McCarthy and freshman Colleen Toland.

North also will be strong in the middle distances with Lisa Fitzgerald, a senior, the defending state champion in the 600-yard run. However, she is recovering from arthroscopic surgery but should be ready to challenge the state's best by February.

Sophomore Lorraine Fitzgerald is a tough veteran, Karyn Collings a freshman, is a surprise newcomer, junior Teresa Collings looks good in the 300 and high jump and junior Sharon Barrett is a much improved veteran who also will run distances.

Veteran sophomore Laura Ciulla and Lisa Fitzgerald are the hopes in the sprints. Georgia Traficante is one of the state's best high jumpers, having done 5-4. She is one of the most versatile performers on the team and will also run 300 and 600.

All the hurdlers graduated and the best hopes are senior Joanne Zdanowski, junior Stacey Carvalho and sophomore Jennifer Raftery.

North will be strong in the shot put with Noreen Connolly, a junior, state meet medalist last winter; senior veteran Missy Silkwood and Carvalho.

sophomore Kelly Gifford and freshmen Kerri Hatfield, Ann O'Leary, Erica Sacco and Brenda Warren.

"We are enthusiastic and have a core of talented, motivated veterans who are willing to make a real commitment," said Tozzi. "We should do well."

Tozzi is again being assisted by John Furey, former Quincy High and Eastern Nazarene College star, who assisted with the Raiderettes' Eastern Mass. cross country champions, and Peter Chrisom Jr., who handles the weights and throwing events.

Gill, McBirney Impress At Curry

The Curry College men's basketball team has already improved upon last season's record with four wins by the semester break.

The Colonels defeated Bridgewater State, Worcester State, Wentworth and Gordon College. They suffered an overtime loss to neighboring Eastern Nazarene College. Last year the NCAA Div. 3 Colonels were 2-20.

Coach Brian Buckley and assistant Gerald Phelan, both of Quincy, are enthusiastic about the play of Quincy's Paul Gill and Bill McBirney.

Gill, a junior guard, who played at North Quincy High, leads the team in assists and is second in scoring. McBirney, an Abp. Williams graduate, is a sophomore center who is second in rebounding, leads the team in blocked shots and is averaging 10 points a game.

"The future looks bright for both of these players," said Buckley, former Quincy Junior College coach. "They have contributed heavily to this season's improvements. This season's improvements. The whole squad is looking forward to the second semester."

Curry has an added incentive during the second semester, playing games in the newly-formed Commonwealth Coast Conference. Buckley, the league treasurer, is excited about the new venture.

"We decided to form this league of competitive teams to build rivalries and give our players a chance at a league championship," he said.

Curry is joined by six other NCAA Div. 3 schools, Hellenic, Anna Maria, Salve Regina, Wentworth, Emerson and the U.S. Coast Guard Academy. Buckley noted the strength of the Curry Schedule in general.

"Now we not only play in a conference but our independent games against schools like Tufts, Babson, St. Joseph's of Maine, MIT, Suffolk, Southeastern Mass. and five state colleges is very challenging," he said.

The biggest plus for the Colonels is the fact that all 12 of its players are underclassmen, with four juniors, four sophomores and four freshmen.

Curry will return to action Jan. 16th at Tufts.

Registration To Begin For Skating Program

Quincy Recreation Director Barry J. Welch announces that registration will begin immediately for the second nine week session of instructional ice skating.

The program is open to both boys and girls age 6 through 16 and is under the supervision of Mrs. Anne Eagles, a United States figure skating professional.

Lessons are offered Wednesdays at either 3:10 or 4:10 p.m. at the Quincy Youth Arena on Murphy Memorial Drive.

Instruction is offered from beginner to advanced and testing is done at the conclusion of each session. Cost of the program is $24 for the nine weeks. Registration will take place at the Quincy Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery, weekdays from 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. The first class will be held Wednesday, Jan. 4, 1985.

Additional information can be obtained by calling the Quincy Recreation Department at 773-1380, ext. 204.

Christian Aids Bentley

Kevin Christian of Quincy helped the Bentley College men's cross-country team to its third straight Northeast-8 Conference title last week with a 12th place finish.

Bentley squeezed by Springfield by a single point. A year ago the Falcons topped Springfield by three points to win its second straight conference crown.

WEEK OF: DECEMBER 20, 1984

Channel energies in new directions; someone you meet at a party may introduce you to a hobby or an area of interest. Partner is in the limelight through the weekend.

Reduced Auto Insurance Premiums For Senior Citizens

Auto insurance companies or notify their senior citizen customers of their right to reduced premiums and reimburse them for discounts not given, Sen. Paul D. Harold notes:

Under new legislation now in effect, the insurance company must notify customers aged 65 or older of their right to reduced rates annually, and must reimburse them for any rate reductions they should have received, but did not.

The reduction must also be itemized on the auto insurance bill for seniors,
Harold said.

A person who turns 65 during the policy year also has a right to a pro-rated premium reduction for the remainder of the year.

The new law implements the previous laws, passed in 1979, which gives seniors the right to "the lowest rate classification applicable to drivers generally," which shall be 25 per cent less than the regular rate.

Harold said many seniors were not aware of their right to the reduced rate, and some insurance companies failed to advise them of their right to it.

The new law requires the companies not only to notify them, but to reimburse them and itemize the reduction on their bills, Harold said.

1984 In Review

It Was A Year Of Many Changes

By TOM HENSHAW

The old order changed perceptibly in Quincy in 1984.

Former Mayor and Sen. James R. McIntyre, called by many the architect of the New Quincy, died in March at the age of 53. Although he had not held public office in more than a decade, his influence was felt on city life right up to the time of his death.

Only three weeks after he was sworn in for a sixth two year term, City Councillor Leo J. Kelly had to resign in order to take a post as project manager with the Quincy Housing Authority. His place was taken by Michael T. Cheney after a special election.

And Dr. Lawrence J. Crendon, a fixture as school superintendent for 16 years, retired under fire amid charges of sexual misconduct with two schoolgirls. The charges were not proven nor did Crendon have a formal hearing but he retired anyway.

Here is a review of the major news events that shocked, startled and pleased the people of Quincy during the past year:

JANUARY

Leo J. Kelly had hardly been sworn in to a sixth term as city councillor from Ward 1 when word came down that the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development had approved his appointment to the $25,138 a year post as project manager of housing developments in West Quincy and Germantown—provided he give up his Council seat.

After two weeks of "agonizing" over the decision, Kelly announced at the Jan. 16 Council meeting that he was resigning the Ward 1 seat, effective Jan. 20. He did so reluctantly.

"I must leave behind one of the most meaningful parts of my life," he told his colleagues in his farewell address. "Rules and rule makers, whether employed by HUD or someone else, often times never seem to see the human side of their dictates."

At first it was thought that the Council vacancy from Ward 1 would be filled by a special election but a check of the city's Plan A charter disclosed the unusual—and to some alarming—fact that it was up to the other eight members of the Council and not the voters who were designated to choose Kelly's successor.

Councillors Joanne Condon and John J. Lydon, Jr., immediately filed a home rule petition calling for a charter change that would have any vacancy on the Council or in the Mayor's office filled by a special election. But Mayor Francis X. McCauley was cool to the idea.

"I'm not sure at all that it should be changed," he said. "One of my concerns would be the cost of a special election."

He would rather, the Mayor said, that the petition be amended to provide for special elections of ward vacancies but have councillors at large elected by fellow councillors, as in

Water Resources Appointment Next For City In Harbor Cleanup

Mayor Francis X. McCauley will meet with the city's chief advisors no later than the first week in January to plan the next step in Quincy's fight to end pollution in the bay and Boston Harbor.

That step will be the appointment of a Quincy member to the 11-member governing board of the newly created Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

The authority was created by the State Legislature last Wednesday and signed into law by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis within a matter of hours.

McCauley warned that the authority "is not the end of the battle nor is it even the end of the beginning. It's going to take time for the cleanup."

McCauley plans to meet with David Stanley, the city's consultant on harbor pollution, and Peter Koff, its special counsel, to discuss

An employee of a Washington St., Quincy Point, gas station was robbed of the night receipts Sunday morning as she was making a night deposit on the South Shore Bank branch on Southern Artery and Washington St.

Mediator Selected For Teacher Contract Talks

The State Mediation Board has assigned Nancy Pease to mediate deadlock contract negotiations between the Quincy School Committee and the Quincy Education Association.

QEA President Mary Curtin said Pease helped work out a contract settlement between the School Committee and teachers in Somerville "so she comes with a good background."

"She understands the teachers' frustrations and she also knows what Proposition 2½ can do to a city," she said.

"She has already contacted us and we told her we are available at any time. I hope we can get started as soon as possible after the first of the year. Maybe we're off to a good start for the new year."

Second City Union Settles For 7% Raise

A second union of city employees has reached agreement on a contract with a 7 per cent pay raise spread over the two-year duration of the pact.

The seven members of the Quincy Public Safety Union in the Fire Alarm Division will receive a 3 per cent pay hike Jan. 1, 1985 and a 4 per cent increase July 1, 1985.

The contract is retroactive to July 1, 1984 and expires June 30, 1986.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said the agreement is basically the same as the contract signed last week with the 180-member Laborers Union.

McCauley said the Public Safety Union contract will cost the city $3,400 for the remainder of fiscal 1985 and $16,000 for the full fiscal year of 1986.

An appropriation order to cover the $3,400 will go to the City Council at its Jan. 7 meeting, said the mayor.

McCauley said none of the other unions that are in negotiations are close to settlements.

Two of the unions, the Quincy Education Association and the clerks and hospital workers have asked for state mediation of their contract deadlocks.

Sgt. Gargano Killed In Lebanon By Sniper

the case of Joseph E. Brett who was selected to succeed the resigned Paul D. Harold in 1978.

Nevertheless, at month's end Council President James A. Sheets was predicting that the home rule petition would be passed unanimously during the first Council meeting in February, without amendment, and that the preliminary special election would be held sometime in April.

The uncertainty of whether the voters or the councillors would elect Kelly's successor did not deter potential candidates from lining up to compete for the job, which paid $6,500 a year starting Jan. 1, 1984.

First on the scene was Bernard (Bernie) Reisberg of Merrymount, a downtown Quincy businessman for 37 years and long active in civic, veterans and waterfront affairs. He promised to continue Kelly's fight to clean up pollution in Quincy Bay, protect the coastline and open space and "be ever watchful of the taxpayers' dollars."

Another announced candidate was Mrs. Mary Crowley Gregoire, daughter of former City Councillor David J. Crowley and ex-City Treasurer Roberta Crowley. Mrs. Gregoire too noted that she supported Kelly in all his campaigns, understands the problems of the Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant and would work like Kelly to solve them.

The national agony over the precarious presence of peacekeeping U.S. Marines in Beirut, Lebanon, came home forcibly to Quincy on Jan. 8 when Cpl. Edward J. Gargano, 21, of Germantown was cut down by a sniper's bullet while on a Sunday morning detail.

SGT. EDWARD GARGANO

His funeral at St. Boniface Church, Germantown, was attended by some 500 persons, including his brother, Army Pvt. Robert Gargano, who accompanied the body home from his military post in Germany, and a detail of Marines, who fired the traditional volley over the grave of their fallen comrade in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

"We are all proud of this young man," said the Rev. George F. Carlson, formerly of St. Boniface, who celebrated the funeral Mass.

James A. Sheets, a 10-year member of the City Council, was elected president of that body at its organizational meeting Jan. 3 but his term got off to a rather stormy start.

For one thing, the vote was not unanimous. Eight councillors voted for Sheets. Councillor Joanne Condon voted "no." Condon blamed lack of communication on the part of Sheets. "I heard some things announced on the radio before the councillors were informed," she said. "I hope he will recognize me as a member of the Council and talk to me."

Then John J. Lydon Jr., the retiring Council president, objected to Sheets' choice as the Council's clerk of committees in an attempt to postpone the vote for two weeks. But City Clerk John Gillis ruled that Lydon could not object to a nomination and Donna Pollara of West Quincy was voted into the job.

Condon, Lydon and Stephen J. McGrath voted present on the selection, indicating that the new Council President had a lot of fences to mend during the coming year.

But, when it came time to name chairmen of the Council committees, the big ones—Finance, Ordinance, Public Works, Public Safety and Downtown and Economic Development—went to Sheets' supporters, Richard J. Koch Jr., Patricia Toland, Theodore P. DeCristofaro and Joseph J. LaRaia. Lesser posts went to Kelly, Lydon, Condon and McGrath.

Sen. Paul Tsongas announced that he was resigning his U.S. Senate seat for reasons of health and the move touched off a madcap game of political musical chairs with all eyes fixed on Cong. Brian J. Donnelly after he expressed interest in running for the Tsongas post.

Sen. Paul D. Harold, Sherill Clifford Marshall and Governor's Councillor Peter Eley all said they would think seriously of running for Congress should Donnelly step out and Reps. Thomas F. Brownell and Michael Morrissey and City Councillor McGrath were watching those possible moves closely.

Donnelly promised to clear up all the 11th District confusion with an announcement about his future on Feb. 3.

Mayor McCauley was sworn into a second term in the city's front office and his inaugural address was generally upbeat. He said that, after six years of deficits totalling $13.9 million, which dropped the city's credit rating from AA to BA, one of the lowest in the state, Quincy may soon regain at least a portion of its once high rating.

"The city in fiscal 1982 and 1983 was in a surplus position," he said. "I am hoping that when Moody's finishes evaluating the city's credit rating we will be able to announce within the next 90 days an increase in that rating."

New development plans began to stir all around the city.

Architect Paul J. Donnelly, who had been involved in the renovations of the Adams and Mangano Buildings, offered a development plan, initiated by George Montilio of Montilio's Bakery, that would place an office building at Cottage Ave. and Chestnut St., convert Cottage Ave. to a pedestrian mall and erect a parking garage on the John Hancock Parking lot.

The largest development in the city's history, Crown Colony Place in West Quincy, won approval from the Planning Board. Planned by the Musaad Al-Saleh family of Kuwait, it would place a $200 million office and hotel complex on the site of the Old Colony Crushed Stone land off Centre St., providing up to 12,000 new jobs and $6 million in new city taxes.

A new $1.9 million, four-story office building was announced for the site of the gasoline station at Hancock St. and Whitney Rd., with construction to begin April 1, and Antony Herrey, the New York developer, said he planned to break ground in the spring for a new $8 million, four-story office building in North Quincy at the junction of Hancock St. and Newport Ave. Extension.

Some action also appeared to be imminent on the old Sears building on Hancock St., which had been empty since 1980 when the famed department store moved to South Shore Plaza. It was disclosed that two developers, F.X. Messina of Braintree, and Robert Merowitz of Newton, were bidding to purchase the huge building from the Faxon Trust.

"This is the most exciting prospect we've had for the building," said Planning Director James Lydon.

Mayor McCauley raised a small storm when he proposed pay raises for some 40 key officials in his administration, including a $10,230 hike for City Solicitor Dean Nicastro, $4,339 for his administrative assistant Arthur Foley, and $1,490 for his executive secretary, Peter Kenney.

"The raises are in line with what the union employees in the city are getting," said McCauley. "These are the first raises this group has gotten since I've been in office the past two years."

Joan Picard was elected vice chairman of the School Committee by a 4-3 vote over Frank Anselmo, the dean of the committee, who was a member for 22 years and had never been elected vice chairman. Mayor McCauley cast the tie-breaking vote for Picard.

McCauley called for a Civil Service exam to establish a list for a new chief of police, in spite of the fact that Chief Francis X. Finn, 58, who underwent heart bypass surgery in December, 1982, said he had no intention of retiring. One captain and six lieutenants signed up for the Feb. 4 exam.

The Mayor went on to suggest that perhaps it was time to remove the chief's job from Civil Service and either hire a chief under a fixed-term contract or have one appointed by the Mayor to serve at his pleasure like any other department head.

"The concept of a chief coming up through the ranks by way of Civil Service is strange in other parts of the country," said McCauley. "In other cities, the chief is an agent of the mayor's policies. They feel that if the mayor is a law and order man he should have a police chief who thinks like him."

The City Hospital Board of Managers got three new

Finn Warns Police Dept. 'Near Disaster'

members--Helen I. Cook, Stanley R. Dennis, and Stephen C. Ricciardi--giving Mayor McCauley a solid majority on the board. Members elected John W. Kane, a retired banker, as chairman.

DeMatteo Construction Co. of Quincy was awarded a $62,745,264 contract, the largest road-building contract ever awarded by the state, to reconstruct eight miles of the Southeast Expressway from the Massachusetts Ave. interchange in Boston to the junction with Route 128 in Braintree. Work was expected to disrupt South Shore commuting until November, 1985.

The License Board approved a common victualer's license for William A. Thomas' planned restaurant across Franklin St. from the Adams Birthplaces--but not until he promised to change the name from Adam's House to the Penn's Hill Restaurant.

"We wish to enter our protest against the name of this restaurant since it will make it more difficult for tourists to distinguish historical buildings from non-historical buildings," said Wilhelmina Harris, superintendent of the Adams National Historical Site.

Deaths during January included: William F. McIntyre, 19, son of Senate Counsel and Mrs. James R. McIntyre, Dec. 31, after a fall; Philip C. Thompson, 37, assistant treasurer of Boston College, Jan. 9; Philip A.G. Carbonaro, 67, retired chief of Army materials at the Watertown Arsenal, Jan. 13; Dennis E. Harrington Sr., 72, retired assistant superintendent of the Boston post office and father of former City Councillor Dennis E. Harrington Jr., Jan. 19.

FEBRUARY

Police Chief Francis X. Finn called a news conference to warn the public that his department is on "the brink of disaster" and would soon run out of expense money with which to repair patrol cars and pay the medical expenses of injured and ailing officers.

"In a very short period of time," he said, "we will be forced to grind down on our services to the public. Our expense account is presently around $6.176 of spendable money. This is not near enough money to carry us through."

The irony of it, he said, is that the department has more than $400,000 in its payroll account due to funded but unfilled positions in the department and the City Council in January had refused to pass a transfer order requested by Finn and Mayor Francis X. McCauley to move $35,000 of it into the expense account.

"Cruiser repair and maintenance, medical bills for police officers and many other routine expenses will not be able to be honored with the amount of money we have left," said Finn. "This will necessitate me to take these cruisers off the road and reduce my expenses to this level."

Mayor McCauley explained that one of the problems was the new computer that was installed to monitor police finances.

"We used to be able to transfer money between line items as long as we lived within the bottom line," he said. "With the computer it's a different ball game. Now you can't overspend lines."

He noted that William Grindlay, the man who monitored the police budget, had enumbered some $250,000 of the $415,000 expense budget to be used only for specific items, such as energy, gasoline and communications. That money could not be touched for any other expense.

City Council President James A. Sheets had some questions for the Mayor and Chief Finn.

"Why do we have a problem with the expense budget as early as February?" he asked. "Has the Police Department overspent tremendously or was there too little in the expense account in the first place? Did the Mayor keep certain salaries in the budget knowing that he was not going to fill them? Why didn't he put the money in the expense account and knock out the positions in the first place?"

McCauley conceded that he had knocked $35,000 out of the police budget before it was submitted to the Council but he denied that he was trying to deceive anyone by overbudgeting the payroll account.

"Most of the positions were filled when they were put in the budget," he said. "Since then there have been retirements. The money piled up but not by design."

The Mayor resubmitted the $35,000 transfer order and this time the Council's Finance Committee voted 6-1 that it ought to pass with only Councillor Joanne Condon holding out against it.

"I have a problem taking money out of personal services," she said. "I'm not against the police having money to run the department but the minute we go along with taking money out of personnel for expenses we justify cutting the positions."

Even Councillor Stephen J. McGrath voted for the transfer in committee, but at the same time he blasted Chief Finn for holding the news conference.

"I didn't like pick up the paper and reading that the chief says his department is facing an emergency because the Council refused to transfer $35,000," he said.
"There was no reason why I could not have been contacted and told that I made a mistake. Instead I have reporters calling me to ask that I comment on what you said."

The day after the committee approved the transfer, McCauley at least partially mollified the Council by disclosing that he planned to appoint 12 new patrolmen and promote two lieutenants in the Police Department, hopefully in time for the busy summer vacation season.

Meanwhile, Chief Finn, mindful that the Mayor had called for a Civil Service exam to establish a list from which to pick his successor, reiterated that he had no plans to retire.

"Some people seem to think that I am a lame duck chief," said the 58-year-old Finn, who underwent quadruple heart bypass surgery in December, 1982.

"But a tremendous amount of people and organizations in this city have asked me not to retire."

Civil Service went ahead and held the exam, however, and only five of the seven who applied actually took the test. They were Capt. William Murphy and Lts. Francis Mullin, John Mulligan, Donald Riley and Robert Salvaggio. Results of the exam were expected in six months to a year.

The City Council voted unanimously to approve a home rule petition for the State Legislature to allow a city charter change that would enable to voters of Ward 1 to fill the vacant City Council seat by a special election rather than have their councillor appointed by the remaining members of that body.

The vote was taken after Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia moved to amend the language of the petition so that special elections would be held only if the vacancy occurred in a 12-month period from the day the denaturing councillor took the oath of office. The Council decided that LaRaia's proposal would only confuse the issue and voted it down.

Despite his concerns for the expense of special elections, Mayor Francis X. McCauley signed the petition and sent it on to the Legislature when it ran into unexpected opposition from Re. Robert A. Cerasoli, who cited the expense of a citywide special election to fill a vacancy among the councillors at-large.

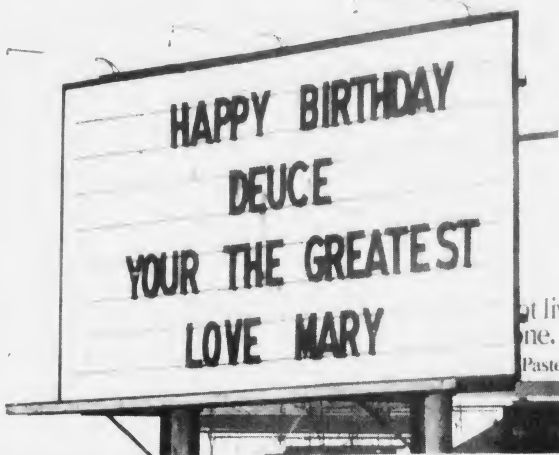

"You can be sure I'll see that the bill won't pass," said Cerasoli.

Council President James A. Sheets said he was puzzled by Cerasoli's opposition.

"Power is being given back to the people," said Sheets. "We are extending democracy. Why is he saying that is not the way to do it? He is saying that one person in the 160-member House of Representatives can defeat the will of the people. I'm not buying the argument."

Even as the councillors were debating the charter change, candidates were lining up to run for the seat vacated by Leo J. Kelly, who resigned to take a job with the Housing Authority.

In addition to Bernard Reisberg and Mary Crowley Gregoire, who announced in January, the candidates were Michael T. Cheney, a Houghs Neck civic activist and MBTA worker; Kevin B. Davis, a Telephone Co. employee; and Robert L. Johnston, headmaster of the Woodward School for Girls. Hopes for the economic revival of the lower Quincy Square business district rose when it was disclosed that the Sears building, vacant for four years since the company moved to South Shore Plaza, was purchased for $1 million by F.X. Messina Enterprises of Braintree.

Arthur Stavris, spokesman for Messina, said plans were to fill the 97,000 square feet of floor space with retail tenants on both the Hancock St. and Parkingway levels with some offices on the third floor.

"Hopefully, we will have some tenants in the building in time for the 1984 holiday season," said Stavris, "but more conservatively it will be a yearlong project."

Mayor McCauley and downtown business leaders hailed the acquisition of the building by Messina as a step forward toward the revitalization of downtown Quincy.

"We are pleased that the building has been sold," said McCauley. "Messina has a good track record on the South Shore and we're looking forward to working with him."

"The merchants are very excited," said Bernard Reisberg, proprietor of Bernie's Modern Formal, across the street from the Sears building. "I thought it was the most fantastic news that I had heard in a long, long time. It will give a boost to the entire economy of Quincy, not just the downtown."

Reisberg said he himself was so enthusiastic that he was considering the possibility of adding two floors to his building, which then consisted of six retail stores plus a 30-car parking lot in the rear off Mechanic St.

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly ended speculation on his political future by announcing that he would not run for the Democratic nomination to succeed the retiring Sen. Paul Tsongas and he lashed out at "those who would seek to make the Massachusetts Democratic party their own private political machine."

He was referring to the rule which specifies that a candidate must receive 15 per cent of the vote of delegates to the state convention in order to have their names appear on the ballots.

"My experiences in recent weeks," he said, "have convinced me that the Democratic party in this state is in the process of reversing its long-held tradition of openness and inclusion. It is replacing it with a very dangerous approach which comes close to that of exclusion and machine-like dominance by would-be party bosses."

Donnelly declined to name the "would-be party bosses" but he criticized House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill for his early support of Cong. James Shannon for the Tsongas seat.

"The Speaker broke his own rule that all politics is local," he said. "He did the wrong thing."

A Norfolk County survey team disclosed that the old Wollaston Golf Club in North Quincy was one of 12 sites under consideration as the location of a short term, minimum security, satellite jail to help relieve overcrowding in the Dedham House of Correction. The proposal drew virtually no support at all around the city.

"Obviously, I'm strongly opposed," said Mayor McCauley. "We want it to remain open space. We didn't want the area developed and if we didn't want tax-paying buildings we certainly don't want a jail."

Sheriff Clifford Marshall, a Quincy resident himself, said the county is under federal court order to close the north wing of the 167-year-old Dedham jail by June 30 and he has to find somewhere to put between 37 and 50 inmates, "trusties, CLIFFORD MARSHALL work release prisoners and those serving alternative sentences, like drunk drivers."

Sheriff

"It is not my prerogative to say if such a satellite facility goes to Quincy or anywhere else," Marshall added. "The site selection will be made by the county commissioners with the consent of the advisory board."

Braintree officials made a strong pitch to have the MBTA open a pedestrian access from Independence Ave., South Quincy, to the Quincy Adams MBTA station but the proposal drew strong opposition from Mayor McCauley, the MBTA and the people of the South Quincy community.

City Mourns Death Of Mayor McIntyre

access ramp from Independence Ave. to the station but it is closed to pedestrian traffic and reserved for the use of emergency vehicles only. Residents feared that if the access is opened their streets would be filled with illegal parkers and traffic.

"We have no intention of opening the access," said McCauley. "The MBTA has promised to abide by its agreement that the ramp is to be used only by emergency vehicles."

Deaths during February included Ray G. Perry, 71, of Quincy, retired square dance caller, Feb. 4; Henry P. Murray, 85, retired owner of Henry Murray Labs of Boston, Feb. 25.

MARCH

James R. McIntyre, the former mayor of Quincy whose two and a half decades in public life were devoted to guiding his aging city into the modern world, died of a heart attack at the age of 53 in the recovery room at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston after undergoing surgery unrelated to the attack.

His funeral at St. John's Church drew one of the great outpourings of dignitaries and just plain folks, many of whom followed the funeral procession as it wound its way down Hancock and Coddington Sts. to his final resting place in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Senate President William M. Bulger, his longtime friend and colleague, used Semper Fidelis (Always Faithful), the motto of the U.S. Marine Corps in which McIntyre served to characterize the life and works of the man who served as city councillor, mayor, state rep., state senator and Senate counsel.

"Semper Fidelis, always faithful, expresses the ideals that animated Jim's family life, his civic life, his political life, his professional life, his unostentatious religious life," said Bulger in eulogy.

"Jim's fidelity to his responsibilities set him apart as an unusually gifted, uniquely dedicated and universally respected public official."

It was the second time in a little over two months that friends of the McIntyre family had gathered for a funeral at St. John's. Their oldest son, William R. McIntyre, died in December in an accident in a Boston elevator.

Mrs. Sheila McIntyre noted that the words of inspiration on the family's daily calendar for March 7, the day her husband died, were:

"The great use of life is to spend it for something that outlasts it."

Those who attended the funeral Mass agreed that many things McIntyre did during his lifetime will live on.

His great contribution to the city of his birth was bringing the MBTA to Quincy and the placement of the North Quincy station at a site that spurred development of the State Street South complex and led to the revitalization of the North Quincy area.

JAMES R. MCINTYRE

The force of his leadership was such that he exerted great influence on the administrations of two mayors who succeeded him, Walter J. Hannon and Arthur H. Tobin. The three of them directed the affairs of Quincy for 16 years, with one interruption.

"Some people called it a machine," said Hannon. "It that's what they want to call it, okay. I was proud to be a part of it. But it wasn't a machine. It was a group of men like Arthur and myself and many others, who saw what could happen to a city without strong leadership. Quincy is a great place to live—but it didn't happen by accident."

The long, tedious and often controversial process of revaluing the city to 100 per cent of fair market value finally came to a conclusion with the entire city valued at $1,836,780,735, the new base for the 1984 tax rate. The old total value had been $272,170,227, a small fraction of the true value.

Mayor, Francis X. McCauley allowed a few weeks for the new values to sink in and then proposed a classification system that would result in a 1984 tax rate of $21.95 for residential property and $32.50 for industrial, commercial and personal property.

Under the system, the owner of a single family home, valued at $56,000 under 100 per cent valuation, would pay a tax bill of $1,242, down $335 from fiscal 1981 but up $91 from fiscal 1983, based on a $6,500 valuation for those years.

Basically, what McCauley was proposing was that residential property in the city be taxed at $7,800.7 per cent of full cash value while industrial, commercial and personal property be taxed at 130 per cent.

State law permitted a city to tax industrial, commercial and personal property at a rate no higher than 150 per cent of full valuation and the State Department of Revenue had set a residential factor of 79.6678 for Quincy, which meant that residential property could be taxed for no less than that percentage of full value.

McCauley said he felt his system was fair to both homeowners and businessmen.

"We want to help the homeowner," he said, "but we don't want to discourage the favorable business climate that has been built up in the city over the past years."

The City Council held a public hearing on McCauley's classification proposal and it drew no opposition from homeowners and little, if any, from businessmen.

"I will be quite candid in saying that the classification rate should be less than the 130 per cent proposed by the mayor," said Peter O'Connell, speaking for Progress Downtown Quincy (PDQ). "but we do recognize and appreciate the amount of work that has gone into this problem. I am sure that the mayor understands what the impact of his recommendation will have on the business community."

"We came here tonight urging moderation. We believe the mayor's recommendations are in line with good business sense."

The City Council promptly passed McCauley's classification plan at its first meeting in April.

Racial violence that erupted in Houghs Neck in February was climaxed by the arrest and indictment of 10 men, most of them from Quincy, on 109 counts of assault and civil rights violations in the attack on five sailors—three of them black—from the submarine USS Fulton near Louis Cade in Sea St. All pleaded innocent.

Ass. Dist. Atty. Charles Hely said there was "evidence that the attack was partially racially motivated." He said the sailors were subjected to racial taunts and then attacked as they left the case.

But Atty. Richard Barry, counsel for one of the defendants, said, "It's not a civil rights case. The DA is trying to make a racist thing out of this. They're overreacting."

But the incident was enough to spur the formation of Citizens Against Street Violence, chaired by David McMillan to look into the problems of youthful drinking in the Neck which was believed by some to have been a factor in the beating of the sailors.

"There are very few racial problems in Houghs Neck," said McMillan. "60 or 70 per cent of the problems are caused by street conditions, behavior that has been allowed to go on for five or six years."

"Blame could be spread around among elected officials, some people on the Police Department, us citizens of Houghs Neck who have looked the other way (and) civic leaders who have not taken a stand against public drinking by anyone from 12 to 30 years of age."

The quadrennial presidential primary circus came to Quincy on the second Tuesday in March and the Democratic winner was Colorado Sen. Gary Hart, who had come from nowhere in three weeks to become the frontrunner in the race with primary and caucus victories in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and now Massachusetts.

Hart Carries Quincy

Hart carried Quincy by 676 votes over former Vice President Walter Mondale with George McGovern of South Dakota, the party's unsuccessful presidential candidate in 1972, trailing a distant third. McGovern, who also did poorly all over Massachusetts, the only state he carried in 1972, dropped out of the race.

Only 25.4 per cent of Quincy's 48,076 registered voters turned out for the primary on a day that started with a snowstorm and ended in a heavy rain. But the last ballot was not counted or recorded until about 4 a.m., leading to renewed demands for voting machines in Quincy, the largest city in the state without them.

The issue of pay raises for city department heads proposed by Mayor McCauley became a matter of principle between members of the City Council and mayor when the Council's Ordinance Committee, after an exhaustive examination of the duties of the jobs, made some changes in the mayor's proposal, increasing some raises and decreasing others.

"The Council cut some of the raises and I have no problem with that," said McCauley. "The problem is they have gone and chosen some others for raises. That is an infringement on the mayor's prerogative to appropriate money. It is important down the line that the mayor's and the City Council's prerogatives be kept."

The Council retaliated by leaving the raise order in committee until the mayor changes his mind.

"It will stay in committee indefinitely until the mayor indicates that he is ready to consider the committee's actions," said Council President James A. Sheets. "Unless we hear otherwise we will stand by the decision we made."

The new $1.8 billion valuation for the city produced an unexpected windfall of $250,000 for the financially distressed public school system. The total valuation was considerably higher than had been expected, thus raising the tax levy limit under Proposition 2½.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon told the City Council that the money would go $150,000 for equipment for the Vo Tech School and $100,000 for new typewriters in Quincy and North Quincy High Schools. In a general discussion of the schools, Creedon told the Council that he would need a minimum for $5 million to bring the system back from the ravages of Prop 2½.

A new issue surfaced when a proposal was made to amend the city's zoning ordinances to permit construction of roads through open space so that developers of a condominium complex in Boston Harbor Marina could build a second access to their development as required by their planned unit development (PUD) agreement with the city.

A Council hearing drew and outpouring of opposition, much of it from the Houghs Neck area where the Broad Meadows marsh had recently been rezoned to open space.

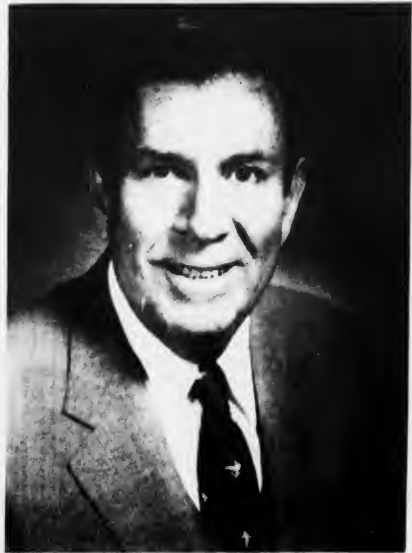

Arthur Chandler, president of the Quincy Citizens Association, warned the Council that the zoning change would "open a can of worms" for roads to be built through open space all over the city.

The Council decided to let the matter lie.

Deaths during March included: John J. Kelliher, 68, a longtime aide to former Mayor McIntyre, March 8, while returning home from McIntyre's wake.

INVOLVE DRINKING

The holidays are no excuse to put yourself and others in danger. Instead of celebrating to the limit, if you're driving, know your own limit. Know that even two drinks can affect reflexes, vision and judgement enough to make you a danger behind the wheel. If you're not planning to drive, you can see that others are fit to do so. If you're giving a party, serve high protein foods, which are digested more slowly and delay alcohol absorption. Also provide alternative drinks for partygoers who are driving, mixed with less alcohol or no alcohol. Don't let anyone leave in an intoxicated state and see that everyone has a ride home.

Watch Out For Drunk Drivers

A little forethought could save your life when it comes to protecting yourself from collisions with holiday drunk drivers. No, it doesn't mean you have to be psychic, just observant.

The Quincy City Hospital Community Relations Department urges that you watch out for drivers who:

- Drive excessively fast, slow or inconsistently.
- Drive at night without lights or with their dome light on.

- Drive too close to the curb or hug the center line.
- Have the window down with their head hanging out, no matter what the weather, in an attempt to sober up.

While these signs could occur anywhere, at any time of the day, studies by the National Safety Council, Northwestern University, and the Chicago Motor Club indicate certain locations, times and days of the week may be dangerous, as well.

- Beware of roads near resorts, bars, nightclubs and stadiums following major athletic events or rock concerts.

Holidays, weekends and paydays are the most dangerous times. Statistics indicate that as many as 10 percent of those on the road on a Friday or Saturday night may have been drinking.

The most dangerous time of all on the road is midnight Saturday to 3 a.m.

Sunday.

What should you do if you think you see a drunk driver? Give them plenty of room, slow down or pull off the road to keep you and your passengers safe. Massachusetts has programs for reporting the license plates of suspected drunk drivers where you are urged to call your local Police Department. Take advantage of it.

Play it safe and you'll make it home for the holidays.

Water Resources Appointment Next In Harbor Cleanup

the appointment to the board.

Quincy and Winthrop, each the site of an MDC sewage treatment facility, have one appointment apiece.

"I haven't seen a copy of the legislation yet," said McCauley Monday, "so I'm not sure how the appointment works."

"Do I send the governor one name? Do I send a list of names? Do I grade the names? I would prefer, of course, to make my own appointment."

McCauley said he will be looking for someone with a knowledge of the situation, possibly someone with a legal background or maybe a city official.

"That will be the major topic at the meeting with Stanley and Koff," he said.

McCauley said he received word Friday that Superior Court Judge Paul Garrity, who was, monitoring the city's suit against the MDC to clean up the harbor, has ruled that the city should be reimbursed for $67,000 in its expenses.

The sum will pay in full for Stanley's services and out of pocket expenses for Atty. Koff. McCauley said he is not sure just how much the city spent on the two-year suit.

"Our action benefitted all the communities on the harbor," said the mayor, "and at no cost to them."

The new Water Resources Authority will take over the duties of the MDC Sewer and Water Divisions in 43 communities in greater Boston by next July.

It will be responsible for the rehabilitation of sewer treatment plants, storm drains and water pipes in the district with authority to spend $2 billion in the next 15 years.

A state loan of $65 million, repayable by June, 1986, will provide seed money for the operation.

1,600 Children At Gear Works Christmas Party

Boston Gear Works hosted a party for more than 1,600 children at its 27th annual Christmas party at the Wollaston Theatre.

Music was provided by the Boston Gear Works orchestra under the direction of John DiLoreto. Highlights of the party were visits by Santa Claus and Sa-So the clown. Forty employees of the company served as ushers.

The committee in charge included, Edward Williams, William Greene, Francis Wright, George Davis, George Nereo, Loring Drew, Joseph Sheehan, William Toy and Wilbur Weeks.

Hoisted by Mayor Thomas Burgin, the flag was presented by Delcevere King, Quincy banker and philanthropist.

Some $430.17 was raised by the Quincy Crusade for Freedom committee from Quincy public school students and teachers to support the committee's campaign to correct Soviet propaganda with Western truths. Joseph McDonough was chairman of the committee.

CHRISTMAS PLANNED FOR HOSPITAL PATIENTS

Dr. Ensio Ronka, director of the Quincy City Hospital said that everything possible would be done for the 200 patients who had to spend Christmas in the hospital.

Ronka said that employees would try to turn the institution into a home away from home.

The hospital was decorated with wreaths and evergreens, while the Student Nurses Glee Club toured the wards singing Christmas carols. It was expected that Santa Claus would pay a special visit to the children's ward.

RED FEATHER PROVIDES MERRY CHRISTMAS FOR NEEDY

Robert Faxon, president of Quincy Community Chest and Council, reported that thanks to the money raised by the Quincy Red Feather campaign, toys and Christmas dinners would be provided for needy families in the city.

Red Feather agencies such as the Family Services Society, Quincy Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, YMCA, Salvation Army and St. Vincent DePaul Society conducted parties, provided dinners and furnished toys for needy families.

CLARK CRITICIZES COUNCIL'S DELAY

"The whole thing kind of burnt me up," said A. Wendell Clark, vice chairman of the Quincy School Committee. His remarks were made in response to the city council's recent action in delaying the school construction program.

The committee had asked the council to take action as soon as possible on a loan order for the school building program, but the decision was left for the new council that would be sworn in next week.

$75.8 - M Budget, Arrests In Houghs Neck

APRIL

Contract negotiations opened with the police and fire unions and Mayor Francis X. McCauley fired the opening public gun by releasing the results of a survey that showed the Quincy Police and Fire Departments to be among the best staffed and highest paid of comparable cities in the state.

"There is not a heck of a lot of money available for salary increases in 1985," said the mayor. "We will present a bargaining position of no pay increases for fiscal 1985."

He said David Grunebaum, the city's labor negotiator, had been communicating the situation to them in preliminary meetings with union negotiators since February.

The survey of police and fire protection in Quincy was conducted by Donald Hansen, the city personnel director, with the assistance of Arthur Foley, the mayor's administrative assistant.

In it the personnel, salaries and activities of the Quincy Police and Fire Departments were compared to those of 14 other cities of comparable size and one town (Weymouth).

"The city of Quincy clearly ranks far above the average and is second only to Cambridge in dollars spent per resident for police and fire services," said McCauley.

Statistics in the survey indicated that Quincy was spending $84.69 per capita on its Fire Department and $87.20 per capita on its Police Department.

The average for the 16 communities, including Quincy, in the survey was $70.35 on fire departments and $67.59 on police departments. Quincy was second only to Cambridge in both categories.

Mayor McCauley presented a $75,866,757 budget for fiscal 1985 to the City Council, an increase of $3.6 million or some 5 per cent over the fiscal 1984 expenditures.

In a brief message to the Council, the mayor said:

"I believe the amounts funded for the various city departments will allow our city government to continue to provide an acceptable level of city services in fiscal year 1985."

McCauley said the major increases in the budget were in fixed charges, such as debt service, pensions, health insurance and raises for city employees.

"There will be no layoffs," he told a news conference, "although in a few areas there are vacant positions that will not be filled. We have pretty well bottomed out on budget cuts."

Payment on the General Dynamics tax rebate bond, which was held by the company, appeared on the city budget for the first time and would continue at the rate of $2.8 million a year for the next 10 years.

Informative figures included by McCauley in his budget message showed that the city's tax levy had decreased by $21,065,264 or 31.4 per cent between 1981 and 1984, thanks to Proposition 2½.

The tax levy in 1981 was $66,984,782 and in 1984 it was $45,919,518. The levy of $47,067,504 for fiscal 1985 represented an increase permitted under Prop 2½.

McCauley also showed figures covering state aid receipts since 1981.

They included $12,734,523 in 1981, $16,498,554 in 1982, $23,628,416 in 1983, $27,245,167 in 1984 and $29,090,522 in 1985, a cumulative increase of $16,690,919 since 1981.

Less than 24 hours after Gov. Michael Dukakis made it all possible with a stroke of his pen, the candidates began lining up officially to run for the City Council seat in Ward I vacated by the resignation of Leo J. Kelly.

Dukakis signed a home rule petition changing the city charter to take the responsibility for filling Council vacancies away from the Council and giving it to the people.

The Council did its bit by scheduling a special preliminary election for May 15 and a special general election for June 12.

First to file for the seat were Mary Crowley Gregoire of 58 Lenox St., Michael T. Cheney of 94 Rock Island Rd. and Bernard Reisberg of 1399 Quincy Shore Drive. By the filing deadline they were joined by Kevin B. Davis of 226 Rock Island Rd. and Robert L. Johnston of 46 Bay View Ave.

The State Department of Revenue approved tax rates of $21.95 for residential property and $32.50 for commercial property in Quincy for fiscal 1984. They were the first property tax rates under 100 per cent revaluation. The last of the old rates for fiscal 1983 was $177 per thousand.

The City Council cleared the way for the new rate by approving McCauley's classification plan which proposed to tax residential property at 87.8007 per cent of full value and commercial industrial and personal property at a rate of 130 per cent.

Councillor Stephen J. McGrath made an unsuccessful attempt to amend the Mayor's figures to ease the blow on homeowners. His plan would have taxed residential property at 83.7343 per cent and CIPP at 140 per cent, which would yield a residential tax rate of $20.93 and $35 for business. The plan failed to get a second.

The License Board postponed until May a decision on a proposed McDonald's Restaurant on the first floor of the former Otis Elevator Building across Hancock St. from North Quincy High School.

The postponement was made at the request of City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., who said in a letter to the board that "several matters of public interest that should be addressed relative to this proposal have come to my attention over the past few days."

Considerable opposition to the restaurant surfaced at a public hearing, including the Atlantic Neighborhood Association, the Sacred Heart Parish Council, City Councillor JoAnne Condon and Police Capt. Paul Nestor, representing Police Chief Francis X. Finn.

Condon said the area was already congested with traffic and the restaurant would make the problem worse. She also cited the close proximity of schools to the site and said increased pedestrian traffic would also contribute to congestion.

Capt. Nestor said there would be a police problem, particularly with the left turn in and out of the restaurant. He said traffic and children would be a grave concern.

Atty. Patricia Hunt, representing the applicant, gave the board a petition signed by 1,400 people 500 from North Quincy, who favored the proposal. She also gave the board letters from a number of local businesses in favor.

Ten men, most of them from Quincy, were arrested and pleaded innocent to 109 counts of assault and civil rights violations in the February attack on five sailors, three of them black and one hispanic, from the submarine USS Fulton near Louis Cafe on Sea St., Houghs Neck.

Horrified Houghs Neck residents called a series of meetings to discuss youth drinking problems that were believed by some to have been a factor in the beating of the sailors.

David McMillan, chairman of Citizens Against Street Violence, who called the meetings, said that race was possibly one of several factors in the attack.

"There are very few racial problems in Houghs Neck," he said. "60 or 70 per cent of the problems are caused by street conditions, behavior that has been allowed to go on for five or six years."

McMillan apologized "on behalf of the Houghs Neck community for the incident. I know Houghs Neck is a safe place for those sailors and anyone else to come down and enjoy themselves."

Mayor McCauley and the City Council reached a compromise that dissolved a threatened deadlock over pay raises for city department heads.

McCauley agreed to a raise of $853 a year for City Clerk John Gillis and $1,162 for Auditor Robert E. Foy III, both of whom are legally Council employees. But the Mayor turned down Council proposals for wage hikes for five other department heads. City Solicitor Dean Nicastro ruled that such raises were the prerogative of the Mayor alone.

The Council passed a resolution asking the Mayor to study the possibility of purchasing voting machines for Quincy, one of the few cities in the state still counting paper ballots by hand at a large expense of time and money. The Mayor agreed that the time was ripe.

City Clerk Gillis showed off punch card voting machines to the Mayor, which he said could cost the city as little as $75,000 or as much as $150,000 and could trim some six hours off the time needed to count

When members of the Quincy Education Association face the facts of the last four contract years, we are sorely tempted to bury our heads in the sand!

- * 1977 Contract not settled for several months.
- * 1979 Contract again not settled and THE FIRST YEAR'S RAISE NEVER PAID.
- * 1982 Contract not settled for a whole year!
- * 1984 Here we are again working under an extension with serious differences facing both sides at the bargaining table.

Amidst massive RIFings, school closings, lack of timely contracts, bargaining problems, frozen budgets, and dismal future prospects, the educators of this city have continued to provide quality education for our young people:

- * Schools remained in session every single day without strike or work slowdowns.
- * Elementary and Middle School students scored above the national average in every area of the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills!
- * The Minimum Standards Tests developed for Grades 3, 5, and 8 in Quincy were recognized as among the finest by the State Department of Education!
- * College Board scores rose last year!
- * Quincy Public School graduates received over two million dollars in scholarships last year alone!

Educators want a fair contract. We want to expend our energies in the classroom and not be distracted by the need to picket, leaflet, or march. We will be working with the assigned mediator to explore each issue and attempt to arrive at a just and reasonable contract. Please call or write Mayor McCauley and the School Committee and urge them to do the same. We want our schools to continue to meet the needs of our students and to be a source of pride for our community.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The tune of Auld Lang Syne so frequently heard on New Years is probably the oldest custom attached to the "old times." It is a good custom unaffected by changing times from one year to another. Every New Year poses problems unheard of in the past and the fact that we have problems should give us a challenge - and hope.

Shortages in many things, especially in energy, indicate the extent of past mistakes. But the past is over with. The present exists. The future is waiting. And both the present and the future reflect the need, the absolute necessity to change the changing times.

This thought is beautifully expressed by an unknown author - "Another year behind us, into the toils of time. Another year will find us, far upward in our climb. . . So, friend set high your banners, unfurl your colors bright. . . Your march is ever onward, success shall crown the light. . . To which we add a personal hope. . . with the help of God, may you all have a Happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year. . . ."

Abp. Law Blesses Facility Sheltering The Homeless Not Just A Sermon At St. John's

By JOHN NOONAN

Ten years ago St. John's parochial school closed and many felt that an era had ended.

Instead, it has turned out, it is the beginning of another era of service to the community -- a shelter for twenty homeless individuals.

The shelter was officially dedicated and blessed last week when a host of dignitaries led by the Most Reverend Bernard Law, Archbishop of Boston, and Mrs. Kitty Dukakis, wife of Gov. Michael Dukakis, participated in the special Shelter opening ceremonies.

In blessing the shelter the Archbishop commended the various city, state, religious, and social agencies responsible for the St. John's shelter and 24 other similar facilities throughout the state for "joining together and making sheltering the homeless and feeding the hungry not just a Sunday sermon but a reality."

The Archbishop told the more than 100 religious and civic leaders present at the shelter site:

"I've only been in Boston nine months but that is long enough to recognize that Quincy has an amazing ability to draw people of all faiths and the wider community together for a common cause and to help solve this heart-rending problem."

Bishop Law said he was sending a letter to all 400 parishes throughout the Boston Archdiocese asking pastors to look into what steps they can take in their communities to further aid the homeless and hungry.

"This Advent season I again appeal to all of you to open your hearts and doors to the needy individuals and families in our communities," the letter said.

Pastors who feel they can participate in some manner were urged to contact the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston.

Mrs. Dukakis who is co-chairman of the governor's advisory committee on the homeless said the mini-grants provided by the state should also serve as an incentive for other churches and communities to set up similar programs of a more permanent nature.

The state has earmarked $439,000 to various organizations for temporary shelters.

St. John's shelter, the second in Quincy, opened Dec. 6 and is being funded through a mini-grant of $40,000 from the State Department of Public Welfare. Temporary shelters are funded only through April 1985.

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, an organization comprised of 45 churches, synagogues and five social agencies, is responsible for implementing the local shelter programs at St. John's school and the Quincy headquarters of the Salvation Army.

The Quincy Community Action Organization oversees the operation of the two local shelters and the Catholic Charitable Bureau is the recipient for the grant to run the St. John's shelter program.

Fr. William McCarthy, St. John's pastor, was instrumental in securing the approval of the Quincy Board of License Commissioners and the Parish Council Executive Board for the shelter program in St. John's school basement.

Other participants in the dedication of the St. John's program were Rev. Dr. James A. Nash, Executive Director of the Massachusetts Council of Churches; Rabbi David Jacobs, of Temple Beth El, Quincy, and the newest member of the Board of Directors of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition; Bishop Timothy Harrington of the Worcester Diocese, co-chairman of the Governor's advisory committee on the homeless; Monsignor Eugene McNamara, Executive Director of the Catholic Charities; Fr. Frederick Barr of Our Lady of Good Counsel, president of the board of the Interfaith Sheltering Coalition; State Welfare Commissioner Charles Atkins, who presented Monsignor McNamara with the initial check of $5,000 for the St. John's shelter.

In his remarks Fr. McCarthy said the shelter is working well and that St. John's is proud to be able to open its doors to the less fortunate, the homeless in Quincy.

According to Nancy Powers, director of the two local shelters, the 20 beds at St. John's and the five beds at the Salvation Army, the St. John's program has assisted some 45 individuals during the first two weeks of operation. Most of the guests so far are males in their early 30's and many of them are veterans of the Vietnam War.

The neighbors in the vicinity of St. John's school have indicated their Stay Alive!

By John Valante

FALLING THROUGH THE ICE

What would you do if someone fell through the ice while skating on a frozen pond? Perhaps it's more important to tell you what you shouldn't do first. Don't try to pull him out with your hands. You may break through the already weakened ice also. Then it's double trouble.

Get a pole or ladder or long board or similar object and crawl on the ice until you are close to the victim. Lie prone and inch forward. This distributes your weight over a large section. Extend the pole or board so that the victim can grab it. Pull him slowly forward, breaking the ice if necessary, until he reaches a firm spot. Help him out when you can do so without breaking through the ice.

To prevent frostbite, keep the victim warm with heavy blankets. Bring him inside as soon as possible and give him a warm drink.

Always be wary of frozen ponds, lakes or rivers and never skate alone if possible.

"It's about time," said Gillis, who was up until after 4 a.m. with the Presidential primary election in March. "After 27 years I'd like to see some improvement in voting procedures."

The Quincy Education Association instructed its legal counsel to initiate court action against Mayor McCauley demanding salary increases for teachers who retired during the past school year. The increases were negotiated by the School Committee in 1979 but never funded by then Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

"While every person employed by the School Department during 1979-80 is morally owed that salary increase," said QEA President Mary Curtin, "we are speaking at this point to a group of teachers who retired under a specific section of the contract. We will not accept such unconscionable behavior toward our members."

Deaths during the month of April included:

John J. Sullivan, former member of the School Committee, April 5, two weeks before his 66th birthday.

The Rev. Lloyd F. Martin, pastor of the Wollaston Congregational Church, April 20.

MAY

Michael I. Cheney, a diesel mechanic for the MBTA, and Robert L. Johnston, headmaster of the Woodward School for Girls, rolled up heavy votes in their home Houghs Neck precincts to finish one-two in the preliminary election to fill the Ward 1 seat on the City Council. It was the city's first special election in nearly 50 years.

Johnston topped the ballot with 902 votes while Cheney was only eight votes behind with 894. Trailing far behind the two leaders were Bernard Reisberg with 497 votes, Kevin Davis with 235 and Mary Crowley Gregoire with 207. A total of 2,783 voters, or 34.6 per cent of the 8,042 registered voters to the polls.

The special final election was scheduled for June 12 to fill the seat vacated by Leo J. Kelly, a councillor for 10 years, who resigned to take a job as project director with the Quincy Housing Authority.

The last special elections in Quincy were May 21 and June 11, 1935 when Thomas S. Burgin defeated Council President Leo E. Mullin in a race to succeed Charles A. Ross as mayor.

Validated parking started officially in downtown Quincy Monday, May 14, and first reports were favorable.

"We're very pleased," said Kenneth Fallon, executive secretary of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, which backed the validated concept strongly. "There have been a minimum of complaints."

"There have been no major problems," said Mayor McCauley. "We will have to wait to see how the projected revenues go and how many merchants sign up for validation."

Fallon said that about 65 or 70 downtown businessmen had signed up to validate parking tickets for their customers, a key feature of the parking operation being conducted by Kinney Systems, Inc., in the Hancock and Ross lots.

Swingle's Quarry Drained For Drowning Victim

Some 1,200 meters were removed from the lots in preparation for the Kinney takeover. New meter heads were placed on the streets reflecting the new parking rates of 10 cents per quarter hour for up to a half hour of parking. Rates in the Hancock and Ross areas were pegged at 25 cents an hour, $2 a day or $25 a month.

Despite last minute charges of intimidation, the License Board voted unanimously 5-0 to grant a license for a McDonald's restaurant in North Quincy.

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., who had requested the late hearing, told the Board that McDonald's had "threatened, intimidated, and bullied support for the project."

Lydon said that Wayne McCutley of North Quincy, Inc., who was originally opposed to the McDonald's because of the traffic that it would generate, was threatened with the loss of his right to bring cases on the North Quincy office area.

However, Police Chief Francis Finn produced an investigation report in which McCutley stated that he had not been threatened by anyone.

Lydon noted that Police Capt. Paul Nestor had expressed concerns about traffic and appeared to oppose the license but now Chief Francis X. Finn was sitting in the police seat on the board and he was for it.

"All of a sudden," said Lydon, "we have a police chief come all the way from Florida for the final meeting and vote. Does that cause you some question?"

Finn said he had returned to the city only because his vacation was over.

But the controversy revived at the end of the month when City Solicitor Dean Nicastro gave the opinion that the restaurant may not meet the parking requirements since parking might very well not be permitted on an MBTA right-of-way which was located on property leased by McDonald's.

Board Chairman John Gillis set a limited hearing date on the parking matter in June.

"I've listened to city solicitors through the years," said Gillis. "Some of them are right, some of them are not. It's up to this board to decide if we're right or wrong on this thing."

Mayor McCauley and the City Council, which was considering his budget for fiscal 1985, reached a deadlock over the adequacy of the police and fire sections of that budget.

McCauley said he felt that $13.9 million was enough to fund both departments but all eight councillors as well as Chiefs Francis X. Finn and Edward Barry thought not and that, in the words of Finn:

"I do not believe that the people of Quincy are getting the kind of protection they are entitled to."

The Council, in an unprecedented move, removed the fire and police budgets from the $75.9 million municipal budget and returned them to the mayor for further consideration. McCauley said he would not do it.

"The city councillors," said Council President Sheets, "all believe that the budget does not include adequate personal services money to put the number of police and firefighters on the street that this city deserves."

Compounding the problem was the fact that, if the Council did not act on the budget within 45 days after it was presented, or by June 1, it would become effective with or without Council approval.

Councillors tried to solve the dilemma by appropriating one-twelfth of the Mayor's budget, or only enough to run the city through the month of July, while waiting for the Mayor to change his mind. Both sides were adamant that there would be no compromise.

"The City Council is firm in its decision; it is not going to change," said Sheets.

"There will be no changes in my budget," said McCauley and he said he saw the possibility of court action to over turn the Council vote.

"I foresee," said Sheets, "the City Council continuing the fight to preserve and adequate level of public safety services in the city. If that means staying in session all summer then we will be in session all summer."

Dr. O. Clayton Johnson was installed as the third president of Quincy Junior College and he indicated to guests at First Parish Church that the emphasis on expanded career programs and a strengthened general education program would be the highlights of his regime.

"Many," he said, will cling to the past values as the only road to travel because they essentially believe that the preparation of commonly educated students will replicate the renaissance person.

"But I caution all of you

MAYOR FRANCIS MCCAULEY installs Dr. O. Clayton Johnson as third president of Quincy Junior College.

that the meaning of education today and in the future is not that simple any more."

The J. F. White Contracting Co. of Newton began draining Swingle's Quarry in West Quincy in search of the body of Paul Gooch, 17, of Brockton who drowned in June, 1983, after jumping into the water from a 50-foot ledge.

The White company contracted to drain the quarry in eight months and then fill it in with clean fill over a period of 15 years, paying the city on the basis of tonnage.

The draining attracted the interest of the FBI which left a standing order that it be informed of all automobiles found in the quarry as possible clues in "the Susan Saxe case." She was a radical college student who was then serving time in MCI Framingham for her involvement in the slaying of a Boston police officer during a bank robbery.

Mayor McCauley said he planned to rebid the abandoned Pollard School in Quincy Point after a community group failed to come up with the money to take it over as a community center and a number of new developers expressed an interest in it.

The high bid previously was by Manel Properties Trust, headed by Anthony Losordo of Quincy, whose offer of $152,000 for the building on Southern Artery was recommended for acceptance by the Planning Board. The City Council rejected the bid to give the community group a chance.

Ground was broken for a $2.8 million sewer project in South Quincy which eventually would result in lifting the state ban that had been placed on development in the area.

The project was to include the Fort Square Pumping Station, the Town Brook relief interceptor and rehabilitation of the South Quincy and Faxon Park sewer systems.

"This should eliminate the sewer problems in South West Quincy," said Mayor McCauley, who noted that "WHERE'S THE METER?" asks Terrence Bertrand, & of Quincy, as he peers down the empty post that held a meter in the Hancock Parking lot for nearly 30 years. Removal of the meters signalled the beginning of validated parking.

90 per cent of the cost would be picked up by the state and federal governments.

The Houghs Neck Committee Against Street Pollution, activated by the February attack on five sailors outside a drinking spot, formed a "watchdog" subcommittee headed by Jack Nigro to keep an eye on drinking by young people in the neighborhood.

A youth activities committee also was formed under Peg Nigro in an effort to provide healthy activities to replace drinking "because there is nothing else to do."

Adams Realty Trust of Braintree, a national consortium of investors, disclosed that it was planning to construct two office buildings of five or six stories each, one in West Quincy, the other in Braintree, on the site of the old Goldie's junkyard. No cost figure was mentioned but the construction would require a zoning change from the current Residence A category.

Creedon Case Divides City

MDC Commissioner William Geary announced that last summer's traffic crackdown and slowdown on Quincy Shore Drive was so successful that the Commission was going to do it again the summer of '84.

Geary, a Wollaston resident himself, reported that the summer of 1983 was free of fatalities and Metro police issued 6,478 citations for traffic violations, more than double the number in 1982, as a result of more police patrols and a change in the pattern of signals along the drive.

Deaths during the month of May included:

John J. Sullivan Jr., 43, director of operations for the Norfolk County Commissioners and son of John J. Sullivan who died in April, May 18.

JUNE

It started slowly, mysteriously, when the School Committee went into executive session to discuss complaints of misconduct with a female student lodged against a school official. The official was not named but inferences were drawn right from the start by the fact that School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon was represented at the meeting by Atty. Richard Barry.

No names were mentioned in the second meeting, either, and the Committee voted 4-3 not to pursue the complaint any further. Frank Anselmo, Mary Collins, Christopher Kennedy and Joan Picard were the majority with Mayor Francis X. McCauley, Stephen Durkin and Nicholas Verenis voting to continue.

"There will be no further action. It is dead," said McCauley. But it wasn't.

At the very next meeting, Kennedy moved for reconsideration and the matter was reopened by a 6-1 vote with only Anselmo voting to drop the case. At the same time, Creedon acknowledged that he was indeed the school official under fire.

Dr. LAWRENCE CREEDON Retires

The 52-year-old Creedon had been charged in executive session with touching the breast of a 16-year-old female student while visiting an art class at Quincy High School. The problem facing the School Committee was what to do with those charges.

Vice Chairwoman Joan Picard moved to refer the case to the District Attorney and Creedon agreed that that would be the best way to settle the case. But Kennedy objected to the motion which tabled it until the next meeting.

Meanwhile, a petition drive led by Gini Kurtzman of Wollaston, was pressed in an effort to force the School Committee to hold formal hearings into the charges against Creedon. Kurtzman said the petition could also be used to force a city-wide referendum on whether to go ahead with the formal hearing even if the Committee voted it down.

Mayor McCauley, who chaired the School Committee as Mayor, said he would not support the Picard motion when it came up for a vote.

"That's a way of getting us off the hook," he said. "That is the student's right. It's not for us to decide. We are responsible for dealing with the situation now."

The Creedon case divided the city in two.

The Fair Committee, headed by former Dist. Atty. George G. Burke and including such luminaries as former School Committee member Paul Kelley, Daniel G. Raymond and Charles Sweeney, was formed to urge that the case be given to the district attorney.

Anselmo said he had received at least 30 letters in support of Creedon, many of them from educators around New England and most of them urging that the district attorney take over the matter.

Meanwhile, a second complaint was aired that Creedon had sexually harassed another school girl and the School Committee voted 4-3 to hold a formal disciplinary hearing in the first case and 7-0 to hold a hearing on the second charge in the latter part of August.

The "Battle of the Budget" took a new turn when Mayor McCauley, on the advice of City Solicitor Dean Nicastro, declared that his $75.8 million budget for fiscal 1985 passed the City Council by default and would go into effect, uncut and unaltered, on July 1.

Nicastro ruled that the Council's action taken in May in giving the Mayor only enough money to run the city for the month of July "is a nullity" since state law makes no provision for passage of anything but an annual budget.

Under state law, the Council must take action on the budget within 45 days on receipt from the Mayor (in this case, June 1) or it goes into effect without Council approval.

Council President Sheets said he "is not at all surprised by the opinion given by the Mayor's attorney."

"Once again," he said, "it is not a legal issue. The issue is public safety. The issue is that the Mayor has refused properly to man the Police and Fire Department."

A petition drive to urge McCauley not to cut 13 positions from the Police and Fire budgets was started and, said Sheets, "in two hours we obtained 1,100 signatures in a limited section of the city (North Quincy)."

MICHAEL CHENEY

Elected

Nicastro's opinion left the budget matter up to City Clerk John Gillis, who had to certify the budget before it went into effect. He had already certified the one-twelfth budget passed by the Council, and, he said, as far as he was concerned that was the official budget, at least until the money ran out in August.

But, he added, "it's still up in the sky right now. No one I have talked to has been able to find a precedent for this."

"The whole focal point is on John now," said McCauley. "If he doesn't follow Dean Nicastro's opinion then we've got a problem."

Both factions pleaded their case before Ira Jackson and Edward Collins, commissioner and deputy commissioner of the Department of Revenue respectively but they were no help.

"It is our strong recommendation," wrote Collins, "that every effort be made by the Mayor and the Council to work together in order to reach agreement on the final annual budget."

Michael T. Cheney, 31, a diesel mechanic for the MBTA who had never run for public office before, put together a big vote in his home precinct and held on to win the vacant Ward 1 City Council seat.

MEMORIAL MARKER honoring eight Germantown youths who have died in action while serving their country was dedicated at Snug Harbor School. Principal Morrie Hibbard, reads the inscription with students Donald Short and Kimberly Wilson. The eight names are: Henry Grenier, Joseph Sullivan, Frederick Graves, Robert Leaman, John Granahan, Peter Landry, Gerald Peterson and Edward Gargano.

But the margin of victory over Robert L. Johnston, 51, headmaster of the Woodward School for Girls, was so close that a recount was needed to confirm his victory. The final count was Cheney 1,589 and Johnston 1,510.

Cheney was sworn in June 27 and announced that he was in full support of his new colleagues in their fight with the mayor for a bigger public safety budget.

Another round in the battle over a McDonald's Restaurant at 275-295 Hancock St. across from North Quincy High School was fought in the License Board, this time over the adequacy of parking spaces around the building.

At a rehearing, Building Inspector Allan MacDonald said the Otis Elevator Building, which was to house the restaurant on the first floor and offices on the others, has 39 parking spaces, and at the rate of 10 spaces for every 100 seats, the 104-seat restaurant would need only 10 spaces.

"We've heard enough," said Board Chairman John Gillis. "The license was granted 5-0. The building inspector says there is sufficient parking."

The license was opposed by City Councillor Joanne Condon, who charged McDonald's for not keeping North Quincy residents more informed of plans and called the License Board "somewhat irresponsible."

Mrs. Bertha Fishman, 69, of 64 Joan Drive, Quincy Center, widow of Morris Fishman, former owner of Sher's Drug Store at Temple and Washington Sts., was found beaten to death in the bedroom of her home and police sought as suspects burglars who had been active in the area.

Draining operations reached the bottom of Swingle's Quarry in West Quincy at 230 feet six and a half months ahead of schedule but there was no sign of the body of Paul Gooch, 17, of Brockton, who drowned there June 20, 1983.

It was speculated that the Gooch boy's body might be buried under tons of granite that came down in the previous September when a large section of the wall collapsed during another draining operations.

The city reached agreement with the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD) on improvements in the city's affirmative action programs on employment, housing, contract compliance and business opportunities.

The agreement had the effect of removing a cloud from nearly $3 in state and federal funding due the city, including $1.2 million for construction of the Fort Square Sewage Pumping Station in South Quincy.

A Boston development group announced plans to construct a $30 million luxury apartment complex to be called "The Ledges" with 596 housing units on a 21-acre site off Quincy Ave. behind President's Plaza.

The City Council voted 7-0 to swap some 50,000 square feet of open space for a similar amount of planned unit development (PUD) land in Squantum to clear way for a second access road to the Marine Bay Condominium development.

Deaths during the months of June included: John Belcastro, 58, administrative assistant in the Quincy Housing Authority and former assessor, June 2.

Creedon Retires, Discontent At Hospital

JULY

Embattled School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon surprised the School Committee by announcing his retirement from the $55,000 a year post, effective Sept. 25. Committee members, who were scheduled to hold formal disciplinary hearings on two of the three complaints against him, accepted his retirement by a 7-0 vote.

Creedon categorically denied in an interview with The Quincy Sun the allegations that were lodged against him by three school girls involving separate incidents.

"Obviously," he said, "I'm tremendously upset and devastated by the whole situation. As far as I'm concerned there is no substance to any of it. It all just seemed to mushroom."

He said he had been contemplating retirement for three or four years, ever since the advent of Proposition 2½ and the current situation simply provided the impetus for it.

"For the past several years," he said, "things in public education haven't been all that positive. Twenty-five per cent of the superintendents in the states have retired since Proposition 2½. It has gone through my mind periodically since then."

Creedon said he was approached several months before by a colleague who retired about three years ago to join him in a joint educational venture.

"With all the furor, I guess this is the time," he said.

Creedon said that, depending on the business opportunity, he had no plans to leave the Quincy area where he grew up and has lived all his life. He said he regarded the whole matter closed.

"I have retired so far as I'm concerned I have no need to explore the thing any further," he said. "I have no desire to pursue the matter of clearing myself at the present time. I want to take time to think about the whole situation. Right now I plan to focus my energies on the business opportunity."

The formal disciplinary hearings into the charges against Dr. Creedon were dropped, even before the School Committee could set a date, and Asst. Supt. John A. Osterman was named acting superintendent until a new one could be chosen.

His retirement also stopped School Committee debate on the legality of a proposal to hire legal counsel for one of the complainants and pay his or her fee out of School Department funds. Mayor Francis X. McAuley, who also serves as chairman of the School Committee, said it was an accepted statewide practice for school committees to hire legal counsel for plaintiffs who issue complaints against school personnel.

He said the legal counsel so engaged is considered to be counsel for the School Committee and is therefore paid for by the School Department.

The purpose in hiring counsel for the plaintiff, said the mayor, is to provide the School Committee with complete details of the complaint in the proper legal manner.

School Committeeman Frank Anselmo questioned McAuley's position and asked that the legality of paying the fees be placed on the committee agenda for discussion. When Creedon retired, the discussion was never held.

The battle of the budget was finally laid to rest and both sides, the Mayor and the City Council, claimed victory.

The Council, which earlier had passed a $6.3

$400,000 which it had proposed to cover for the vacant fire and police positions that McAuley had dropped from the budget.

"By not doing so," said the Mayor, "the City Council upheld the Mayor's prerogative to initiate appropriations and that is the key issue in the controversy."

Council President James A. Sheets said the budget issue united the Council as it had never been united before in recent years. He said that during the eight week hassle the councillors conducted themselves with dignity.

"It was their finest hour," he said.

Sheets said the Council's action had preserved the cherished principle of separation of city government powers between the Mayor and the Council.

Councillors claimed that the one-twelfth budget they passed was the only legal budget because it had been approved by the Council and certified by City Clerk John Gillis.

Sheets cited McAuley's directive to Gillis and to City Auditor Robert E. Foy III asking the two City Council appointees to use his budget in conducting the city's financial affairs as an example of the Mayor's executive interference. Both Gillis and Foy refused to comply with the directive.

When it was over, McAuley said he planned to get on with the business of setting tax rates and preparing tax bills for mailing by Sept. 30.

On a happier note, Mayor McAuley announced that the city will realize $1,928,848 from the sale of vacant school buildings.

The announcement was coupled with news that the Adams School will bring $350,000 when the deal is completed and the City Council approved the sale of six lots on the site of the demolished Hunting School for a total of $165,000.

The breakdown for the sale of the school buildings went like this:

Willard School $914,410.

Cranch School $149,658, Quincy School $175,000, Adams School $350,000, Gridley Bryant School $150,000, Massachusetts Field School $247,440, and at least $150,000 for the Pollard School when final bids are opened. The city earmarked $62,306 for demolition of the Hunting and Great Hill Schools.

Simone Beth Riman, 20, of Randolph, who used to watch the Miss America and Miss Universe Beauty Pageants on television when she was a little girl and asked her mother to make a crown of her own, finally got a real one when she was crowned Miss Quincy Bay of 1984.

She was so excited that the next morning she ran to the kitchen of her home where she had left her trophy and red roses from the Pageant and her boyfriend, Richard Stone, 20, of Boston.

"I wanted to see if it had really happened or if it was just a dream," she said. "And everything was still there."

Discontent erupted at City Hospital when members of the Service Employees International Union, AFI-CIO circulated petitions outlining some 28 concerns regarding services to patients and lack of sufficient personnel at the hospital.

Among the union complaints were charges that patients receive poor hygiene due to lack of staff, members of patients' families had been carrying bed pans and doing other nursing duties, and nurses had insufficient time to talk with patients about their anxieties.

Hospital Director Mark J. Mundy denied that the hospital was understaffed but he added it is difficult to control problems arising on occasion when key employees who provide patient care are suddenly or unexpectedly absent from their jobs.

When members of the union went public with their protest during the annual Sidewalk Bazaar in downtown Quincy, Mayor McAuley entered the fray, questioning what useful purpose was served by alarming unnecessarily Quincy residents who use the hospital. He acknowledged that there was a decline in hospital personnel but that it was not sufficient to affect hospital care.

Arthur Foley, the Mayor's administrative assistant, disclosed that the new controlled parking system in downtown Quincy, including merchant validation of parking stubs, grossed $40,413 during the month of June, the first full month it was in operation.

Foley projected the figure into $480,000 for the 12-month year. He called it "a healthy situation. The figures are in line with what we predicted."

Under its lease with Kinney Systems, which manages the parking areas, the city receives a base rent of $67,000 a year for the parking lots plus 50 per cent of the gross over $300,000 and 75 per cent of the gross over $500,000.

Mayor McCauley named seven new officers, including a woman, to the Quincy Police Department, bringing the complement to 160 officers, four of them women. There were also 23 sergeants, 12 lieutenants, five captains and one chief.

The City Council voted to ban trespassing at Badger's and Swingle's Quarries in West Quincy, under pain of a $150 fine. Swingle's Quarry was the site of the June, 1983, drowning of Paul Gooch, 17, of Brockton, and Badger's Quarry was filled in. Both were city-owned.

Deaths during July included:

Melvin Thorner, 69, of Kingston, longtime Quincy lawyer and past president of the Quincy Bar Association, July 2.

Patricia J. Ceriani, 45, of West Quincy, the first woman ever named to the Quincy Board of Assessors, July 30.

AUGUST

Once again Quincy was held up to scorn as a racist city when it was disclosed that an affirmative action agreement signed with the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination in June contained a clause that the city was to provide an escort service for blacks and other minorities seeking housing in the city.

Mayor McCauley, beset by negative reaction from Quincy residents, asked the MCAD to drop the escort plan but Chairman Alex Rodriguez refused.

"We're not a hostile city," said the Mayor. "There is no big problem. That type of thing is not necessary. It's sort of an affront to the citizens of Quincy. People can come to Quincy to shop and work and they shouldn't really need an escort. Outside of a couple of incidents, there have been no problems with minorities coming to Quincy."

Ground was finally broken for the long-awaited construction of the 1.2 mile long Burgin Parkway Extension, the $9.9 million project that was hailed as a vital catalyst for the future growth and economic development of the downtown Quincy business district.

"The stimulus this new road will provide is a perfect example of the sound infrastructure to our economic health," said Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, the main speaker at the groundbreaking.

"This project will be a tremendous boost to the revitalization of downtown Quincy, which for too long has lacked convenient or adequate access to the state's major roadways."

The highway, named for former Mayor and Sen. Thomas S. Burgin, now 82, will connect Quincy Center with the Southeast Expressway in South Quincy allowing traffic a free flow to Granite St.

"The Burgin Parkway Extension will provide immediate access to downtown Quincy," said Mayor McCauley. "It is a very positive step for the city and it is a catalyst for present and future development in the downtown area."

Modern Continental Construction of Cambridge was awarded the contract to build the extension after the lowest bidder was disqualified for failure to comply with minority contractor rules.

Mayor McCauley, who took considerable heat over public safety during the "battle of the budget" with the City Council, announced that he planned to appoint "as many firefighters as it takes to bring the Fire Department up to a full complement of 177 men."

The Mayor said he was not sure how many firefighters he would name from a Civil Service list of 13.

"When we finish screening the 13 on the list," he said, "then we will look at the number of vacancies and act accordingly."

He said there would be no further loss of positions in the Fire and Police Departments due to attrition and he promised the City Council that he would fill the jobs when they became vacant.

McCauley, in his capacity as chairman of the School Committee, said he would like to see Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon's successor as school superintendent placed under contract for three years rather than enjoy life tenure like the retired Creedon.

"The sense that I get is that we would not get to see a tenured superintendent again," he said. "State law allows a contract up to six years. I would favor something in the vicinity of three years."

"But the first decision we will have to make is whether we are going to look inward to the system or continue with an acting superintendent while we open up a nationwide search."

Mentioned as in-house possibilities for the post were:

Asst. Supts. John Osterman, who was acting superintendent, and Richard Chrystal; Carl Deyoso of Quincy Junior College; Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, director of pupil personnel; Arthur Woodward, director of secondary education; Wilfred Nolan, coordinator of elementary education.

City Councillor Joanne Condon, who led the campaign to roll back closing hours at drinking spots to 1 a.m., said she planned to introduce an ordinance that would ban "happy hour" in Quincy. It would be similar to one adopted in Braintree in April following a death in a restaurant parking lot.

Under the proposal, bars would be forbidden to serve drinks free or at discount prices; drinking contests such as the practice commonly known as "chug-a-lug" would be banned; and sale of beer or any other alcoholic beverage by the pitcher would not be allowed.

Marion Fantucchio, a career city employee and administrative assistant to the Board of Assessors since 1976, was named by Mayor McCauley to be a member of the board to fill the unexpired term of the late Patricia Ceriani.

"There will be no on-the-job training for Marion," said the Mayor. "She can step in and go to work immediately."

A company called Adams Realty Trust purchased the site of Goldie's junkyard at 821-865 Willard St. West Quincy, and announced plans to construct two five-story office buildings, provided the Zoning Board of Appeals would grant a variance from the Residence A zoning.

Meanwhile, MDC Commissioner William Geary said the MDC, at the behest of Rep. Michael W.

Morrissey, is taking a serious look at buying the land and adding it to the Blue Hills Reservation. Morrissey said the MDC had a $13 million fund for land purchase and the old Goldie's site would cost between $2 and $3 million.

Morrissey said residents of the area are not opposed to the twin office buildings as much as they are opposed to the total development on Willard St., which includes a Chinese restaurant, and a new apartment house.

Mayor McCauley said negotiations for new contracts for city employees, including teachers, would have to mark time until he hears precisely how much additional state aid is coming to the city.

"We haven't made a money offer yet," said McCauley, "but we are still negotiating. We have been told there will be additional money from the state but we don't know how much and we certainly aren't going to spend it until we get it."

Contracts with unions representing most city employees expired June 30 and the current agreement with the teachers' union was up Aug. 31. McCauley said a 5 per cent pay raise for one year for all city employees would cost $2.2 million.

There was, however, some unexpected money coming into the city as well as going out.

McCauley announced that his crackdown on real estate and property tax delinquents, which he began when he took office in January, 1982, had yielded collections of $4,070,587 through Aug. 4.

"This figure represents an increase of $2,803,000 or 221 per cent over a comparable 32-month period preceding the start of the crackdown," said McCauley.

The Mayor said the city was owed close to $7 million in back taxes when he took office. The first move was to select the top dozen delinquents and move their property into tax title.

"The top 12 are pretty well cleaned up now," said the Mayor. "Most of the big ones have paid up. Some of the delinquent taxpayers had to sell their property. Now we are getting the property developed which will mean more taxes for the city."

Jack Raymer, an assistant coach at North Quincy High School for seven years, was named head football coach at Quincy High School only three weeks before the season's opener against Cambridge Rindge and Latin following the resignation of Bill Mayer, who took a teaching job at Acton-Boxboro Regional High School.

"I do not consider myself a conservative coach and I can promise we will not be a conservative team," said Raymer.

Deaths during the month of August included:

Msgr. John E. Mullarkey, 84, a priest for 59 years and former guest priest at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, where the social hall is named for him, Aug. 26.

Antonio J. (Tony) Quintiliani, 49, former football star at Quincy High School, after eight years in a coma following a heart attack, Aug. 25.

Theodore J. Rouillard, 79, retired firefighter and founder of Rouillard's Cafe in West Quincy, Aug. 20.

Louis S. LaVena, 94, the retired master barber whose customers included President John F. Kennedy and Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, Aug. 3.

Harold, Cerasoli Re-elected

SEPTEMBER

Sen. Paul D. Harold and Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli, two longtime legislators on Beacon Hill, easily turned back what was expected to be strong challenges in the primary election.

Harold, who first won the state senate seat in 1978, piled up a better than 2-1 margin in Quincy over Richard Golden, 29, of Quincy and went on to increase his margin in the district towns of Braintree, Hingham and Avon.

Cerasoli demolished his opponent, Thomas E. Lanner of Westmouth, by a margin of nearly 3-1 in his home Ward 2 Quincy section of the Third Norfolk District and barely lost the Westmouth precincts in daiming victory.

Both Harold and Cerasoli were unopposed in the November general election and thus assured of reelection.

In other primary races in Quincy:

U.S. Gov. John Kerry of Boston came through with a nearly 1,300 vote margin in Quincy over Cong. James M. Shannon of Lawrence in the race for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate. Kerry also won statewide.

In the only contest on the Republican ballot, Raymond Shamie, a conservative Walpole businessman, overwhelmed Elliot Richardson of Brookline en route to winning that party's nomination for U.S. senator. Shamie also prevailed statewide.

The voter turnout in Quincy was 18.363, or 39.8 per cent of the city's 46,297 registered voters.

Cerasoli's light with Lanner carried overnight of the battle between House Speaker Thomas McGee of Lynn and Rep. George Keverian of Everett for House leadership.

"I feel that the people of the Third Norfolk District rejected the politics of Tommy McGee and the shady subculture that exists in the Beacon Hill leadership," said Cerasoli, a Keverian supporter.

In other races on the Democratic ballot:

James J. Collins of Milton and George B. McDonald of Quincy won re-nomination for county commissioner; Cong. Brian J. Donnelly turned back a challenge from John Pasquale Scialdone of Boston, a follower of the radical economist Lyndon Larouche; and Rep.

Michael Morrissey whipped another Larouche supporter, Patricia Peterson of West Quincy.

Democrats renominated unopposed were Peter L. Fleece of Quincy for governor's council, Rep. Thomas F. Brownell in the Second Norfolk District, Thomas P. Hughes of Quincy for Register of Probate, and James M. Collins of Milton for county treasurer.

Republicans unopposed were Patricia A. Ruskiewicz of Brockton for governor's councillor and Auburn J. Perry Jr. of Canton for county commissioner.

Ground was broken in West Quincy for the largest single development in the city's history.

The $200 million Crown Colony Place, located on some 170 acres of the Old Colony Crushed Stone quarry, eventually would become an office park with two million square feet of space.

The ground-breaking ceremonies marked the beginning of construction of a new entrance road leading to the site from Centre St. "Crown Colony Place fits in perfectly with our vision of Quincy's business future," said Mayor McCauley. "The city is constantly exploring ways to stimulate business growth in its commercial districts."

Upon completion, the park will have 18 buildings and space for light industry. Quincy's first hotel, with an estimated 300 rooms, is planned for a portion of the site.

The way was cleared for the project when the City Council approved a zoning change that would permit construction of a hotel or motel in an area zoned for Residence B or light industry.

A hotel is important from the point of view of prestige, Planning Director James Lydon told the Council.

"Seventy to 80 per cent of the functions that are held in Randolph originate in Quincy," he said. "A number of businesses have come to Quincy recently but they don't allow visiting dignitaries to stay in Quincy."

Several people who testified at a joint City Council-Planning Board hearing said they felt that permission to build a first class hotel in Quincy would in some way be linked to the crack at the new jobs for Quincy people but Lydon disagreed.

"It is my strong belief," he said, "that we should not impose any employment percentages or linkages on developers like they do in Boston. If we do they will go somewhere else. I see a lot of Boston developers coming to my office."

Lydon said the entire development will employ some 7,000 to 10,000 people when it is completed.

Mayor McCauley figured that he had come up with a substitute for the controversial "escort service" clause in the city's affirmative action plan that would be acceptable to the MCAD.

The substitute was the Housing Resources Program which had been conducted by the South West Community Center with $20,000 in state funds for the past eight years, steering newcomers to areas of the South Shore in which they could expect to find housing in their income brackets.

No escort service was provided.

Meanwhile, angry members of the City Council took turns castigating the McCauley administration and Affirmative Action Officer Donald Hansen in particular for locking the city into the plan.

"You bungled it publicly," Councilor John J. Lydon Jr. told Hansen. "I see you as stirring up this mess by misrepresenting the city. You highlighted the wrong things to the MCAD."

"It is a sin that Quincy is subjected to this publicity as being a racist city," said Councilor Joanne Condon. "The MCAD is using us as an example for the rest of the state. I don't believe we have problems of bigotry."

Superior Court Judge James Lynch Jr., calling the February attack on five sailors in Houghs Neck "latent racism," sentenced four men to jail terms for the assault.

"A clear message must be sent that such outrageous conduct cannot and will not be tolerated," said Lynch and he called the incident "an ugly stain on the proud history of the City of Presidents."

The judge called David Peard, 23, of Quincy "the instigator" and sent him to Walpole State Prison for three to five years. The others got lesser terms.

No opposition was raised at a City Council hearing into a proposed zoning change that would close small convenience and other stores in residential areas between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. The change would not affect current 24-hour stores.

"What is a convenience to some is an inconvenience to others," said Planning Director Lydon. "The 24-hour stores draw people who are obnoxious to residents."

"It is unreasonable to expect people who live in residential areas to put up with 24-hour stores," said Councilor Michael Cheney. "This zoning change is not anti-business, it's pro-neighborhood."

"It is unreasonable to The hours of 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. were stipulated by the license Board when it approved by a 4-1 vote a longstanding request by Dacey Brothers for a common victuallers' license for take out at a new store at 200 Sea St., Merrymount.

The approval was granted after Dacey and the Merrymount Association agreed on 14 stipulations covering such topics as enclosure of a dumpster, fencing, deliveries, litter, lighting, landscaping and removal of tanks.

Fire Chief Edward Barry opposed the license, saying he did not think such a permit was a good idea in a residential area.

The license Board also unanimously voted to ban the so-called "happy hours" from Quincy drinking establishments, effective in January, 1985.

"They (happy hours) encourage young and old to drink more than they should," said Chief Barry.

"We've requested in the past," said Building Inspector Allan MacDonald, "that liquor establishments refrain from 'happy hours' on a volunteer basis. Since it hasn't worked, we should make it mandatory."

A proposal for a $35,000 study of the operation of the Police Department stalled in the City Council when Police Chief Francis X. Finn vehemently objected to the company chosen to do the work. Techmark of Hanover, a firm that specializes in public safety management consultation and security systems.

"We have been through this before," said Finn. "We have been analyzed hundreds of times. We are willing to accept another study if that is what you want. But we don't want a $35,000 cap on it. We want the best. And I have no confidence in this organization."

Dratlis during the month of September included:

Samuel (Eddie) Davies, 71, who once played the piano in the Old Howard burlesque theater in Boston, Sept. 1.

Ronald A. Orent, 73, former president of Shipbuilding Union Local 5 at Fore River, Sept. 6.

Lucien (Lou) Brouillard, 73, who trained in Quincy to win the world's welterweight and middleweight titles, Sept. 14.

Francis E. Collins, 63, foster parent to 165 youngsters in need of a friend, Sept. 23.

OCTOBER

The City Council, by a vote of 6-3, approved Mayor McCauley's classification plan that would give the city's residential taxpayers a rate of $21.03 per thousand valuation and owners of business property a rate of $30.86.

The Mayor's plan was enacted after the Council, by a vote of 7-2, rejected a plan advanced by Councilor Stephen J. McGrath that would have established the residential tax rate at $20.13, and the rate for commercial, industrial and personal property at $33.24.

McGrath could attract only the support of Councilor Michael Cheney for his amended plan, which had been characterized as "tucking it to business." Councilor Joanne Condon joined them in voting against McCauley's plan.

The official Council vote came at special meeting called following a public hearing attended mostly by Quincy business people who were there to protest McGrath's plan, which would have taxed business property at 140 per cent of fair value. McCauley's plan taxed at 130 per cent.

The business people who attended the hearing said they thought McCauley's plan was fair.

"Last year we took a close look at classification and we thought it was fair to both homeowners and businessmen," said Stephen Gillig, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

"Business people realize that they do owe something to the community. We feel that 130 per cent does that. To place 140 per cent on our members would hurt a lot of small businessmen, a lot of whom are just scraping by."

Ron Zoolek, executive vice president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, said he was not suggesting that business might leave Quincy or close its doors if the McGrath plan was adopted.

"That would be blackmail," he said. "But a lot of things go into decision whether or not a business locates in a community. If you pass the McGrath plan you will be sending a message to Mr. and Mrs. Businessperson. 'You are going to pay more because there is not enough of you out there to make a difference.'"

McGrath called the reaction of businesspeople to his plan "overstated."

"They say I am 'tucking it to business,' he said. "We are taxing business now at 130 per cent and business is paying 78 per cent of its taxes. That's hardly 'tucking it to business.' The issue is simple. My plan lowers the tax increase to residents and increases it for business."

The new classification rates were a decrease of 92 cents over fiscal 1984 for homeowners and a drop of $1.64 for owners of business property but, said McCauley, the average tax bill would go up since the total value of the city increased by $146 million in one year.

The total value of all property in the city stood at $1,982,853,594.

Judge Albert Kramer, presiding justice of the Quincy District Court, accepted the Citizen of the Year Award from the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights and stirred up a hornet's nest in his speech when he referred to Germantown as a "white ghetto" and a breeding ground of crime, incest, family violence and alcoholism.

"Everyone got angry over the word 'ghetto' said the Rev. Francis Kelly of St. Boniface Church. "Maybe it's the rest of Quincy that is the ghetto. Maybe we are the whipping boy. I've been here for a year and everybody has taken a shot at Germantown. They see it as a bad place. But we don't need to apologize. Everybody else had better grow up."

"Germantown is a mixed community, economically and culturally," said Judy Kolson, a resident. "It's the kind of community Judge Kramer likes to see happen. And it's people like Kramer who destroy these communities."

"Obviously, Judge Kramer has no understanding of the community," said Peter Kolson. "He is judging the whole Germantown community by the people he sees in his courtroom."

Kramer used Germantown in his speech as an example of how South Shore communities segregate people "due to patterns of living, not out of any deliberate discrimination."

"We segregate our residents from one another,"

Judge ALBERT KRAMER he said. Look at Germantown. It is a white ghetto. We segregate those without means from those that have means, educated from the uneducated.

"We have culturally trapped the people in those neighborhoods and the children of those neighborhoods. I see that and the judges in my court and my probation officers see that every day."

"What does that breed? It breeds crime. It breeds incest. It breeds family violence. It breeds alcoholism. All the kinds of conduct that we in the courts have to deal with."

The matter ended amicably, however, when Kramer went on a walking tour of the area with residents and apologized "to anyone who has felt offended by my remarks. That certainly was not my intent." Kramer also charmed the residents.

"It was time very well spent," said the Rev. Roger Haskins of Bethel Nazarene Church, chairman of the Germantown Neighborhood Council. "He is a true gentleman. He acknowledged his mistake and clarified what he really meant."

"I think the tour really helped not only us but him," said Peter Kolson. "It took a lot of intestinal fortitude for him to come down here. I respect the man for it."

The City Council appropriated $980,546 to the city's reserve for appropriation fund for fiscal 1985, overriding an effort by Councillor Joanne Condon to cut the sum in half.

Mayor McCauley indicated that he would use at least part of it to meet negotiated raises in new union contracts.

"I am not against pay raises for city employees," said Condon, "but a million dollar slush fund is a large amount of money."

The City Council learned to its horror that the Cranch School, which was sold to Housing Organization Trust for $150,000 on Sept. 6, 1983, had been resold to Boen Development Corp. of Brookline a few months later at a $100,000 profit.

"The questions are," said Council President James A. Sheets, "why couldn't the city have sold it for $100,000 more and could we have gotten more for the other old school buildings we sold?"

The matter came up when the new developer of the property on Whitwell St. requested an extension of time to complete the site plan and a change in the number of parking spaces.

"We put the school out to bid and we took the best bid," said Mayor McCauley. "We have no control over what the purchaser does with it once it is sold."

"It makes me angry," said Councillor John J. Tydon Jr.

Later, the Council learned that the 17 condominium units planned for the old school building would be condos in name only. The individuals involved in the Boen Corp. would hold title to them, rent them out to tenants and place them on the market in five years.

The Most Rev. Bernard L.W. Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, in Quincy for the 60th anniversary of Sons of Italy Lodge, said he feels no compulsion to moderate his voice on issues that some people see as a religious invasion of the political arena.

"I am not going to be reined in on the issues of racism, war and peace and abortion," he told Quincy Sun Channel 8 reporter John Noonan in an interview.

"Some Catholics feel that it is inappropriate for the church to be involved in politics. I agree. But the church should be involved in moral issues. There are those of us who view abortion as a human rights issue. We don't expect to impose our religious views on others. We have to build on other evidence like the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

"That is what I am trying to say. To say that the church is trying to impose its views, politically is not to listen."

The General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard lost a $365 million contract to build four or five container ships at $73 million each for U.S. Lines but a spokesman for the yard denied reports that 2,000 workers would be laid off as a result of it.

"We have hired that many for current contract," said Evelyn Murphy. "We are still hiring to fulfill our obligations under current contracts."

The yard had a workforce of about 5,000 building five military ships for the Navy's Rapid Deployment Force, a job that was expected to be completed in 1986.

Deaths during the month of October included: Daniel M. Shea, 75, "Mr. Democrat" of West Quincy, struck by a car on Willard St., Oct. 22.

NOVEMBER

Quincy's best known native daughter came home with the usual flourish and charmed a crowd of several hundred at the rededication of the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre in Merrymount Park.

"I am the first person in my family to have a theatre named for her," said Ruth Gordon, the Wollaston-born actress. "It took a long time. I started toward this 88 years, 11 days and five and a half hours ago. I'm a slow starter but I get there."

The Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre also was a long time coming.

RUTH GORDON came home in November for dedication of the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre in Merrymount Park. Here she does the ribbon cutting honors, assisted by Mayor Francis McCauley and former Mayor Thomas Burgin.

Construction was started in 1977 during the administration of then Mayor Joseph J. LaRosa. More than $500,000 in federal funds were used to employ the unemployed of the South Shore under the CETA program. It wasn't finished until a few weeks ago.

Miss Gordon recalled that her father, Clinton Jones of 14 Elmwood Ave., Wollaston, had wanted her to be a physical education teacher.

"But I hated all those serge blouses and dumbbells and Indian clubs," she said. "I wanted to do something a little more sexy than that."

She remembered getting on a train at the old Wollaston station in 1915, headed for New York with a dream of becoming an actress with a year's tuition to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, her father's old spyglass and $50 spending money pinned to her corset.

"Poppa told me I could hook it (the spyglass) if I needed money," she said. "He said if you're going to be an actress, you'll be in and out of hook shops all your life. Well, I hooked plenty of things, but never that spyglass."

Miss Gordon said she plans to return to Quincy June 25, 1985, for "An Evening with Ruth Gordon" on the amphitheatre stage.

The date coincides with the 71st reunion of her Quincy High School Class of 1914, which was dubbed by a teacher the school's "worst class" because no one made the honor roll.

Miss Gordon had been in Quincy on several occasions to attend class reunions since 1977 but each time she declined to visit the amphitheatre. "I'll wait until it is completed," she said.

It was LaRosa who, as chairman of the Quincy-South Shore Cultural Commission, saw to the completion of the amphitheatre, even to the extent of helping to pour some of the cement.

Miss Gordon attend the rededication, a coffee hour in the Mayor's office, a luncheon at the California Restaurant and then she was off to Logan airport to catch a plane for the West Coast to finish her latest movie.

John J. (Jack) J. Donahue, the founder of football at North Quincy High School in 1932 and head coach for 29 years, died at the age of 79, only 12 days before the 52nd renewal of the Quincy-North Quincy football rivalry on Thanksgiving Day. He had attended all 51 previous contests.

As coach for nearly three decades, Donahue had been a familiar figure on the sidelines of those games, a great bear of a man in topcoat and three-piece suit, hands on hips, left hat thrown back on his head, a stern look on his face.

"He was a disciplinarian," said his longtime friend, Pete Zoia, who played on one of his first North Quincy teams. "He was tough but fair. And he loved North. It bothered him very much that he would miss his first Quincy-North Quincy game on Thanksgiving Day. He cried when the subject came up."

A moment of silence was observed in Mr. Donahue's memory before the Thanksgiving Day game, which was won by Quincy, 14-12, for the Presidents' 27th victory against 21 losses and four ties.

President Ronald Reagan captured Quincy's vote en route to his smashing election victory over Democrat Walter Mondale that saw him take 49 states, losing only Mondale's home state of Minnesota and the District of Columbia.

But Reagan's coattails were not sufficient to carry Raymond Shamie of Walpole into the U.S. Senate as Democrat John F. Kerry of Boston won the statewide balloting for the seat and took Quincy, too.

A hefty 79.4 per cent of Quincy's 49,735 registered voters turned out for the election. The voter turnout was 39.495.

In the lesser contested races, James M. Collins of Milton won reelection as county treasurer over Republican Michael S. Schib of Brookline despite charges of irregularities in his office.

Democrats, James J. Collins of Milton and George B. McDonald of Quincy were reelected over Republican Auburn J. Perry Jr. of Canton; and Peter I. Eley of Quincy easily turned back a challenge from Patricia A. Rusiewicz of Brockton for governor's councillor.

Winning reelection unopposed were Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, Sen. Paul D. Harrod, Reps. Thomas I. Brownell, Robert A. Cerasoli, and Michael W. Morrissey; and Register of Probate Thomas Patrick Hughes of Quincy.

The election probably was (Cont'd on Page 29)

Presidents Defeat Walpole, Bow To Arlington

The Quincy boys' basketball team, which had opened with a win at Walpole, dropped a 63-53 decision to Arlington last Friday to even its record at 1-1.

Rick DeCristofaro's Presidents hosted Walpole last night (Wednesday), will play in the Weymouth South Christmas Tournament tonight (Thursday) and Saturday, with North Quincy, Weymouth South and Weymouth North, and will host Stoughton Jan. 3 at 7:30. They will open their Suburban League season Jan. 5 at home against Waltham.

Arlington took a four-point lead at the half and widened it to 11 points in the third quarter.

Bill Shaughnessy had another big night with 15 points, Daron Tucker had 14, Pat Flaherty 11 points and 15 rebounds and Don Parry chipped in with nine assists.

Somerville Again Too Much For North

The North Quincy boys' basketball team lost for the second time to Somerville Friday night, dropping its record to 1-2.

Ed Miller's Raiders play in the Weymouth South Christmas Tournament tonight (Thursday) and Saturday with Quincy, Weymouth South and Weymouth North. They open their Suburban League season at home against Brookline Jan. 3.

Ken Runge, who has been outstanding in every game, scored 18 points in a losing cause against Somerville, which took a 30-25 lead at halftime. Freshman Dave Lawless came off the bench and scored eight points.

Earlier in the week North had edged Hingham, 59-56, for its first victory as Runge and Brian Morris scored 16 points apiece and Mark Scanlan added 10. North had a 27-22 halftime lead.

Hingham's Dave Flynn had a big night and led all scorers with 24 points.

North Wrestlers Pin Needham

The North Quincy wrestling team is off to a good start and last Friday defeated Needham, 34-27, to improve its record to 4-1.

Steve Joyce's Raiders will compete in the Norwell tournament today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. and will beat Naverian in Westwood Jan. 3.

North fell behind early and had to rally for its non-league win at Needham. The Raiders' Gary Silverman won, 17-8, the 107 pounds, Don Greenwood won, 4-3, in the 134-pound class, John MacDonald came from behind for a big pin at 140. Pat Bull won by pin at 147. John Kelley won, 7-4, at 157. Kevin McCarthy won by pin at 169 and heavyweight Al DiBella pinned his opponent.

John O'Donnell, Dan Ward, Pat Marcham, and Joe Rabs lost their matches.

Earlier in the week the Raiders defeated Brookline, 39-25, in their first Suburban League meet.

Silverman, Ed Chase, McCarthy and DiBella all won by pins, while Scott Fitzgerald won, 14-5.

Marcham, Greenwood and Kelley were defeated.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Something To Cheer About Point Panther Cheerleaders Win N. E. Championship

The Quincy Point Panthers' varsity cheerleaders recently won the New England Regional championship of the Nation-wide Cheerleaders Association.

In the Boston competition the Panthers scored 233 points out of a possible 250 to defeat teams from throughout Eastern and Western Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

The "Tournament of Champions" was held for youth, junior varsity and varsity high school.

The Panthers were the only team from the Quincy Youth Football League selected to participate.

Each team was judged in more than 10 categories, including execution, difficulty, voice, enthusiasm, jumps and mounts.

Under Capt. Kristen McGhee, the Panthers performed two cheers of 2½ minutes each, performed consecutively. An optional pom-pom routine followed the cheering segment.

Quincy's first cheer entailed Russian and straight jumps, a double fan and two successions. The cheer ended with a split mount carried through a human bridge.

The split was performed by Dawn Hartnett, who was lifted and carried by Andrea Roche and Tracy Thornhill. The human bridge was made up of Julie Munn, McGhee, Laurie Woodford and Amy Larson. Jodi Farrell, Tricia Shaughnessy and Kathy Corliss executed Russian jumps and acted as spotters.

The second cheer resulted in two successions, five back tuck flips, an individual backward swan dive (by Munn) and a tension drop by Larson, Woodford, Shaughnessy and Corliss, complete with somersaults. The final mount was three-persons high, Munn placed herself on top of Hartnett, who stood on Woodford and Corliss.

The only varsity returnee next year will be Hartnett.

The girls received a team trophy, individual trophies, miniature silver megaphones and cheerleader gloves, in their team colors of green and gold. Coach Patti Myers also received a first place coaches trophy.

Following the competition they celebrated with a pizza party at the home of McGhee, compliments of the Panthers organization and franchise owner Bill Myers.

Raiderettes Defeat Hingham, Dorchester

The North Quincy girls' basketball team took a 3-0 record into the Christmas vacation, thanks to victories last week over Hingham and Dorchester.

Paul Bregoli's Raiderettes will play Friday and Saturday in the Cape Cod Classic at Barnstable. North will play host to Barnstable Friday night at 7 and will meet the Falmouth-Matignon winner in the finals Saturday afternoon at 4. They will open their Suburban League season Jan. 3 at Brookline.

Dorchester threw a scare into the Raiderettes Friday, taking a 32-28 lead into the fourth quarter. Here North outscored its opponent, 18-2 to win, 46-34.

Dorchester took an 8-6 first quarter lead and Karen Runge and Sandra Proude, who sparked against Hingham, again kept the Raiderettes close. Stephanie Petrakas relieved Eileen Warren midway through the second quarter and did a fine job defensively as North took a 23-31 halftime edge.

North fell behind after the third quarter as it shot only two for 13 from the floor, but Runge, who finished with 16 points, hit for eight in the final session and Warren added six. Freshman Nancy Flukes put the Raiderettes ahead for good, 33-32, with her jump shot.

Runge added nine rebounds while Proude finished with 10 points and 10 rebounds. Jean Welby had five assists and four steals and the Raiderettes scored well from the foul line, just as they did against Hingham.

Earlier North handed Hingham its first loss of the season, 42-31, opening up a 12-6 first quarter lead. Runge opened the scoring, taking a nice pass from Proude. Proude and Runge combined for 10 of the 12 first quarter points. Proude continued her offensive show, adding four more points while Welby added a corner jump shot and two free throws to put North up, 21-15, at the half.

The third quarter saw Welby, Runge and Capt. Ann Duggan on the bench with four fouls each. However, Anne Marie Hughes, Flukes and Geraldine Murphy all came in and played well.

North exploded for 18 fourth quarter points to put the game away. Duggan scored a three-point play and Warren and Runge connected on jump hooks. Warren, 6-1 center, hit for seven points in the quarter, while Duggan had five and Runge four. Proude led all scorers with 11 points and Warren had 10 points and 18 rebounds. North was 16 for 24 from the foul line.

"A win is a win, so we'll take both," said Bregoli. "Our kids have been a bit erratic, playing terrifically at times and other times not. But I have liked the way they dig down in the fourth quarter when the games have been on the line. Our young players have blended nicely with our veterans and it should be a fun year."

Koch Club Basketball Thursday

The Koch Club basketball program will be held during school vacation tonight (Thursday), at the Atlantic Middle School gymnasium, Hollis Ave., North Quincy.

It will be the final night for new members to register in the program for the 1984-85 season.

The league meets Thursdays with boys, ages seven through nine playing at 6 p.m. and those 10 through 12 years at 7:15 p.m. will continue until March 28th when an Awards Night will complete the 36th season.

Basketball became part of the Koch Club recreational program in 1949 and was initiated at the original North Quincy High School Gymnasium in North Quincy.

During the three decades, the Koch Club has serviced thousands of children throughout the city and in past years has had weekly basketball activity in the Houghs Neck, Broad Meadows and Montclair Districts of the city.

The extensive decrease in the number of school age children in the late 1970's resulted in the Koch Club returning to a regional program.

Malvesti Goals Lift Quincy

Pat Cleary set up Nick Malvesti for two goals late in the third period to lift the Quincy High School hockey team into an upset 2-2 tie with Wellesley in a Bay State League game at Boston Arena.

After two scoreless periods, Wellesley moved out in front on goals 33 seconds apart on goals by Capt. Al Juliani, who beat Quincy goalie Bud Gavazza at 2:10 and 2:43.

Then Cleary passed to Malvesti for a goal at 5:05 and repeated the play for the tying score at 7:00.

Coach Ken Hudson's Presidents played without the services of Capt. Joe Monahan, who suffered a six-stitch cut when he was slashed by a skate during a practice session at Sailors' Home Pond.

The Quincy lineup: Gavazza, goal; Langton, Sargent, defense; Hebert, Finn, Joe Clancy, forwards; Cleary, Malvesti, Lehtonen, Cook, Keefe, McKenna, Voergler, Jim Clancy.

WINS RIGHT TO PRAY

Melsheka, the wrestler from Arabia, won the right to pray to Mecca before the match but he lost to Ted Germaine of South Boston, two falls out of three, in the main bout at Quincy Arena.

The Massachusetts Wrestling Association ruled the day before the bout that any wrestler is entitled to a full five minutes in which to practice any religious service he desires before the match starts.

Germaine was a last minute substitution for Jose Firpo of Argentina, said to be a nephew of former heavyweight boxing contender Luis Firpo. His manager, Don Juan Vareles, had protested the prayer.

In a preliminary bout, Buck Jones, the Harlem Terror, and Cannonball Grange of Quincy, battled to a 30-minute draw.

'Y' OPENS WITH WIN

Bob Greenhalgh scored 20 points and Fred Comparato chipped in with 16 to lead the Quincy YMCA basketball team over the Waltham Tri-Mus quintet 81-34 in its season's opener.

The one-sided victory indicated to most experts that the Quincy Y team would once again be a contender for the national championship that it narrowly missed in the 1934 tourney at Williamsport, Pa.

The Quincy lineup: Greenhalgh, Mattson, Winship, forwards; O'Connell, Collins, center; Comparato, Reid, Smith, guards.

CLAN DROPS LYNN

Russell, Logan and Ballantyne scored the goals, two of them in the second half, as the Clan MacGregor soccer team upset the Lynn Riversides in the third round of the State Cup Tournament.

The Clan MacGregor lineup: Findlay, goal; Milne and J. Hay, backs; MacIntyre, T. Hay, A. Russell, halfbacks; Ballantyne, S. Hay, Logan, Wilson D. Russell, forwards.

QUINCY WALLOPS TUFTS

Coach Jimmy LeCain cleared the bench as his Quincy High School basketball team built up an 8-3 lead at halftime and went on to rout the Tufts Junior Varsity, 25-11 in Cousens Gym, Medford.

Eddie Dunn led the Quincy scorers with nine points. The Quincy lineup: Pearson, Almstrom, DiNardo, DiTullio, Hill, Pappas, Dunn, forwards; Nantinen, Gladwin, Kapsis, centers; Crimp, Ollia, McCollom, Buckley, Gulino, Avery, DiGravio, Frenchuk, Fagerlund, guards.

MERRYMOUNT IN UPSET

Eddie Gallant scored the tying goal in the third period and Jimmie Rawson tallied the winner moments later as the Merrymount Hockey Club upset the strong Brookville HC of Holbrook, 4-3.

The Merrymount lineup: Sabean, goal; Gavazza, Dodd, Griffen, defense; Duffy, Gallant, Jacobs, J. Rawson, R. Rawson, F. Griffen, Clancy, Beausang, Hansen, forwards.

SHARKEY KAOTES DEMPSEY

Former world heavyweight champion Jack Sharkey flattened Dynamite Dempsey of Toledo with one punch when the wrestler attacked him while he was refereeing a tag team match at Quincy Arena.

SPORTS BITS '34

Nick Malvesti, Quincy's football star, was named to Sports Editor Johnny Garro's Italian all scholastic team in La Notzia, the Italian language daily in Boston. . . Coach Leland H. Anderson postponed eliminations for the Quincy High School wrestling team until after the Christmas holidays. . . LaHive limited high-scoring Tibbs to seven points and the United Presbyterian basketball team edged Pilgrim Congregational, 24-20, in a Great Quincy Sunday School League game.

North Hockey Team Living Up To Expectations

The North Quincy hockey team, with 11 veterans and four outstanding transfers, is more than living up to Coach Kevin Jago's expectations with three straight Suburban League victories.

The Raiders went to 3-0 last week with a 4-1 victory over defending league champion Newton North.

North played Waltham last night (Wednesday) and Saturday will face Brookline at 7:50 at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The Radriers turned in an outstanding two-way performance against Newton as league all-star goalie Matt Higgins had another excellent night with 18 saves.

North took an early 1-0 lead on Dave Fasano's goal and Dave Tapper made it 2-0 later in the period with his first goal.

Rich Horrigan added to the Raider lead in the second period and Tom McGrath closed out the scoring with a goal in the final period.

Defenseman Glen McGlame played a strong game and had two assists.

North Swimmers Overpower Blue Hills

The North Quincy boys' swimming team started where it left off last year (7-3 record) when it won every event but one last week to overpower Blue Hills Regional, 117-51.

Bill Walker's Raiders are off until Jan. 3 when they swim at Middleboro at 3:45.

North has had eight straight winning seasons and, with 17 returning lettermen and 13 promising newcomers, it looks like another successful season is in store.

The Raiders swept three events and won both relay races. Blue Hills only victory came in the 50-yard freestyle.

North's Dan O'Sullivan and Dan Moriarty swam with the winning 200-yard medley relay team with Mike Melanson and Eric Giordano, while O'Sullivan also won the 100 backstroke in 1:11.8 and Moriarty won the 100 breaststroke in 1:14.4 and the 200 individual medley in 2:28.5.

The 400 freestyle relay team of Tom Farmer, John Donlan, Sean Geary and Harry Towle also won.

North's other individual winners were Steve Mackay, 200 freestyle and 500 freestyle; Greg Toland, diving; Melanson, 100 butterfly and Brendan Walsh, 100 freestyle.

Second place finishers were Geary, 200 freestyle; Farmer, 100 butterfly; John Bangs, 100 freestyle; David Stockless, 500 freestyle; and Rick Stanton, 100 breaststroke.

Taking third places were Fred Cawthorne, 200 freestyle; O'Sullivan, 200 individual medley; Giordano, diving; Brian Gary, 100 butterfly; Chris Roberts, 100 freestyle; Geary, 500 freestyle and Tom-Huynk, 100 backstroke.

Runge, Choukas In Key Roles At Bridgewater

The Bridgewater State College women's basketball team ended its first semester with an impressive 7-1 record and the No. 1 Div. 3 ranking in New England.

After dropping their second game to Rhode Island College, the Lady Bears ran off six straight victories, the most prominent being over Eastern Connecticut State, Salem State (ranked No. 1 at the time) and nationally-ranked Kean College of New Jersey.

Two of the key performers are sophomores Karen Runge and Chris Choukas, both former North Quincy High standouts.

Runge, last year's FCAC Rookie of the Year, is averaging nine points and 5.5 assists a game, while Choukas is averaging 12.9 points a game and is one of the top rebounders.

Head Coach Bo Ruggerio of Quincy is pleased with the team's progress. "We're right where we wanted to be at this point in the season," he said. "We won some big games that showed me a lot about this squad."

The BSC women will open the second semester schedule at home Saturday, Jan. 12, at 7 p.m. against Salve Regina.

I enjoy the happiness shown by my mother, my brothers, and my sister. At eight o'clock we gather around the fireplace and sing Christmas carols. After that we say good bye to our friends and relatives. The day is always most enjoyable.

HANDLING EMINENT DOMAIN
QUESTION: The local government is taking my property because they plan to run a highway through my living room. The offer they made seems a lot less than the property is worth. What do I do?
ANSWER: Even though your property may be taken for public use, you must be compensated at "fair market value". If the initial offer is unacceptable, discuss the facts with your attorney. If he thinks your position is fair, he'll arrange for one or more real estate appraisers to appraise the property. With their "fair market value" appraisals, he can represent you better at a board hearing or, if necessary, in court action.

Teachers Contract Negotiations Stall

the last time the city would use hand-counted paper ballots since there was a proposal before the City Council to purchase punch-card voting machines which would be used in the 1985 municipal election.

Contract negotiations between the School Committee and the Quincy Education Association made some progress toward the end of the month after the teachers' union had threatened to take some form of job action in the stalemate.

A large group of QEA members attended one negotiating session after marching from the Sons of Italy Hall on Quarry St. to the School Committee rooms behind the high school carrying signs and wearing badges that said "STRIKE a new deal."

"You can interpret that any way you wish," said Mary Curtin, president of the QEA. "We are well aware that a strike is illegal under state law and our contract. What happens depends on progress in negotiations."

After a three hour negotiating session Nov. 14 Curtin said they "made a lot of movement within the package. I'm hopeful." But, she added, "work to rule remains a viable alternative."

Work to rule means that, instead of striking illegally, teachers would do only those tasks prescribed in the contract. Teachers had been working without a contract since Sept. 1.

For the first time in 11 years, the city sold grave sites in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery and some Quincy residents waited in line all night for make purchases of final resting places.

A total of 317 sites were sold between 8 a.m. and 3:15 p.m. with 167 single gravesites going for $602 each and 75 double gravesites sold at $1202 apiece for a total of $190,834. There were two graves in a single site and four in a double.

A float sponsored by the Sacred Heart CYO of North Quincy, entitled "Christmas Visit," won the Fr. Thomas Tierney trophy as the best float in the 33rd annual Christmas Festival Parade and the winners immediately announced that the $1,000 check that went with it would be donated to the Koeh Club's Christmas charities.

The New Bedford High School band captured the large school competition in the parade and with it an opportunity to march in the Cotton Bowl Parade in Dallas Jan. 1, 1987. The New Bedford musicians also won the special Spirit of Massachusetts competition for a chance to march at the President's inaugural in January, 1985.

A crowd estimated officially at 315,000 people lined Hancock St. for the two and a half hour parade, which was marshalled by Bobby Orr, the former Boston Bruins hockey star.

State and city officials and resident of West Quincy were discussing the possibility of the MDC taking over jurisdiction of Willard St. from Furnace Brook Parkway to the Braintree line.

The move would alleviate residents' traffic concerns and help clear the way for construction of a $20 million complex, including two five-story office buildings, on the site of Goldie's junk yard.

The potential developer, Adams Realty Trust, was turned down by the Zoning Board of Appeals Sept. 11 when it applied for a variance to build in a residential area. A new submission was to be made to the Board in December.

Deaths during the month of November included:

Peter G. Ruscitto, retired granite manufacturer, Nov. 3.

Mrs. Nowle Derbes, 68, a founding member of the Islamic Center of New England in Quincy Point, Nov. 29.

DECEMBER

The membership of the Quincy Education Association, deadlocked with the School Committee in contract negotiations, voted to recommend censure of the Quincy public school system and the board of directors of the Massachusetts Teachers Association voted its unanimous support.

Mary Curtin, president of the QEA, said the effect of the vote was that the MIA would advertise in its journals that "Quincy is not the kind of place that supports education," and new teachers would be discouraged from seeking jobs in the city's system.

Curtin said the disenchantment with the Quincy schools goes back much farther than the current negotiations, adding that "the teachers are saying they have had it. Year after year it's too much."

By mid-December, when the teachers had been working without a contract for three and a half months, both sides in the deadlock decided to ask for a state mediator to help resolve the situation.

"We seem to have reached a point where we do not have much to talk about," said Curtin. "We thought we could talk about some issues outside of money but all the issues seem to impinge on money. We decided at that point we needed a mediator."

"It was discouraging. We hoped that we could resolve the issues on our own."

Meanwhile, the first of the several unions that were negotiating new contracts with the city reached agreement when the 180-member Laborers' Union settled for a two-year contract retroactive to July 1 with a 3 per cent wage hike Jan. 1, 1985 and a 4 per cent pay raise July 1, 1985.

Mayor McCauley said the contract would cost the city $48,000 for the last six months of fiscal 1985 and $225,000 for the full fiscal year 1986.

"If all the unions in the city settled for 3 per cent and 4 per cent," said the Mayor, "the cost for fiscal 1985 would be $650,000. Since we have $950,000 in the reserve for appropriation fund, that would leave us $300,000 for emergencies."

The city of Quincy's suit against the MDC and the Boston Sewer Commission for polluting Quincy Bay finally got some action where it counted in the State Legislature.

A court order banning new commercial hookups to the MDC sewage system moved the Legislature to action on a bill creating a sewer and water authority to replace the MDC's Sewer Division and start a cleanup of the entire Boston Harbor.

The State Supreme Court lifted Superior Court Judge Paul Garrity's ban but Garrity threatened to place the MDC's Sewer Division in receivership on Dec. 20 unless some action was taken. The Legislature passed the bill creating the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority on Dec. 19.

If you want to draw a crowd, just mention Marina Bay or Boston Harbor Marina.

More than 200 people jammed the City Council Chamber at City Hall for yet another lively hearing into the proposed development of what was once the Squantum Naval Air Station.

The O'Connell brothers, Peter and William, were seeking three zoning changes that would enable them to develop 80 acres of the 400 acre site under a $250 million plan that included 845 condominium units, 850,000 square feet of office space, two restaurants and a 300-room hotel.

Five people at the joint Council-Planning Board hearing testified in favor of the zoning amendments and 107 recorded themselves in favor. Eleven people spoke in opposition and 51 were recorded.

Proponents of the plans had high praise for the O'Connells, who were already constructing 101 condo units on the site and had built apartment and office buildings all over the city.

The chief objections to the O'Connell's project came from those who were concerned they would create and magnify sewage and traffic problems and, with the zoning change, the city would lose control of the development.

William O'Connell defended the plan, saying, "we are not outsiders. We have never done anything detrimental to Quincy and we are not going to start now."

Another racial furor erupted when a white school aide, dressed up as Aunt Jemima, the black woman on the box of pancake mix, in order to promote pancakes for lunch at the Snug Harbor, Montclair and Merry Mount Schools.

Doris Gardner, a black woman whose daughter, Lisa, attended the fifth grade at Snug Harbor, took offense and drew an apology from School Supt. John Osterman. She said her daughter had been taunted by white classmates and she asked that the girl be transferred to another school.

When a third person in three months was killed in an auto accident on Sea St., the Registry of Motor Vehicles and Quincy police increased patrols in the area and the new enforcement of the speed limit appeared to be cutting down on the dangers.

The patrols issued 54 citations for traffic violations on the first day and after that the violations declined.

"It's great to have the Registry assist," said City Councillor Michael Cheney. "but we should look at the Police Department to see if it is adequately manned. Traffic has become a major problem in Quincy."

Meanwhile, the City Council suggested that a survey be made of all Quincy streets where accidents have occurred and Mayor McCauley said he would confer with Planning Director James Lydon to see whether such a study could be done in house or if there was federal or state money available for it.

The Zoning Board of Appeals rejected a previous decision and granted a variance to clear the way for construction of a $20 million office complex on Willard St.

As part of the variance, the Adams Realty Trust promised to lobby for bill filed by Rep. Michael W. Morrissey to have the MDC take over Willard St. as a parkway from the Furnace Brook Parkway interchange to the Braintree line to solve traffic problems.

The Rev. Keith C. Munson informed the congregation of United First Parish Church in Quincy Square that he plans to announce his resignation June 2, 1985, effective Aug. 31, 1985, as minister, a post he had held for 10 years.

"I have reached that time in my life when I do not wish to postpone so many interests and desires I long to experience," he said. "Time and life seem to become more precious as the years accumulate."

Blue Cross-Blue Shield disclosed that it plans to move part of its Boston operation to Quincy, possibly to one of the new buildings on the Newport Ave.-Extension in North Quincy sometime in the spring. Some 50 employees of the professional relations and utilization review operation were to make the move.

Interior demolition began on the old Sears Roebuck building on Hancock St. to clear the way for a $5 million project to convert it into a gallery of small specialty shops. Work was expected to be finished in late March and available for tenants April 1.

The License Board granted a temporary lodging house license to St. John's Church in Quincy Center to maintain a shelter for up to 20 homeless people in the basement of the vacant in the basement of the vacant St. John's on Phipps St.

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition and Quincy Community Action Organization together with the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston received a $40,000 state grant for the shelter along with another at the Quincy Salvation Army.

The City Council approved a request by Mayor McCauley for $25,000 to hire an architect to design renovations or expansion of the nearly 50-year-old Quincy police station. The city's Designer Selection Committee chose the firm of DiNisco, Pretsch and Associates to do the job.

Fifty-five Camp Fire members went to Sawyer Towers, Martensen St., recently to entertain the elderly residents with holiday songs at the annual Christmas Party.

Marsha Archer played the piano and directed the singing, which included "Rudolph," "Frosty the Snowman," "Jingle Bells," "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas Happy Chanukah."

The Furance Brook Wood Gatherers had made reindeer, Santa, and Rudolph hand puppets to dramatize "Rudolph, the Red Nose Reindeer." The Pine Cone Blue Birds brought Santa stick puppets for "Santa Claus is Coming to Town." Shawna Bulman, in a snowman costume with carrot nose, skipped among the elderly residents to "Frosty."

Everyone enjoyed the young people for a final chorus of "Jingle Bells," while the Good Friends Rainbow Blue Birds sang sleigh bells for the chorus.

Every resident was presented with a decorated Christmas tree pin book mark made by the girls. The girls were invited to stay for refreshments and were each given a chocolate Santa lollipop by Norma Johnston of South Shore Elder services.

Camp Fire also made tray favors for the Sawyer Towers and Meals on Wheels Christmas meal.

St. Joseph School Students Spread Christmas Spirit

Students at St. Joseph School entered into the Christmas spirit in many ways.

During the four weeks preceding Christmas, they collected toys for the needy.

They also went to Pagnano Towers and presented an entertainment for the elderly there.

The fifth grade class went to Merrymount Manor Nursing Home another day to sing Carols for the patients.

The entire student body presented a Christmas Program in the church for their parents, relatives and friends. Carols, a playlet, nativity scene and reflection were part of the program.
